GUNMEN SLAY CITY EMPLOYE

HINTS PHYSICAL FORCE TO KEEP WALKER ON JOB

Curtin Urges Court Stop Governor.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Mayor James J. Walker opened his defense this afternoon in the removal proceedings before Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt after his chief counsel, John J. Curtin, had closed a morning argument before Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley with a statement that physical conflict might be needed to get Mayor Walker out of the city hall.

Both the court session where Gov. Roosevelt's authority was questioned and the hearing in the executive chamber were marked by frequent bitter clashes.

Three witnesses were heard by the governor before Samuel Seabury brought Mayor Walker to his feet with a direct reference to the $26,000 bonds the mayor is charged with having received from J. H. Sisto.

Seek to Uphold Mayor.

The witnesses sought to uphold the mayor in his assertion that he had not sought to limit the operation of taxicabs in exchange for any alleged favors done him, and were getting along splendidly until Mr. Seabury interrupted:

"You go after them," the mayor whispered to John Glynn of his legal staff, "for if I get up there I'll feel like socking him."

His honor sat glaring at the calm, unperturbed Mr. Seabury—and then he was on his feet, spiritedly defending his name.

Gov. Roosevelt sat smiling throughout the hubbub as Mr. Walker, Mr Seabury and most of their legal staffs lined the rail before the executive chair. The heat in the crowded red plush room, the long drawn out proceedings and the fact that the Sisto bonds were a particularly touchy subject with Mayor Walker were responsible for the flareup in which the session closed.

Does Not Recognize Authority.

The entire day served to demonstrate that every loophole known to shrewd lawyers was going to be used by the Walker forces. The mayor of New York does not recognize Gov. Roosevelt's authority to remove him from office under the present procedure and has gone to court in an effort to obtain judicial protection.

The governor does not recognize the authority of the courts to limit a power which he considers invested in him by the legislature. Consequently, while Mayor Walker in effect is shouting at the governor:

"You can't put me out," the governor through his attorney general's department is replying, "The courts have no judicial authority over my acts."

The general effect is complex.

Curtin Closes Argument.

Mr. Curtin closed his argument before Justice Staley with the following quotation:

"We can only go to court to avoid a physical conflict that might well ensue if a removal order were made without jurisdiction."

Tonight the lawyer was asked to amplify his courtroom statement.

"An illegal act without jurisdiction," said Mr. Curtin, "might likely bring a dispute as to its enforcement. In other words, if I told you to get out of your house and you said to me 'You have no power to put me out of my house,' what would happen?"

Might Call Police?

It was suggested that the police might be called. Some one went further and mentioned the state police invading the city hall. Mr. Curtin smiled knowingly.

The argument before Justice Staley delayed the executive hearing until 2 p. m. At its conclusion Justice Staley reserved decision and indicated he would have nothing to say until Mr. Curtin had filed briefs by next Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Curtin went all the way back to charters of 1800 in his argument and was more than an hour getting down to the present. At the conclusion Henry Epstein of the attorney general's office challenged the authority of the court to limit the governor's power.

Justice Staley is a Republican and has been for a number of years a leader in party circles here. His observations during the argument indicated that he did not relish the idea of even a governor questioning the authority of the Supreme court. Nevertheless, Mr. Epstein cited numerous cases in which the power of

FIVE HITLERITES GET DEATH FOR POLITICAL RIOTS

Police Club Mob as Verdict Is Read.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BEUTHEN, Germany, Aug. 22.—Upper Silesia was in an uproar this afternoon following the imposition of death sentences on five followers of Adolf Hitler in the killing of a communist. Seven other National Socialist rioters were sentenced to prison at hard labor for participating in the political slaying.

The men, defended by the personal attorney of the National Socialist leader, received the first death sentences meted out by Germany's new "speed" anti-terror courts operating under an emergency decree to stamp out political violence.

Police Hurl Back Mob.

After sentence had been pronounced, sympathizers of the defendants massed in the streets and attempted to storm the court house, but were thrown back by police who used their carbines as clubs. Demonstrations occurred at several other points in the town and the windows of Jewish shops and Socialist newspapers were smashed.

Edmund Heines, a Hitlerite member of the reichstak, attired in full party uniform, addressed the throng, attempting to placate the demonstrators. He finally succeeded in sending the Nazi "storm troop" detachments, which had mobilized in front of the courthouse back to their barracks.

Hitler's lawyer also helped to quiet the mob with the following warning:

"Before this sentence can be carried out the whole of Germany will rise up in arms. If it is carried out, this town will be the center of a movement designed to liberate Germany."

Police Patrol Streets.

He reminded the crowd that President Paul von Hindenburg has the right to pardon the defendants, although no appeal is possible.

Tonight steel helmeted police, with rifles unslung for action, are patrolling the streets.

Wives of the sentenced Hitlerites refused to return to their villages, fearing attacks by communists.

In Brieg another anti-terror court today sentenced 27 members of republican organizations to prison. The terms ranged from four months to two years. They were convicted of participating in political riots which resulted in three deaths.

Verdicts Are Protested.

Hitlerites and republicans alike are protesting today's verdicts. The Nazis tonight telegraphed a protest to President von Hindenburg and Chancellor Franz von Papen through their legal chief.

"We demand an immediate pardon for the victims of the ghastly and inhuman sentences at Beuthen," the telegram read. "Three hundred patriotic men, our friends, have been murdered by Marxists in the past and almost none of the murderers has been apprehended. For the sake of the fatherland's safety and peace the government must retract today's decisions."

Hitler Telegraphs Sentiments.

MUNICH, Germany, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler tonight telegraphed his sentiments to the five men sentenced to death in Beuthen in the slaying of a communist.

"My comrades, in the face of this frightful, bloody sentence, and from this instant on your freedom becomes a point of our honor," he said.

Dedicate New Monument.

BRESLAU, Germany, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Ten thousand persons assembled today on the historic battlefield of Leuthen, where Frederick the Great vanquished the Austrians in 1757, to witness the dedication of a new monument. They heard the aged former field marshal, August von Mackensen wearing the picturesque Hussar uniform, read a message of appreciation to his loyal followers from the former kaiser.

"Battle will remain the shining example of valor," the former kaiser said. "The way to victory is only through hard fighting."

Wife Returns Late from Ball Game: 2 Black Eyes

Anthony Pilger, 3510 Belden avenue, is no baseball fan. His wife, Anna, is. Last Friday she attended a ladies' day game at the Cubs' park. Yesterday she showed Municipal Judge Alfred O. Erickson two black eyes, which, she asserted, her husband gave her because she got home late from the game and kept him waiting for supper. The husband was fined $100 for disorderly conduct and placed on probation.

EDITH McCORMICK RETAINING GAINS; BROTHER LEAVES

Reports last night from the sickroom of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick revealed that her condition yesterday remained unchanged from the improvement manifest on Sunday.

Mrs. McCormick then was said to be much stronger then she has been for three weeks, and her increased resistance to the malady from which she is suffering was so marked that her brother, John D. Rockefeller Jr., departed with Mrs. Rockefeller for the east on the Century. Their destination was said to be Pocantico Hills, near Tarrytown, where both they and the elder Rockefeller have summer homes. John D. Rockefeller III., their son, had preceded them by a day.

In the Drake hotel, where Mrs. McCormick has been living since she closed her home on Lake Shore drive, all her near relatives who have been close at hand for more than a week enjoyed a restful day, without the strain of another of the sinking spells the patient has suffered frequently of late.

FORGOTTEN MAN CLUB FORMED TO AID ROOSEVELT

Mountain Grove, Mo., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—The first "Forgotten Man and Woman Club" in the United States, was organized tonight at West Plains, by a group of Howell county Democrats, paying $1 each to be placed in the national campaign fund.

An announcement of the club's organization was wired to James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, at New York, urging that similar groups be encouraged in every community of the nation.

Engineers Put River in Bottles at $175 Month

On the banks of the Des Plaines river near the Ogden avenue bridge in the village of Riverside stands a chili con carne parlor. The proprietor is F. R. Sheffer.

Built at the rear of the eating place is a shed, just large enough to shelter Mr. Sheffer's car and a chemical laboratory of the sanitary district of Chicago. The laboratory equipment consists of a weather beaten cupboard, a decrepit bedroom dresser and an assortment of bottles. This, and an upholstered easy chair.

For the last four months Thomas J. Bowler, president of the district, has had three "engineers" detailed at the laboratory twenty-four hours a day taking samples of the river water every hour to guard the public health. Each "engineer" is drawing $175 a month.

Refreshments for "Engineers"?

According to rumors in Riverside, the "engineers" relieve the tedium of their task with occasional refreshments. The rumors sent a reporter to the spot yesterday afternoon.

The shed was deserted, but a casual inspection seemed to support the suspicion that the "engineers" had been sampling something else than river water. In the weeds outside lay an empty demijohn. On the cupboard shelf were two flasks, not quite drained.

"The engineers work eight hour shifts," said Mr. Sheffer. "The man on duty now is probably up the river somewhere sampling water. They don't spend much time here."

The reporter peered up and down the river, but saw no one taking water samples. He returned to the deserted shed and sat on a boulder to wait. The drowsy hours passed, but they brought no engineer. The easy chair beckoned invitingly and the reporter went inside.

Mystery of the Time Sheet.

His eye fell on a sanitary district time sheet. From the date written there it appeared that one Henry J. Cataldo, 1015 Aberdeen street, had reported for his engineering duties at 8 a. m. and departed at 4 p. m.

The reporter scanned the sheet a second time, perplexed, for the hour was only 2:30. Then he telephoned the Cataldo home and was enlightened. Mr. Cataldo, it transpired, was a Democratic precinct captain in the 20th ward.

The afternoon wore on. To do him justice the "engineer" on the evening shift was prompt for work and willing to explain his duties. He identified himself as Charles G. Copps, 6047 South Talman avenue, precinct captain in the 15th ward.

"We take the samples every hour from May to November," he said. "Right now the river is so low and sluggish that we have a hard time getting water. We put acid in the bottles, seal them tight and send them downtown. We take the temperature and everything."

Mr. Copps excused himself from further questions. He referred the reporter to his downtown boss, Dr. F. W. Mahlman, chief chemist of the sanitary district. Dr. Mahlman was on vacation, but the chemist in charge professed to know the answers.

Q.—What is the purpose of hourly tests of the water. A.—The water carries sewage—we have to know the condition of the river.

Q.—And what is the object of getting the condition of the river? A.—We have complaints—we have to know the degree of pollution. We've done it for years.

Q.—Knowing the degree of pollution—what then? A.—Well, we know the degree of pollution.

Philip Harrington, assistant chief engineer, said the district was maintaining five stations like that at Riverside. The water samples cost the taxpayers an estimated $3,000 a month. Mr. Bowler could not be reached for comment.

13 PERSONS START TODAY ON FLIGHTS ACROSS ATLANTIC

New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—If good weather and present plans hold, thirteen persons will set out tomorrow from Floyd Bennett airport in three planes on trans-Atlantic flights to Europe.

The flying Hutchinsons—George R., his wife, and their daughters, 6 and 8—announced their take-off is scheduled for 9:30 a. m. [E. S. T.] for St. John, N. B., the first stop on their journey to Scotland, via Labrador, Greenland and Iceland.

Their black and silver plane, "The Flying Family," will carry eight in all—a navigator, mechanic, motion picture operator and radio man in addition to the family.

Thor Solberg and Carl Petersen, Norwegian-Americans, have fixed their hour of departure at dawn, shortly before 4 a. m. They will fly to Harbor Grace, N. F., and then takeoff for Oslo, Norway, in a non-stop flight attempt.

Solberg will pilot their red and yellow plane. Petersen, who served as radio expert for the Byrd antarctic expedition, expects to keep in touch wit radio stations on both sides of the ocean.

The flight is backed by Norwegian-Americans who conceived the idea at an Independence day celebration in Brooklyn last May.

In the third plane will be William Ulbrich, with Edna Newcomer and Dr. Leon M. Pisculli as passengers. They said they also intended to start tomorrow, but have not fixed a time. Their destination is Rome. Miss Newcomer has announced she will make a parachute jump over Florence, Italy

Planes Crash at Funeral for Flyer; Both Pilots Die

POZNAN, Poland, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Two military airplanes wheeled above a cemetery today during funeral services for an air corps officer who had been killed in a crash. Suddenly they collided in mid-air and plunged to the ground. The two pilots were fatally injured.

Shot to Death Riding in Auto with 2 Police

James Madden, 40 years old, a city sidewalk inspector, was shot and killed early this morning at 22d and Dearborn streets while in his automobile, accompanied by two policemen. He was the father of five children, and lived at 8105 South Sangamon street.

Two or three gunmen, whom the policemen were chasing after engaging in a traffic dispute, committed the murder. They escaped as one of the policemen emptied his revolver at them.

Madden's companions were Patrolman Louis Starr of 8253 Throop street, assigned as a detective to the Grand Crossing station, and Policeman Patrick McInerney of 9914 Throop street, attached to the detective bureau and now on furlough. During the evening they had attended a meeting of the Civil Service post of the American Legion at the Elks club downtown.

Chase Follows Traffic Row.

They started homeward in Madden's automobile. Somewhat ill, Madden sat alone in the rear seat, and allowed Starr to drive. McInerney sat beside Starr. They proceeded south in Dearborn street when, at Archer avenue, a small automobile containing two or three men cut in ahead of them, forcing Starr to swerve sharply to avoid a collision.

Momentarily, both cars paused, and Starr shouted a warning to the men to drive more carefully. They answered derisively, and then shot ahead, south in Dearborn street. The policemen gave chase.

At 22d street the fugitive car turned east, and then halted. The men leaped out, and ran to a corner hallway. Coming fast behind, Starr jammed on the brakes, and brought his automobile to a near stop, but not before passing the abandoned automobile.

Bullet Kills Madden.

The next moment three or four revolver shots were fired, followed by a shotgun blast. One of the bullets ripped through the rear of Madden's car, and pierced his back, killing him instantly. The charge from the shotgun grazed the side of the car.

McInerney leaped out, and fired six shots at the gunmen, but they fled, apparently unharmed. Before he could continue the chase on foot, Starr called out that Madden had been hit, and McInerney rejoined his friends. Madden was driven to St. Luke's hospital and pronounced dead.

As soon as the policemen disappeared with their slain friend, the murderers returned to the scene and drove their car away. No license number was obtained, so far as could be learned. One Negro witness was picked up.

Police squads were dispatched to the south side by radio orders, and early this morning were still cruising about to find the slayers. The men apparently were young. Neither Starr nor McInerney was able to get a good look at them during the momentary pause incident to the traffic dispute at Archer avenue and Dearborn street.

WILMETTE CALLS ON PARENTS FOR $80,000 'TUITION'

Parents of children attending the four grade schools in Wilmette must raise $80,000 in cash by Sept. 15, or the schools will not be opened as scheduled on Sept. 19. This warning was delivered last night by Henry E. Cutler, president of the Wilmette school board.

With an enrollment of 1,700 pupils in the four schools, the $80,000 figures slightly more than $47 for each student. The money must be paid on a per capita basis as if it were tuition, but the parents will receive 1931 tax anticipation warrants in the amount they pay.

"This question is solely up to the parents," said Mr. Cutler. "If they raise the money the schools open. We intend to operate on a cash basis and the $80,000 will be enough for five months. The board has economized to the limit. We cut our budget to $104,000 for the coming year, almost $100,000 less than last year's budget."

Cutler has called a meeting of parents of seventh and eighth grade pupils for Monday night at the Stolp school. Meetings of parents of children in lesser grades also will be held.

NEGRO LEGION DELEGATES ARE PUT IN BALCONY

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Negro delegates to the Tennessee convention of the American Legion protested to Legion officials today because they were directed to leave the main floor of the convention hall and take seats in the balcony.

"I understand that if the Negro delegates continue in the same attitude, there will be a resolution offered by the Memphis post to revoke their Legion charters," W. P. McDonald, chairman of the arrangement committee said. "I hope there will not be any necessity for such action."

MUSTER 25,000 MINE PICKETERS AFTER SLAYING

Strikers Will Invade Southern Fields.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Taylorville, Ill., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Aroused by the killing of a miner at Zeigler early today, the old battle lines of striking miners who invaded Taylorville last Thursday, were being reformed tonight for a new march into the coal regions of Franklin and Saline counties.

The expedition, according to mine leaders, usually well informed, will gather at Gillespie, forty miles south of here on Wednesday and will proceed by motor cavalcade the hundred or more miles down into the very heart of the mining country. A large portion of the 1,500 Taylorville miners who now refuse to operate the four Peabody mines in the Midland tract are expected to join the march.

Expect Army of 25,000.

Orders to the miners by the strikers policy committee were to appear "without weapons—not even a pocket knife" at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. The leaders expect an army of 25,000 to 30,000 will gather and an appeal was to be made to Gov. Emmerson to clear the highways.

Simultaneously a report filtered upstate that the miners of Franklin county had declared a two-day cessation of picketing—perhaps to wait the march of their comrades—but this could not be verified.

Miner Slain, Seven Wounded.

Gunfire raged at Zeigler in Franklin county, in the early hours today. The dead miner was Dominic Lauranti, 32 years old, whose body was found in a weed patch near the shaft house at Bell and Zoller mine No. 1. His neck was broken and his back was speckled with buckshot but a coroner's report stated that the shots had not caused death. It was thought possible that he had been slain with a club. An inquest will be held at Zeigler, Thursday.

About 200 armed deputy sheriffs were active in preventing picketing and miners' massmeetings in Franklin county and machine gun fire crackled in the area most of the night. Women joined their husbands in the demonstrations and the strikers' refusal to work under the new $5 per day wage scale was a growing cause in Egypt tonight.

Several men were wounded in the affrays. The number was not definitely known, but included one ten year old boy and at least six other men. None was in serious condition.

Mine Opens at Taylorville.

Meantime at Taylorville a thin trickle of coal was hoisted from one of the Peabody mines while the other three remained idle. Just 48 of the members of the four local unions who supply labor for these pits braved the picket lines, their fellows had established and reported for duty.

The protestors against the new scale were mute and no skull crackings nor slugginge were reported. Five men, charged with using abusive language to those who wished to work, were arrested, but this was the sole trouble.

Order prevailed both in the morning when the men went to work and this evening when they came up the shaft and went to their homes. About 800 pickets stood silently by this evening when the 48 miners left No. 9 mine gates but there was no disorder.

In other sections no trouble was reported. Six large mines were operating in Saline county without interference. The sheriff reported no picketing at any Williamson county mine. One shaft resumed operation in Perry county and another will resume tomorrow.

But throughout the mine districts, sheriffs were recruiting deputies in fear of further clashes and to protect the miners who want to work. In addition to 200 deputies in Franklin county, state police were rushed there with orders to "keep the highways clear."

Officers Defy Miners.

"If miners from northern and central Illinois come to Franklin county, thirty thousand strong, they will find thirty thousand men to keep them out, State's Attorney Marion M. Hart and Sheriff Browning Robinson said, in a joint statement at West Frankfort this afternoon. 'They are not coming into Franklin county,'" they agreed.

In Williamson county 150 were deputized and the sheriff announced they would guard all mines. At Duquoin, local deputies with the aid of Illinois Central detectives, were ready to maintain order. Patrols guarded the roads into the town. Precautionary measures also were taken in Saline, Jackson and Perry counties.

At Taylorville, citizens and officials were congratulating Capt. C. J. Meacham of Decatur, who commands five national guard officers here for observation, for his handling of the picketing this morning.

Everybody Seems Happy.

The situation in that respect was as follows:

The mining company officials were smiling because some of their men had returned to work; the miners were happy because only 45 of their membership had deserted the ranks and dug coal; and the military was happy because order was maintained and the miners had kept their promise that the picketing would be peaceful.

Manager Argust was predicting confidently tonight that more men will appear at the shafts for work tomorrow. The miners believe further defection from their ranks will be small. Nevertheless, Capt. Meacham and his aides will be just as vigilant in the morning.

How Sales Fall Off.

The 122 warrants issued last Friday against leaders of the march on Taylorville were still in the hands of the sheriff but were supplemented today with 23 more. They will be served if the men named again enter Christian county.

How much the labor troubles since last March has affected domestic coal sales in Illinois was indicated by a statement of the Illinois Coal Operators association. According to the statement, Chicago, the world's largest coal market, bought two-thirds of its coal from Illinois mines in 1928, while this year two-thirds of the amount purchased came from outside the state. In addition the total used has fallen off considerably in the four years.

Plan Drive on Strikers.

West Frankfort, Ill., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Nine representatives of the international union have established offices here to direct the work of enforcing the new wage contract and the laws of the union.

A statement issued today declared "we want to warn those who would ignore our laws and obligations against picketing, that intimidation and coercion of our members in defiance of the joint contract and our laws must cease. The international union will strictly enforce the laws of its organization. Order is necessary and must be maintained."

Picket Men at Galesburg.

Galesburg, Ill., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—A permanent picket line was posted around the Knoxville Mining company property today when strikers learned that six men had gained access to the shafts and are working today. Strikers found that Carl Bowman, mine owner, hired new men yesterday and slipped the six into the property before the early pickets arrived at 4 a. m. They said that any attempts to hoist coal will be prevented. The mine normally employs about fifty men, and is non-union.

At Alpha the Galesburg picketers found but two men attempting to work. Both were persuaded to leave. No picket line was left.

Fulton County Mines Close.

Canton, Ill., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Every coal mine in Fulton county was closed today after a visit of pickets. More than 200 carloads of men asked the aid of men working in independent mines, all of whom agreed to quit work until such time as an amicable adjustment of the present wage controversy is made. A massmeeting in a local park was attended by more than 1,200 of the local workmen.

Return to Work at Duquoin.

Duquoin, Ill., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Two hundred miners employed at the Pyramid strip mine near Pinckneyville voted this afternoon to go back to work tomorrow morning after several weeks' strike after ratification of the new wage scale. Two hundred men of the United Electric Coal company strip mine west of Duquoin resumed work today.

These actions restore normal labor situation in Perry county and no further interruption is anticipated. The only mine in the Duquoin area striking is Traux-Traer strip mine at De Soto.

BANKER STILL MISSING; HUNT KIDNAP CLEWS

The disappearance of William A. Ernsting, 42 years old, vice president of the First State Bank of Bensenville, remained a mystery yesterday, 48 hours after he vanished from the loop. His wife, Mrs. Edna Ernsting, was under the care of a physician in the family home at 170 Mason street, Bensenville.

The family is certain the banker is a victim of kidnapers. Investigators for the Secret Six, crime fighting unit of the Chicago Association of Commerce, are working on the kidnaping theory.

W. F. Franzen, president of the bank in which Ernsting had been employed for 12 years, said an examination revealed his accounts to be in perfect order. No ransom demand has been received at the home.

Ernsting came to Chicago Saturday morning to visit the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, through which his bank cleared its transactions, and W. H. Fisher, attorney for the bank. He left Mr. Fisher's office to consult Attorney George P. Burgess on an impending foreclosure. He did not meet Attorney Burgess.

DOCTORS CHARGE U. OF C. CLINICS HURT PRACTICE

Complaints that the University of Chicago clinics have been interfering with the private practice of members of the Chicago Medical society have been received verbally by officers of the society, according to Dr. Charles B. Reed, secretary of the public relations committee of the organization.

"The verbal complaints have been that the University of Chicago clinics are treating without charge numbers of patients who could afford to pay," Dr. Reed said. "We have asked for written reports on this situation to bring it to a definite issue."

WOMEN FLYERS LAND AFTER 190 HOURS IN PLANE

Better Record by About Three Days.

New York, Aug. 22.—[Special.]—With a record of eight days, four hours, and five minutes of continuous flying behind them two tired women pilots landed their monoplane tonight at Curtiss-Wright airport at Valley Stream, L. I. Even then they did not land until C. S. Casey Jones, manager of the airport, ordered them down. Their Whirlwind motor was still going well.

The flyers, Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden of Baltimore and Mrs. Frances Marsalis of New York, were even considering a flight to Cleveland for the opening of the air races earlier in the day. The girls believed that they could continue another week, although during the four fuel contacts today they sent word to the ground that things were beginning to get monotonous.

Travel 17,000 Miles.

The flyers exceeded the women's refueling duration record, made at Los Angles by Miss Bobby Trout and Miss Edna May Cooper, by more than seventy-three hours. Since they took off a week ago Sunday the two flyers have made seventy-seven contacts with the refueling plane flown by Stuart Reiss. Their engine had burned 2,145 gallons of fuel and had consumed about twenty gallons of oil. Their Curtiss Thrush plane had covered about 17,000 miles in their merry go round over the flat Long Island countryside.

Although both flyers appeared in good health when they brought the plane down at 6:05 o'clock, a few minutes later Mrs. Thaden sat down suddenly on the running board of a cab and said she felt faint. A doctor was summoned. He stated that Mrs. Thaden was not ill but was suffering from fatigue.

All Right, He Reports.

"She will be all right tomorrow," he said.

Mrs. Marsalis was the first to climb stiffly from the closed cabin after they landed.

"Give me a hand, Casey," she called to Jones who stood by the door, "I am not so sure of my legs. It has been so many days since I have been on them.

"I am glad to be back on terra firma," she said, "but I am not so firm about it at that."

Mrs. Thaden asked first of all for a cigaret. She is eager to get to her home in Baltimore where her husband, Herbert Thaden, airplane engineer and designer, has been left in charge of their two year old son. Thaden today suggested to Casey Jones that it might be a good thing for both the girls to end the flight.

Going to Air Races.

Charles Gale, representing the National Aeronautical association was on hand to receive the barograph which will be sent to the bureau of standards for authentication. After resting a day or two the girls plan to fly to Cleveland to attend the national air races.

12 ARE INJURED AS BUS CRUSHES HALTED TRUCK

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 22.—(AP)—A dozen passengers were injured, two of them seriously, tonight when a Great Eastern stage bus, bound from Cleveland to Detroit, struck a truck with two trailers that had stopped for repairs along a highway south of the city.

The list of injured included Mrs. Maybelle French, Chicago; Miss Mary Curran and Miss Mary Louise Kaine, Pittsburgh, in serious condition with internal injuries; Frank Etter, driver of the truck, broken arm, and Mrs. M. F. Cummings, 30, New York, and Mrs. Hattie Lewis, 48, Los Angeles, minor injuries.

Etter said he had stationed a man with a flashlight back of his stalled truck. Witnesses said the bus driver apparently was blinded by the lights of an approaching car. There were 25 passengers on the bus.

The bus driver, D. R. Slocum of Cleveland, was held for investigation.

600 Alberta Coal Miners Settle Half Year Strike

BLAIRMORE, Alta., Aug. 22.—(AP)—A six months' strike in the Crow's Nest coal fields by 600 men has been settled, it was learned today. The settlement was reached after a conference attended by Premier Brownlee of Alberta and officials of the Mine Workers' Union of Canada, as well as company officials. The terms were not revealed. The strike was called as a protest against wage reductions and working conditions.

Prosecutor Calls Bain and Aids Thieves as He Opens Final Argument in Trial

John Bain and his associates were repeatedly called thieves by Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber as he opened the final arguments yesterday in the trial of Bain, his sons, Robert A. and John H. Bain, and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, on charges of conspiracy growing out of the crash of the Bain bank chain on June 9, 1931.

EDWIN J. RABER.

Bain was not in court to hear himself attacked. The other three defendants were present before Judge John M. O'Connor, who is hearing the case without a jury, but Bain was at home with bronchial trouble, "dangerously near pneumonia," his attorney, Francis X. Busch, said.

Busch Assails Prosecutor.

Attorney Busch on the opening day used little of the day and a half allotted to him for argument. He made a short statement when Prosecutor Raber finished his opening attack and before assistant prosecutors took up the cudgels. Mr. Busch will continue today. Yesterday he said in part:

"I want to show that Mr. Raber has not been able to talk from the record. He has been on this case for so long that he has certain ideas of what the record ought to show, and it is these that he preaches. From his attitude of citing suspicious circumstances, one would believe that one was in a French court. American jurisprudence places the burden of proof upon the prosecution, and not upon the defense."

Assistant State's Attorneys Harold Keele and Henry Seyforth aided Mr. Raber in the presentation of the state's argument.

Insolvent in 1929, He Says.

Prosecutor Raber charged that the Bain banks were actually insolvent in 1929, and that the conspiracy with which the defendants are charged began then, with the object of keeping them open.

"The Bain banks were doomed in 1929 when the clearing house report was made which showed that the Drexel-Western company [a Bain concern] assets consisted entirely of mortgages and contracts bought from John Bain and his piratical wrecking crew," Prosecutor Raber shouted. "The clearing house report showed that the West Englewood bank had enough bad assets at that time to make the bank insolvent, and all the banks had a total of $2,400,000 in assets which the clearing house declared worthless.

"Why was it that John Bain took Deneen [former Senator Charles S. Deneen] in to see the state auditor and the clearing house people? John Bain owed the Continental bank $1,200,000 at that time. Everybody knew there would be a collapse of the Bain banks if they were thrown out of the clearing house.

Fight to Keep Banks.

"It's perfectly evident that pressure was brought to bear to keep these banks open in order that John Bain's personal debts might be collected.

"Then there came the time that they had to throw out that $1,500,000 of losses or get out of the clearing house. I say here that the criminal conspiracy started when they built up the Auburn Park bank [that it might remain in the clearing house and clear for the rest of the Bain chain], taking $300,000 in rotten assets out and spreading them through the other banks.

"Bain wrote a letter representing his banks as being in the clear. He never sent it to the clearing house because a verbal agreement made it unnecessary. Bain knew at that time that he couldn't close his doors because of this criminal conspiracy. He hoped against hope that a real estate upturn, or death, would come to relieve him.

Tells of Loss on Notes.

"He wants you to believe that it was a malicious act of the Continental bank that closed his chain, but really the Continental had better reason to wish him to remain open than any one else. They are now out $700,000 on John Bain's personal notes and $200,000 on other notes that were not brought out here.

"I had a hard time drawing this indictment to hold the case within certain limits and yet bring out the whole picture. I never saw such rottenness, such a betrayal of people, such bringing of influence against the state auditor to allow Bain to continue in operation. I say no banker was ever as reprehensible as this banker. The penalty in no way meets the facts."

Charge of $40,000 Steal.

Prosecutor Raber in beginning his final argument opened fire on the alleged "$40,000 steal," referring to the evidence that Bain withdrew that amount in cash from his banks within ten days before they closed.

"The transaction shows that Bain deliberately planned, while his banks were tumbling, to have some money at the finish," Raber said. "It amounts to a direct steal. The transaction shows that Bain deliberately put himself in a position to do it. But he covered up the mortgage sale whereby he accomplished this action, so far as his own banks were concerned. The transaction shows he covered up so well that the steal cannot be discovered by an audit of his own books."

Description of Deal.

The transaction, as described by witnesses during the trial, was as follows: Bain bought the equity in the so-called Montgomery Ward building, at 63rd street and Western avenue, from William McAskill, a contractor, for $5,000. On May 28, 1931, he sold a second mortgage on the building, for $40,000, to John Bain, Inc. The money was paid to him in $10,000 installments, of which he received the last late on June 8, the day before the bank chain crashed. Although McAskill got none of the money, John H. Bain signed his name to receipts for the money, and later the younger Bain, McAskill testified, asked the contractor to sign the receipts in person.

"This building was occupied by Montgomery Ward & Co. for only one year," Prosecutor Raber continued. "Bain used the name of Montgomery Ward to lend an air of respectability to the transaction.

"At the time that John Bain, Inc., was disposing of this mortgage and giving Bain cash for it, its own account was overdrawn $160. The banks themselves were in such a condition that they had no liquid collateral of any kind, yet Bain was taking $40,000 in currency out of them. It was a curious arrangement. Bain couldn't take money directly from the banks, yet he managed to grab as much cash as possible while the ship was sinking.

A Question for Defense.

"The Foreman banks didn't close without warning on June 6 [1931]. There were probably long conferences of bankers, and Bain must have had at least an inkling of the situation. On June 8 it looked to Bain as if doomsday was here. On June 9, with the slightest little kick, his banks went tumbling down. That's why he got currency on that last day instead of redepositing it in his banks. I want Attorney Busch to explain why Bain didn't put the money back in the banks after they closed."

Then the prosecutor shifted his attack, saying:

"I want Attorney Busch to explain why the wise state auditor got so wise between June 2 and June 9 [1931], when he made reports on the Bain bank loans and discounts and their values. Take the Chicago Lawn bank, according to John Bain, as solid as the rock of Gibraltar.

"On June 9 the state auditor's report classified the notes in the bank as $92,000 acceptable, $48,000 slow, $89,000 doubtful, and $524,000 worthless, yet only a week before the amount of worthless notes in the bank was placed at $650. Look how these worthless loans jumped in a week from $650 to $524,000."

Discusses Stock Increase.

Then the prosecutor turned to the increase of capital stock in the Chicago Lawn bank from $300,000 to $700,000.

"It shows how Bain's crooked, conniving mind figured this thing out a year in advance. Although only $25,000 in cash was contributed to the stock increase, Bain apparently persuaded the state auditor that the entire increase had been produced in cash as required by law. I want Mr. Busch to explain how Bain put it over on the auditor.

"Here's the rub in that deal. They bought the property, on part of which the bank stood, assuming a $400,000 mortgage and paying $210,000 additional for the equity. Then they sold the corner lot of that piece for $275,000 and sold their equity in the remainder for $75,000. Instead of putting this transaction on the books, they put the whole thing into the profit account and left the real estate valuation unchanged. In other words, they carried their real estate as an asset on the books before the transaction at $210,000, and they still carried it at $210,000 after the transaction. That's where they got those big undivided profits."

Cites Bain Family Debts.

Then Prosecutor Raber took up several other transactions of Bain which he asserts are proof of the charges of conspiracy against Bain and his co-defendants.

He cited the debts owed the banks at the time of closing; $2,300,000 by the Bain family and the Lews company, of which the receiver has collected only $17,000; $2,500,000 owed by other Bain bank directors, on which the receiver has collected only $200,000; and $5,000,000 in loans to outsiders, of which the receiver has to date collected $2,500,000.

He discussed the complicated transaction in January, 1928, by which the Caledonia company, a Bain real estate trust, was enabled to pay a $35,000 dividend although it had only $290 in cash.

Tells About Dividends.

"This is the way they did it," Raber said. "John Bain, as president of the Caledonia company, sold to John Bain, as president of the Drexel-Western company, a $216,000 second mortgage which the Caledonia company owned on the Gage building. But the Drexel-Western company didn't have any money, and John Bain, as its head, paid to himself, as head of the Caledonia company, $65,000 in cash and $50,000 in Drexel-Western 'gold notes.'

"Now where did he get the $65,000? John Bain, as head of the Drexel-Western, put $65,000 worth of the gold notes in the hands of John Bain, as president of the banks, and took the cash. Then he proceeded to pay it to himself as head of the Caledonia company, and that paid the dividends. And not only that, but John Bain, as head of the Caledonia company, put the $50,000 in Drexel-Western notes in the banks too, and used the cash to take up stock of the Caledonia company, of which he was a heavy holder.

"And then I want to ask Mr. Busch about that period during which these thieves put note after note into the West Englewood bank, taking out $200,000 in cash with which to pay themselves as stockholders of the Caledonia company, in taking up the stock of that company."

Replies to Prosecutor.

Attorney Busch replied at length to Prosecutor Raber's charges concerning the "$40,000 steal," one of the transactions to which Judge O'Connor asked counsel to give particular attention in their arguments.

"I admit," Busch said, "that John Bain gave the directions for the purchase of this mortgage by John Bain, Inc., that Meacham [confidential employé of Bain] made arrangements for the placing of collateral in the banks to get the cash to pay John Bain, and I admit that all the money went to John Bain personally.

"But if he wanted to steal the money, he could have got it from downtown banks, he could have got it from his own banks, or in any number of ways. He didn't have to go into any such involved transaction as Mr. Raber has alleged.

Check for $10,000 Payment.

"The records show that a stub on the checkbook of John Bain, Inc., bore a record of a check for $10,000 to John Bain, for the final payment on this transaction. Perhaps this check was torn up, since it never appeared in evidence. The check, however, on which the money for that payment was withdrawn was made out to cash. This circumstance, that John Bain's name appears on the stub of the original check would lead you to believe that there was no concealment of this transaction about John Bain's office, that everybody there knew it was John Bain's mortgage, and everybody knew he was selling it."

State Senator Sentenced to Prison in Bank Failure

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Emory L. Coblentz, state senator from Frederick, Md., and president of the closed Central Trust Company of Maryland, was sentenced today to 18 months in the Maryland house of correction. He was convicted of receiving a deposit when he knew the institution was insolvent.

Burglars Loot Dr. Schacht's Castle of Silverware

NEURIPPIN, Germany, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Silverware and several articles of clothing were stolen today from Castle Guehlen, near Lindow, the home of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank. The robbers got in by means of a ladder.

SCIENTISTS TELL VIRTUES, FAULTS OF BIRTH CONTROL

Two Families Cost State $2,000,000 Yearly.

New York, Aug. 22.—[Special.]—The problem of birth control was discussed today by scientists from all sections of the world, gathered for the general assembly of the third international congress of eugenics.

The speakers told how birth control could be regarded both as a benefit and a menace to mankind.

Dr. Theodore Russell Roble of the Essex county mental hygiene clinic declared that poor heredity was the greatest single cause of mental deficiency [50 to 55 per cent]. He cited the case of two feeble minded American families, the offspring of which ultimately cost the government a total of $2,000,000 annually.

Present Methods Bad.

But birth control as now practiced, said Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, is distinctly bad, since the ablest and most intelligent are the ones who practice it, while the least fit do not. If not checked, he added, it may in the end prove a double edged sword, eliminating alike the fit and the unfit.

"The only permanent remedy," he added, "is the improvement and uplift of the character of the human race through prolonged and intelligent and humane birth selection aided by humane birth control.

"There are 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 mentally deficient in the United States and 14,000,000 mentally below average intelligence.

"The seemingly insignificant 2 per cent mental deficients will multiply three and one-half times while superior population goes backward in reproduction. The female intelligentsia marrying have only one-third as many children as other classes, and thus we are figuratively sterilizing the fittest."

Royalty's Birthrate High.

Dr. E. S. Goaney of Pasadena said that a recent estimate from Germany was that at least 100,000 women were made ineligible to motherhood there in private practice each year and it seemed likely that the number in the United States was greater.

Prof. Franco Savorgnan said that royalty was doing its share in keeping up the birthrate. The women whose names appear in the Almanach de Gotha, peerage Bluebook, he said, show a childless percentage of only 16.7 against 26.8 for others. In royal families he finds boys predominate in the ratio of 110 to every 100 girls born.

Dr. Renato Kehl of Rio de Janeiro, advocated that the state pay $50 monthly to parents of good heredity when a third child reaches its fifth birthday and $10 more for each child in addition. He proposed high inheritance taxes for parents with few children and reductions for large families. Dr. J. Sanders of Rotterdam suggested income tax rebates as a way to provide for education of children, saying that this is the psychological time to encourage the gifted to have more children.

Baby, Injured by Fall, Dies After Operation

Nadene Jacobi, 3 years old, 706 North 2d avenue, Maywood, died in the Passavant hospital yesterday after an operation. The little girl fractured her skull in a fall from a second story window on June 4. Recovered from this injury, she fell from her crib last month and received injuries which necessitated the operation.

ROBBED IN FRONT OF HOME.

William Hartman, 1146 South Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, reported to Sheffield avenue police yesterday that two men robbed him of $25 and a watch Sunday night as he left an apartment at 2735 Pine Grove avenue.

Raid Canteen at Convention of Spanish War Veterans

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—There was an undercurrent of sadness at the opening of the grand military ball at the 34th annual encampment of the United Spanish American war veterans in the Municipal auditorium tonight.

The uniforms were gay, the music romantic and stirring, but many a hero of Santiago and San Juan sighed as he paraded in the grand march.

Just thirty minutes before the leading couple began the march six federal prohibition agents raided "The U. S. Spanish War Veterans' Canteen," directly across from the Auditorium. They came upon a scene reminiscent of the days when "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" was sweeping the country.

Five Busy Bartenders.

Five bartenders were at work behind four bars which formed a magnificent mahogany enclosure. More than a hundred war veterans lined the bars, slaking their thirst with steins of a foaming brew which the prohibition agents themselves declared to be an excellent beverage of 5 per cent alcoholic content. A smiling chef wielded a sharp knife behind a mountain of 200 pounds of sausage and great rounds of cheese at a free lunch table.

In adjoining rooms, happy patrons sat at tables and partook of free "brotwurst," sandwiches and dipped their mustaches in the foaming steins. Praises were being sung to the brand of Milwaukee hospitality and the quality of Milwaukee beer.

Herded Into Street.

The agents quickly put an end to all this contentment. The customers were herded into the street. The five bartenders were arrested. Twenty-six half barrels of beer were dumped out. A crowd of 2,000 gathered in the street outside. There was some jeering at the agents but no disorder.

Officers of the Spanish-American War Veterans association said that the raided place had no official connection with the encampment. The "Canteen" had a brisk patronage. Every veteran attending meetings at the Auditorium passed its two entrances.

Other saloons continued to offer their wares near the Auditorium. These places, however, were fooling the patrons with near-beer, the prohibition agents said, and were offering such attractions as handsome barmaids to offset the innocuous character of the beverage they offered.

ROBBERS WOUND GROCER.

Edward D. Cloran, 51 years old, 18 West Huron street, was shot in the chin and slightly wounded yesterday when he resisted two robbers in a grocery at 661 North State street. The gunmen fled with $80 after firing the shot.

One of the many tasks of Sears Technicians is to know the very "insides" of merchandise . . . to know exactly why an article delivers superlative service.

Likewise, these experts, by testing merchandise, previous to purchase, see to it that items will not shrink, fade, stretch, warp, corrode, chip, peel, fall apart or give way under excessive and unusual strain.

Articles of merchandise are analyzed to the minutest details, placed under powerful testing machines, chemicals, microscopes, subjected to fire hazard tests, and what not.

M. A. RYERSON WILL DISPOSES OF $5,000,000

Institutions Get Estate on Death of Widow.

The will of the late Martin A. Ryerson, philanthropist and owner of one of the finest art collections in the United States, was filed in the Probate court yesterday. It disposes of an estate valued at between 5 and 7 million dollars. His widow, Mrs. Carrie Hutchinson Ryerson, is made the beneficiary for her lifetime of a trust created from most of the estate. She also receives outright bequests of $500,000 and the family home at 4851 Drexel boulevard.

The University of Chicago, the Field museum, and the Art institute ultimately will share about two-thirds of the total estate. The Art institute also will receive Mr. Ryerson's collections of paintings, sculpture, ivory and tapestries after Mrs. Ryerson's death, they being reserved "for her enjoyment" during her lifetime.

Receives $80,000 a Year.

The will ordered that the First Union Trust company as trustee of Mrs. Ryerson's life interest in the bulk of the estate shall pay her an annual income of $80,000. She also is made a joint executor of the estate with the trust company. To Mr. Ryerson's only other heir, a niece, Mrs. Julia Juhn of Ouchy, Switzerland, Mr. Ryerson gave $50,000 and an annuity of $20,000 from the trust income.

Upon Mrs. Ryerson's death the trust terminates and Mrs. Juhn will receive one-third of the principal. The remainder will be divided equally between the Field museum, the Art institute and Chicago university.

From the immediate estate the will provided that Harvard university, Kenyon college at Gambier, O., and the Little Sisters of the Poor in Chicago be given $25,000 each. Gifts of $10,000 each are made to the Orchestral association, Glenwood Manual Training school, Presbyterian hospital, Home for Crippled Children, Chicago Orphan asylum, Park Ridge School for Girls, Home for the Friendless, House of Good Shepherd, United Charities of Chicago, Chicago Sunday Evening club, and the Y. M. C. A.

Employés Are Remembered.

Two cousins, Francis D. Campeau, Grand Rapids, Ia., and Mrs. Sarah Campeau Hood, Fresno, Cal., receive bequests of $10,000 each. Two employés in Mr. Ryerson's office which he maintained to manage his own estate, Louis Bauer, and Albert L. Moss, also receive $10,000 each and a third, Clyde W. Allen, receives $3,000. Twelve family servants divide $22,500.

The will was admitted to probate in a brief hearing before Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner. Attorneys from the law firm of Scott, McLeish and Falk represented Mrs. Ryerson. They said that the estate was composed of about $3,000,000 realty and between $2,000,000 and $4,000,000 personalty.

Miss Mary Juhn, 5728 Blackstone avenue, a grandniece of Mr. Ryerson, was present during the proceedings. She is a post-graduate student in biology at the University of Chicago.

Leader in Lumber Business.

Mr. Ryerson died on Aug. 11, at the age of 75 years. He had been ill for several months. Born in Grand Rapids, Mich., he came to Chicago as a youth and became a leader in the lumber business here. He was a director of various banks and was noted for his interest in educational and charitable work.

He was a president of the board of trustees of the University of Chicago from its foundation until he resigned in 1922. He was an honorary president of the Art institute, and vice president of the Field museum, as well as an officer in many other institutions.

"Mr. Ryerson was one of the finest lay art connoisseurs in the country," said Dr. Robert B. Harshe, director of the Art institute yesterday.

His collections were world famous, Dr. Harshe said, adding that Mr. Ryerson's collections of 13th, 14th, and 15th primitives was one of the finest in the world. Many of Mr. Ryerson's masterpieces already are on display at the institute. One of these is Rembrandt's "Girl at the Open Half Door."

The will of Mrs. Leonora Brewer Cudahy disposing of her $350,000 estate was also approved by Caplan yesterday. After giving $50,000 trust funds to her four sons Mrs. Cudahy left her property to her husband, Edward, president of Callaghan & Co., law book publishers. Mrs. Cudahy died last July 10. She lived at 1501 State parkway.

SIMPSON ASKS COURT TO VOID BALLOTS OF 7,000

Attorney Urban A. Lavery, counsel for James Simpson Jr., requested Circuit Judge Thomas J. Lynch yesterday to purge from the Simpson-Ralph E. Church recount contest for the Republican nomination to congress from the Tenth district over 7,000 ballots which were cast in Cook county country towns by nonregistered voters, whether or not the voters' affidavits were of a voidable nature.

Earlier, Attorney Lavery had asked the court to sign an order specifying that a registration should have been held in the country towns as a prerequisite to the April primary. In submitting his second motion he said he was doing so in anticipation of an adverse ruling by the court on his first motion.

Simpson now has an official lead of 25 votes over Church. It was said by the attorneys that his lead will be increased by several hundred votes if the court signs the second order requested by Attorney Lavery.

300 Children Will Give Dance Program at Pier

An all dance program directed by Georgia Jesseph will be given by more than 300 children of the Civic theater on the Navy pier tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 and again on next Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock. The scene will be laid in France in 1737 when Louis XV. came from Versailles incognito to the Opera ball at Sevres. The authentic dances of the period, the allemande, branle, minuet, gavotte, pavanne, and others will be featured.

Negro Prima Donna Moves Into Exclusive District of New York

Residents Object

New York, Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Adelaide Hall, Negro prima donna of such musical comedies as "Brown Buddies" and the several editions of the "Blackbirds," has moved into her rambling $30,000 home on exclusive Kilmer road, Larchmont, "to live here ten years."

She has leased the property, much to the dismay of the white neighbors, who watched the Negro singer move in her furniture, her servants, her grandmother, mother, and husband, prepared for a long stay.

Mayor Monroe Stiner and neighbors said they planned to "bring pressure to bear" to get this "Harlem singer to change her mind," but Adelaide's mind stayed put. And there was no law to help the neighbors do anything about it.

"I'm a full fledged American Negro girl," she said. "If there's going to be any court fight I'm just waiting for a chance to put some of these new rich residents on the witness stand and ask them how their grandfathers spelled their names. I am descended from the Shinnecock Indians of Long Island and I am proud of it."

A MAGISTRATE MAKES A SPEECH BEFORE A JUDGE

Gets "Sympathy," but Little Else.

Judge Craig A. Hood held a cheerful discussion of the value of courtroom speeches as election material yesterday with one of his colleagues of the country town bench, Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter of Evanston. Magistrate Porter appeared before him as attorney for the Hardinge Oil Burner company to defend a suit to collect a $1,030 personal property tax bill for 1930 which the company has not paid.

JUDGE HOOD.

Judge Hood, who is city judge of Chicago Heights, is sitting in the Circuit court to hear tax matters. The suit was one brought by Attorney Lee La Rochelle, employed as a special assistant state's attorney to collect delinquent personal taxes.

Attorney Porter asserted that the appointment of special attorneys to collect taxes is illegal. The state's attorney, he asserted, should do the work. He charged that the taxpayers' money is being wasted by the process, since special attorneys' fees, he asserted, amount to 10 per cent of the collections. He asked that the suit against his client be dismissed because of the alleged illegality of the special tax attorney's position.

Sham, Says Prosecutor.

"This is simply a sham defense," replied Attorney La Rochelle. "The defense in this case came to me and asked me to compromise the suit in the way they used to do it, and I refused."

Attorney La Rochelle added that the appointment of himself and all other special tax attorneys, made by the county board, had been approved by the chief justices of both the Circuit and Superior courts, and that in addition all the special attorneys were sworn in as special assistant state's attorneys. Attorney Porter, however, repeated his charges, and said he would like to argue a special motion.

Judge Enters Discussion.

Judge Hood, who until this time had been leaning back in his chair in a contemplative mood, bent forward. His elbows on the bench and his chin in his hands, he smiled at Porter.

"Mr. Porter," he said, "for many years I've been familiar with country town politics. I'm from a country town myself, and I know how well your speech just now will be received by the newspapers and by your clients, and above all, by your constituents.

"But as to the legal aspects of it, I'm afraid the case has little merit. However, if you wish to make a special argument, I'll grant it to you on Friday."

Attorney Porter was smiling, too, by this time. He informed Judge Hood that he really wanted to try the case on its legal points, and asked leave to withdraw his remarks from the record.

"You needn't bother," said Judge Hood. "I understand perfectly."

Enters Tax Judgments.

Judge Hood yesterday entered a judgment of $1,183 for delinquent personal property taxes against the Abbott Irwin Coal company, 201 North Wells street, after a brief trial. He entered default judgments against the following defendants: Albaugh Dover company, 2100 South Marshall boulevard, $34,676; George W. Fretter, 7655 Greenview avenue, $846; Fuccloids company, 1549 Touhy avenue, $576; J. W. and M. W. Lowell, administrators of the estate of Nellie F. Lowell, $658; Hallenger Electric Hardware company, 6963 North Clark street, $564; P. V. Petroleum company, 310 South Michigan avenue, $1,137, and the Hermosa Bond and Mortgage company, 4350 Armitage avenue.

CERMAK SLIPS INTO BERLIN; HE'S "INCOGNITO"

Mayor Is to Work on World Fair Plans.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—Mayor Cermak of Chicago, exhausted by his strenuous traveling, slipped quietly into Berlin tonight with his party. Since the mayor of Berlin had surmised that Mayor Cermak wished to be "incognito," only the press welcomed him at the station.

When the chiefs of towns of central Europe call on each other, a complicated official protocol prevails. They do not take cognizance of visitors but give them the benefit of incognito liberty until formal announcements of their presence are made. The acting mayor of Berlin, however, sent a letter of welcome to Cermak. Tomorrow the mayors plan to exchange cards and visits.

This evening Mayor Cermak spoke of the Century of Progress in Chicago next year for inscription on wax records, which will be broadcast from all German stations Wednesday evening.

Completes Fair Arrangements.

While here Mayor Cermak will complete negotiations for forming a committee to assure participation of Germany at the World's Fair. The work of the committee was started by E. D. Langworthy, who spent a busy week in Berlin establishing contacts.

Tomorrow Mayor Cermak will be the guest of honor with Berlin's highest officials at the American club and the Carl Schurz association.

Interviewers are keeping the mayor busy reiterating that Chicago is not the crime center of the world and is no longer broke.

Tomorrow members of the Cermak party will devote some time to red tape, since their trunks are held in bond here and customs officials opine that presents which the mayor's party received in Czechoslovakia should be assessed.

Wins Poland to Fair.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

POZNAN, Poland, Aug. 22.—Mayor Cermak's forty-eight hour flying trip to Poland proved more successful in inducing Poland to participate in the 1933 Chicago World's Fair than years of correspondence.

The mayor of Poznan, former Secretary of the Interior Ratajski, during a luncheon given in honor of Mayor Cermak in the 700 year old city hall, announced today that Poland would officially participate in the fair. He said he regretted that the difficult economic situation would reduce the size of Poland's participation.

Cermak upon arriving here en route to Berlin was greeted by the mayor and Gov. Count Raczynski of the municipality. He later visited the famous Emperor William palace and sat upon the marble throne inside the $2,000,000 chapel, only twice visited by William during his régime.

The Chicago executive especially enjoyed the 100 year old wines offered at the luncheon and expressed the hope that every visitor to the fair would enjoy beer and light wines.

BREAK GROUND FOR COLUMBUS STATUE IN PARK

Ground was broken yesterday afternoon for the foundation of the statue of Christopher Columbus in Grant park, the northeast corner of the inner drive and 12th street. Among those who attended were Antonio Ferme, acting Italian consul in Chicago, and Judges Francis Borelli, John Sbarbaro and John Lupe. The statue will be the gift of Italians in Chicago and will be unveiled on Aug. 3 next year. It will cost $50,000.

Divorce Suit Charges Wife Tortured Children

Frank Pacer, 5330 Merrimac avenue, yesterday filed suit for divorce from his wife, Jennie, alleging she tortured his two children by a former marriage by placing hot knives against their tongues. These alleged acts caused Mrs. Pacer to be placed in the House of Correction for a year by Municipal Judge Joseph A. Graber recently. The bill also charged habitual drunkenness.

RAID 2 RENO CLUBS, SEIZE LIQUOR, WINE, AND TEAR OUT BARS

Reno, Nev., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Divorce seekers of thirsty habits were deprived of two favorite rendesvous here today in the midst of a heat wave by federal prohibition agents. The New York club and the Heidelburg inn were denuded of every fixture by the raiders.

The Black Camel, elaborate $25,000 bar in the New York club, first was raided. The officers arrested two bartenders after purchasing a round of drinks, and then took out the bar, several cases of champagne, wine, whisky and gin. The Black Camel was decorated with sad eyed camels, with a brilliant red and blue mosque behind the bar emphasizing the aridity motif.

A large group was dancing in the club when the raiders entered.

The Heidelberg was a popular beer resort four miles south of Reno where many Reno divorcees have carved initials on the rough table tops.

DR. MILLSTONE, PLASTIC SURGEON, IS SUED BY WIFE

Mrs. Anna Millstone yesterday filed suit for divorce from Dr. Henry J. Millstone, plastic surgeon, of 742 Marquette road, charging cruelty, and an hour later Attorney Frank T. Sharp representing Mrs. Millstone, sought a default hearing before Judge Denis J. Normoyle. When the judge learned that the bill had been filed only a few minutes before he refused to hear the case.

Dr. Millstone lost his license to practice medicine after hearings before the state board of education and registration last winter. A year ago Mrs. Millstone filed suit for divorce after causing Dr. Millstone's arrest with a nurse, Miss Emily Ranus, whom he employed, but later the couple became reconciled. Two years ago Mrs. Millstone filed a suit for separate maintenance but this too was dismissed following a reconciliation.

Last evening Dr. Millstone denied in telephone conversations that he was being sued. Attorney Sharp, however, identified his client.

SCRAP BATHTUB! COST'S TOO HIGH, URGES SEN. LONG

Burning of State School Books Starts Quiz.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Bathtubs of the rich and school books of the poor became burning issues in Louisiana today.

Bathtubs—Senator Huey P. [Call me Kingfish] Long began his campaign to decentralize wealth by replacing "gold and silver bathtubs with homemade showers."

Textbooks—Senator Long's enemies want to know why school books, bought by the state are being burned in many school districts and replaced by more state-purchased books.

Senator Long in campaigning for his candidate John H. Overton for United States senator, declared that there were too many bathtubs in the homes of Americans and that they ought t be thrown out.

Bar Sale of Bathtubs.

"This is true," he said, "in the homes of the rich. They spend thousands of dollars on bathtubs in all kinds of colors and with all kinds of trinkets. There ought to be a law prohibiting the sale of bathtubs. We've got to take some of this money away from the rich. They spend a lot of it foolishly in washing themselves in silver-lined bathtubs. A poor man has got no business with a bathtub. A little shower bath hung up there, just a little spigot to pour water on you can be built for a fifty cent piece—four bits. If you've got to wash, which I concede is necessary, rig yourselves up a homemade spigot and shower."

Senator Long forgot to mention that his residence in New Orleans is equipped with several magnificent bathrooms.

Find Textbooks Burned.

The textbook investigation is being demanded to determine in how many parishes the practice of throwing away and destroying practically new school books, bought and paid for by the state of Louisiana, is in vogue.

In Tangipahoa parish between 4,000 and 10,000 books, many of them almost new and of current issue, were found burned and partially buried.

John Brazil, drayman of Amite, admitted hauling the books to the dumping ground on orders of the secretary of the parish school board, who, he says, instructed him to haul the books away and "bury them deep."

Huey P. Long's free textbooks have cost the state several million dollars. It is claimed that thousands of books have been destroyed in other parishes and that book sellers have grown rich in supplying new books for those destroyed.

SUPERHIGHWAYS URGED TO EXPAND USES OF AUTOS

Massen Pleads for State Aid in Cities.

The use of automobiles can be expanded in Chicago, Ald. John A. Massen [48th], chairman of the city council traffic committee, declared yesterday, by giving motorists the same facilities in the metropolitan region that they now enjoy in rural regions. He would do this by building superhighways with state aid from the gasoline tax fund.

Traffic in the Greater Chicago area can no longer be considered as a local problem, according to the alderman. It is an integral part of the state highway problem, since studies reveal that a large proportion of the highway traffic has its terminals deep in city territory. And to handle this traffic, he said, the superhighway type of construction is required.

May Pay for Themselves.

While recognizing that this type of construction is expensive, the alderman believes that there is a "very real possibility" that superhighways may pay for themselves.

These conclusions were submitted by Ald. Massen yesterday in a preliminary report on his three year survey of all phases of the traffic problem in the metropolitan area. He made his report to the Illinois commission on future road programs, which is engaged now in the formulation of a highway building program that embraces Chicago as well as the rest of the state.

"A substantial percentage of highway traffic entering the city is bound for a relatively small area commonly known as the central business district," the report states. "This confirms the belief that provision should be made for uniform and adequate routes directly to the heart of the community.

Accommodations Inadequate.

"City routes which carry so large a proportion of the total traffic of the state are found to afford very inferior accommodations so far as facility of movement is concerned. Furthermore, those portions of routes with a superhighway type of construction show an efficiency which is far superior to that afforded by normal grade routes.

"The problem in the Chicago region, as in every area of dense urban congestion, is the segregation of through traffic from local traffic. This requires a type of construction in urban districts which is not at all needed in the open country. In brief, the by-pass problem of the state highway in relation to the small city or village becomes the overpass or underpass problem in the metropolis."

The report calls attention to the fact that tens of thousands of citizens residing in the Chicago region do not own automobiles, and that other tens of thousands of citizens who do own them do not use them fully, because existing congestion precludes their efficient use.

Country Owns More Autos.

"It is significant," the report relates, "that in most rural districts in Illinois there is one automobile for every four inhabitants while in Chicago there is only one for every six. The average resident of Chicago is no less prosperous than the average resident in other parts of the state, nor is his desire to own and use an automobile less.

"These facts reveal an opportunity to stimulate a great increase in user revenue through the provident expenditure of highway funds in the development of traffic facilities which the millions of Illinois citizens residing in the Chicago area need desperately. A liberal treatment of the present and future traffic needs of Chicago and of the surrounding metropolitan area is not only justified but wise.

"Hard roads made possible the automobile and its millions in annual revenue. If city routes can be given a reasonable proportion of the efficiency now possessed by the ordinary rural highways a new era in urban automobile use will be introduced and thus the investment will be directly reproductive."

In attacking the congestion problem from another angle the report states that any limitations placed upon the facility of movement of automobiles causes a direct economic loss.

Congestion Cutting Speed.

"Increasing traffic congestion on city routes will lower their average speeds," the report states, "It should be clear by experience in Chicago and in the other great cities that the battle to give major trunk routes in urban areas something of that degree of efficiency now common on open highways will never be won through the development of surface routes. Their inherent friction is too high.

"The answer is ultimately and inevitably the elevated or depressed superhighway type of construction with continuous grade separation."

In a plea for more state aid in building highways in the Chicago region Ald. Massen pointed out that Chicago and the other cities of Illinois have contributed millions of dollars annually to the development of the rural highway system. Special attention should be paid now, he said, to the cities of the state.

Weigh Club Proposal.

Superhighway construction is being considered also by a committee appointed by the West Central association to study the proposal of the Chicago Motor club that Gov. Emmerson request a loan of $8,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to start work on an elevated highway west from the loop. The first meeting will be held at noon today in Eitel's summer garden in the North Western railroad station.

The estimated cost of the high speed, safe superboulevard is now placed by Hugh Young, chief engineer for the Chicago plan commission, at $16,000,000, as compared with his estimate of $22,000,000 during the boom days when materials, real estate, and labor were more expensive.

The Chicago Motor club plan, as submitted to Gov. Emmerson, calls for an appropriation of $8,000,000 from the state's share of the motor fuel excise in addition to the loan of $8,000,000 from the government. To fulfill the requirements of the congressional act creating the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the club proposes a 10 cent toll on the superhighway so that the federal investment will be "self-liquidating."

"INVADERS" TAKE TOWN IN ITALIAN WAR MANEUVERS

King and Mussolini Watch Martial Games.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Aug. 23.—Premier Mussolini's military maneuvers, now going on under a blazing sun in the hills of Umbria, crowded all other news off the front pages of Rome's newspapers today.

Large black faced type signaled the importance of this year's war games and scores of correspondents have been mobilized to send back detailed accounts of the fighting between 50,000 men—the "reds" and the "blues."

King Observes Games.

The articles are interspersed with photographs of machine gun companies deployed along roads, artillery batteries and anti-aircraft guns in action and other realistic views which would give the casual visitor the impression that hostilities were actually occurring.

King Victor Emmanuel is observing the games from general headquarters and today Mussolini also broke a short vacation to look on.

In today's activities the invading "red" army, employing fast motorized units, advanced south over the mountains, taking Castiglione, one of the objectives in the advance toward Perugia.

In addition to these central maneuvers some 200,000 other soldiers are playing at war in local areas on a divisional scale.

Budget Shows Deficit.

The budgetary problems of Guido Jung, newly appointed finance minister, began with the month of July, first month of the current fiscal year, when, according to figures announced today, the total treasury deficit amounted to 251,000,000 lire [about $13,500,000].

These figures add to a deficit of 4,274,000,000 lire [$225,000,000] with which the last fiscal year closed. The total of internal public debts is now placed at $5,000,000,000.

Another of Sig. Jung's problems is to complete the absorption of the Banca Commerciale's frozen industrial assets by organizing an institution corresponding to the Reconstruction Finance corporation in the United States.

SPECIAL HONORS WILL BE PAID DREYFUS OF FRENCH TREASON CASE

PARIS, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Lieut. Col. Alfred Dreyfus, central figure in the sensational treason case of nearly 40 years ago, has not been forgotten in his declining years. Dreyfus, now living in retirement at the age of 73, was pleased today to hear that the League for Human Rights will place a slab to commemorate the spot at Port Halliguen where he stepped ashore after serving five years of a life sentence on Devil's island on conviction of treasonable acts.

As a young French officer, Dreyfus was accused in 1894 of selling French military secrets to Germany and of being in the hire of the German government. He was found guilty on highly questionable evidence and was interned in French Guiana.

With such men as Georges Clemenceau and Emile Zola convinced of his innocence, public opinion at length turned in his favor and he was granted a new trial in 1899. He was again found guilty, but a sympathetic French president pardoned him. In 1906 the court of appeals reversed the original conviction.

GIRL FOUND DEAD IN HOME; HUNT HER SWEETHEART

Capt. Thomas Duffy of the Cragin station started an investigation last night into the death of Miss Theresa Tipolt, 21 years old, of 2102 North Karlov avenue. She was found dead in bed yesterday afternoon by her brother-in-law, John Seider, a baker, upon his return from work. Her face was discolored, and police said they would try to ascertain if she died of poisoning. Capt. Duffy ordered the arrest of Miss Tipolt's sweetheart, known only as Bob. Miss Tipolt's sister, Seider's wife, was in Milwaukee at the time the death was discovered, and was notified to return home. She is said to know the sweetheart's identity.

Elgin Hears Ex-Student Confess Holdup Killing

Henry Atkinson, 27 years old, former Elgin High school student, yesterday confessed the murder of Herman Holtz, Elgin bookkeeper, in a holdup July 31. Atkinson is being brought back to Elgin from Seattle, Wash., and, according to word received in Elgin, confessed on the train. Atkinson and his companion, Donald Skeene, 30 years old, were arrested at Seattle a week ago.

JAPAN TO LAUNCH NEW INVASION OF JEHOL PROVINCE

Aims to Make Territory a Part of Manchuria.

TOKIO, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Expectations that Japanese troops will be moving against Chinese armies again this fall received semi-official confirmation today on the heels of dispatches telling of a sharp battle near Peipiao, in Jehol, the Chinese province which lies west of Manchuria.

A foreign office spokesman intimated that the favorable autumn weather probably will see determined Japanese military action on Jehol.

The purpose of this expedition would be to establish Jehol unquestionably as a part of the newly created state of Mancoukuo, which was set up by power of Japanese arms to rule Manchuria.

Army Denies Plan for Invasion.

Hand in hand with the foreign intimation of a campaign this fall came a denial from the war office that the Japanese army had assumed the offensive in Jehol or that any large scale invasion of the province was contemplated at this time.

The clash near Peipiao, in which the Japanese suffered two casualties and the Chinese losses were reported to be heavy, was described here as a minor local affair.

Several hundred Chinese regulars took part in the action, Japanese correspondents at Chinchow, Manchuria, said in their dispatches. The war office announced that a Japanese detachment had pursued the Chinese to Nanling, five miles northwest of Chaoling Temple railway station in eastern Jehol, and subsequently returned to Choaling. The war office said this detachment constituted the only Japanese troops in Jehol.

Diet Is Reconvened.

The diet was reconvened today for its third extraordinary session of the year, but it will not get down to important business until Thursday, when the government's program will be submitted by the premier, the foreign minister and the finance minister.

The foreign minister, Baron Yasyua Uchida, will restate Japan's defense of her course in Manchuria and China.

At its opening session the diet voted $42,240,000 for projects to relieve distress among peasants, fishermen and small merchants.

JUGO-SLAVIA CHARGES ITALY AND HUNGARY WITH TRAIN BOMBINGS

[Copyright: 1932; By the New York Times.]

BELGRADE, Aug. 23.—The government organ Vrem today charged Italy and Hungary with complicity in the recent bombings of railway coaches and public buildings in Jugo-Slavia. The paper said the bombs were prepared under superintendence of Bulgarian and Italian military experts and were smuggled into Jugo-Slavian territory with the help of Italian and Hungarian officials.

The newspaper said Croatian emigrants are stationed in Hungarian villages all along the border under official Hungarian protection and that centers of a "Croatian terrorists' emigration movement" have been discovered.

The paper holds Hungary and Italy responsible if further outbreaks of terrorism occur in Jugo-Slavia.

NORTH SIDE BEACH THEFT SUSPECT SLASHES CAPTORS

Bathers at the Foster avenue beach scattered in fright late last night when a young man accused of stealing a purse slashed wildly with a knife at two youthful swimmers who had seized him. They were taken to the Edgewater hospital for treatment of minor cuts.

The disturbance started when, it is alleged, Bert Walker, 19 years old, stole a purse belonging to Miss Mary Hayne, also 19, of 5239 Winthrop avenue. The purse had been concealed beneath her street clothes piled on the beach.

Her cries attracted Walter Vette, 18 years old, of 837 Ainslie street, and Sidney Medelman, 15, of 5050 Sheridan road. They seized Walker, who drew a knife. Vette was cut about the face and hands. Medelman was slashed on the left leg. They held Walker until a Lincoln park policeman arrived. Walker was locked up at the Summerdale station.

Bandits Chloroform Bank Cashier and Empty Vault

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

HELSINFORS, Aug. 22.—Masked gangsters today looted the Savings Bank of Lapua village, the headquarters of the Finnish Fascist organization. They chloroformed the woman cashier and emptied the vault. The bandits escaped, pursued by several army planes and by troops.

BRITISH SOCIETY GIRL ARRESTED AS DRUG ADDICT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Brenda Dean Paul, 22 year old daugher of Sir Aubrey Dean Paul and a prominent figure in Mayfair society, today was ordered held in custody of police without bail for a week on a charge of illegal possession of drugs. The society girl previously had been convicted under the drug act and had been committed to the care of a physician for a cure for addiction to morphine.

BRENDA PAUL.

Miss Paul was arrested at Waterloo station last night after she had gone to a check room to claim a parcel left under another name. Police had already confiscated the package which contained five tablets of morphine totaling 2¼ grains.

She was released by police on a $100 bond last night. The bond was provided by her brother and Miss Paul spent the night in a nursing home. She was refused her liberty today until the next hearing, when, police said, another charge would be substituted.

Miss Paul's latest escapade was a flight to Paris in search of a job in the movies. She was found, penniless, by her fiancé, Derek Burr, a young operator on the London stock exchange.

DIRIGIBLE AKRON DAMAGED AS IT STARTS FLIGHT

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 23 [Tuesday].—(AP)—Commander Alger H. Dresel, U. S. N., of Lakehurst, N. J., told the Philadelphia Record today the giant air cruiser Akron was damaged last night when being taken from its hangar preparatory to a regular night training cruise.

Commander Dresel said the handling beams struck the rear underfins, but the exact amount of damage will not be ascertained until later today.

The accident occurred about 7:30 p. m. In addition to the regular crew, Admiral Lucius A. Bostwick, commandant of the Philadelphia navy yard, was aboard.

RUSSIA MASSES 100,000 PEASANTS TO GATHER GRAIN

MOSCOW, Aug. 22.—(AP)—"Shock brigaders" numbering 100,000 peasants were reported organized in the Ukraine today to complete the grain harvest, which is still far in arrears as compared to last year. Kharkov dispatches told of the mobilization, declaring that the peasants were answering the call of the official newspaper Pravda for more speed in completing the harvest before cool weather comes.

Local communist party organs throughout the grain producing region mustered the best and most diligent workers in the villages and collective farms to set the pace of a vigorous drive for a 100 per cent harvest in the sown area.

Secret police and local authorities in a decree issued by the government tonight were ordered to adopt energetic measures to stamp out private speculation in foodstuffs. Another decree issued by the central executive committee of the Communist party and the council of people's commissars provided for prison terms of five to ten years without the right of appeal for those convicted of the offense.

FIND HIGHWOOD BANK DIRECTORS WITHDREW CASH

Auditors working under the direction of State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county have discovered evidence that heavy withdrawals were made by the directors and their relatives shortly before the closing of the Highwood State bank of Highwood, Ill., some time ago. This announcement was made yesterday by State's Attorney Smith.

The prosecutor started an investigation last week when a number of depositors charged that directors of the bank and their relatives knew that the bank was to close and withdrew large amounts. A preliminary examination of the bank records has disclosed evidence to support this charge, Mr. Smith said.

A definite report will be made next Saturday which will give the names of the directors and their relatives and the amounts withdrawn, Mr. Smith said.

"EVERYTHING TO SELL" WHEN U. S. BECOMES TRADER

Railroads Complaining of Barge Competition.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—How to get Uncle Sam out of business in competition with private enterprise and to reduce the armies of governmental pay rollers occupied the attention today of the Shannon congressional committee.

Protests of manufacturers, business men, and general industries that they are being pushed against the wall through competition from government boards and bureaus financed by taxpayers' money were presented by the Federation of American Business, supplementing the brief it filed at the Kansas City hearings last month, citing more than 100 lines in which bureaucracy has encroached upon trade, commerce, and industry as rivals of private citizens.

It set up a picture of Uncle Sam in the delicatessen business as a dealer in sausage and pickles, as a speculator in wheat and cotton where in three years the government dropped 500 million dollars of tax money, as a coffee merchant, and as a maker of rubber stamps and mattresses, to say nothing of blossoming out as a merchant prince with a string of department stores at penitentiaries and army posts.

Waterways Attacked.

Most of the day was devoted to an attack by the railroads upon the Inland Waterways corporation, the government barge line which operates on the Warrior, Mississippi, and Illinois rivers. A brief was presented from the Association of Railway Executives, arguing that the government should get rid of the barge line as an unfair competitor of the rails. Towards the close of the transportation hearing, it developed a pronounced anti-waterway tendency.

Porter R. Leach, director of organization of the Federation of American Business, presented new evidence of governmental forays into private business. It was in the shape of letters from Chicago manufacturers and others representing such varied lines as shoe manufacturing, building supplies, produce, publishing, paper and pulp, and manufacture of fertilizer.

Bruce Dwinell of Chicago, general solicitor of the Rock Island lines, made the leading argument in behalf of the Association of Railway Executives against the barge lines. Members of the congressional committee present were Joseph B. Shannon, Kansas City, chairman; Samuel B. Pettengill, South Bend, and Robert F. Rich, Woolrich, Pa.

Makes Rubber Stamps.

Indications that the government is now making its own rubber stamps for rubber stamp congressmen were contained in one letter filed by Leach. It was from the International Stamp Manufacturers' association through its secretary, James A. Greig, and it said several departments of the government are now making their own rubber stamps in competition with the private industry. It was a typical letter.

"Both the departments of agriculture and of the interior at Washington do this," it said; "also a couple of years ago the depot quartermaster of the army at Jeffersonville, Ind., put in a rubber stamp manufacturing plant. Automobile license plates are manufactured in competition with our industry by convicts in the city of Washington, which is under the district government which is a branch of the United States government."

As a coal merchant in the Canal Zone, the government has made "an enormous sum," according to the National Coal association. It wrote that the government will not lease space to private coal men, "although it leases space to oil companies and even to foreign owned oil companies."

States Making Cement.

The cement industry sent in testimony, through Mr. Leach, that while the federal government has not yet sought to enter the cement business, the states of Michigan and South Dakota, which have operated cement plants, have tossed millions of taxpayers' money away in competing with private business. The letter said South Dakota lost $400,000 in operating its state cement plant, while in Michigan the plant cost $500,000, and another $200,000 was spent, and last year the legislature ordered it closed and offered it for sale. If not sold by April 1, 1934, it is to be abandoned.

One communication from the National Fertilizer association said that although the ten year effort is still going on to put the government into the fertilizer business at Muscle Shoals there is no excuse for it, as private industry has capacity to produce twice the amount of fixed nitrogen that will be used in the U. S. this year and two and one-half times the total amount of all fertilizer that will be used. The letter said fertilizer prices are only about 33 per cent of 1919.

The Federation of American Business, which has branches in thirty-four states, reports it has been swamped with material sent in by victims of government competition since the Shannon committee opened its hearings in July.

"A strange new mental attitude is unfolding in America," said Director Leach. "It is political only in the sense that it is putting the mark of traitor upon those men who are constantly forcing our government further from the paths laid out by the builders of our constitution."

Says Barges Lose Money.

Opening their attack on the federal barge line, the railroads declared that if the federal barges were operated privately as they are by the federal government they would have been in the hands of a receiver from the start. Mr. Dwinell, in his argument, said that since 1924 the total investment in the barge line is about 24 million dollars. He submitted figures to the effect that in eight years the barges have operated at a net loss of $276,421, although no taxes are paid and the barge line is free from the regulations imposed upon the railroads.

The association of railway executives argued that the Inland Waterways corporation could be disposed of forthwith as being "unfair and unwise" competition, which the railroads should not be compelled to meet.

Chief objections raised by the railroads were that although the rails are under close regulations by the interstate commerce commission, the federal barge lines escape such inhibitions. The brief set up that the rates of the federal barges are fixed with a view of getting business and not with a view of operating at a profit as in the case of a private corporation, and it objected that the government in operating the barge lines does things which it makes illegal if done by railroad.

Divide Revenue.

"The Denison act," said Mr. Dwinell, "gave to the commerce commission the right to compel the railroads to join in joint rates and through routes with the barge line and divide the revenue with the barge line. You will recall that the Inland Waterways corporation was formed in 1924 to relieve the officers operating the barge line of the hampering restrictions of government regulation.

"We stand by this principal: It is unfair competition for the goverment to regulate and restrict the railroads and at the same time conduct unhampered and unrestricted competition with the railroads.

"We object to the government engaging in the barge business because the same government which engages in the barge business compels the railroads, against their best interests, and, as we believe, against the best interests of the people, to coöperate with the barge line in order to divert traffic from the railroads to the barge line. If large amounts of traffic are diverted to government barge lines to make them a success, a decrease in the revenue of the railroads will inevitably result. This decrease in revenue can only be overcome by increasing the rates on materials hauled between interior points and which cannot move by water, or by the railroads absorbing the loss. This is most unfair."

"No Taxes on Barges."

The railroads set up that the federal barge line does not pay taxes and does not figure taxes and interest in figuring its rates and in making up its balance sheet. The brief said that since 1924 54 million dollars has been spent on the Mississippi and Warrior rivers and that the annual carrying charge on this should be $1,019,000, while the annual maintenance charge is about $2,871,000, making a carrying charge plus maintenance cost, of annually $4,891,000.

"On these waterways," it said, "the federal barge line, based on a ton mile proportion, has carried 48 per cent of the total tonnage handled. There should be allocated to it, therefore, 48 per cent as its proportion of the carrying charge and maintenance annually. This is equal to $2,357,000.

"The federal barge lines have had an annual average movement of traffic of about 1,450,000 tons, which has cost the taxpayers of the United States annually $2,357,744. This represents a government subsidy per ton of over $1.50.

"The total cost to the taxpayer on this account is almost $19,000,000, since the corporation was formed."

Real Net Loss $567,000.

The railroad brief went into the net income figures of the barge lines. It said the barge line received one item of $288,000 as interest from banks on appropriations not expended and if it had not obtained this interest its net loss in eight years would have been $567,000 instead of $276,421.

"In summary, then," it said, "if the barge line had not received interest on government funds its net loss to date would be $567,000. It failed to earn a reasonable amount for taxes and failed to earn interest on its investment by an additional amount of over 6½ million dollars. If it had been charged compensatory tolls for the use of the lower Mississippi and Warrior river waterways only, it would have failed to earn these tolls by the amount of almost 19 million dollars.

"The total cost to the taxpayers of the United States, on this basis, therefore, during the period of the existence of the Inland Waterways corporation, has been about $26,000,000.

"Contrast this cost to the taxpayers with the alleged saving to the shippers. Gen. Ashburn in 1931 estimated these savings at $7,500,000. The taxpayer spent $3.50 to save favored shippers $1.

"In view of the above, it can be safely said that the Inland Waterways corporation, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding, has been a losing financial organization."

These arguments were amplified by L. E. Banta, traffic manager of the Indianapolis Board of Trade. Frank Theis of Kansas City, former president of the Kansas City Board of Trade, expressed the opinion that farmers would receive no addition to the price of their crops by utilizing the barge lines, and L. A. Jonas of Centralia, secretary of the International Inland Transportation Protective association, argued against inland waterways and against government operation of a waterway system.

FAMOUS OCEAN LINER AMERICA IS TOWED TO SHIP GRAVEYARD

New York, Aug. 22.—[Special.]—The liner America, the ship which Capt. George Fried commanded when he rescued 32 men from the Italian freighter Florida, was backed slowly from her Hoboken pier by navy tugs today to be towed to the graveyard of ships off Solomons island in Chesapeake bay.

Once of the United States lines, and previously the pride of the Hamburg-American line, the America was one of two vessels recently returned to the United States shipping board. The other ship was the liner George Washington, which carried President Wilson to France for the Versailles peace negotiations at the close of the world war.

Economy dictated the withdrawal of these ships from the trans-Atlantic service.

FAIR OFFICIALS ASK SO. PARKS FOR MORE LAND

World's Fair officials have asked the south park commissioners for an extension of their control over land along the lake front, it was revealed yesterday by George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the park system. Mr. Donoghue and his chief engineer, Linn White, have begun a survey of the territory in question.

To the southward the land grant to the exposition has extended to 39th street. The additional land asked is from this point to 47th street, lying between the lake and the Illinois Central railroad tracks. It is planned to use part of this area for a huge parking space.

On the north the fair executives have asked for control of park property from 12th street, the present boundary of their jurisdiction, to 7th street, between the lake and Michigan boulevard.

GIRLS' ANNOYER GIVEN YEAR FOR OBSCENE PHOTOS

Judge Calls Defendant "Worse than Gunman."

Described by Judge Justin F. McCarthy in the Jury court as belonging to a class more unscrupulous than gunmen who carry concealed weapons, and more dangerous to the community, Stanley Richards, 27 years old, 2021 West Huron street, was convicted yesterday of contributing to the delinquency of a minor on two charges. He was sentenced to serve on each charge, to run concurrently, and fined $100 and costs on each charge.

Witnesses testified that Richards showed obscene photographs to two 12 year old girls on the Oak street beach on Aug. 4. He was on probation on a charge of possessing indecent literature, granted by Judge James J. Fardy four months ago, when Richards pleaded that it was his first offense.

Former Judge His Lawyer.

After entering a plea of guilty and waiving a jury trial, Richards was allowed to consult with an attorney chosen for him by the court, former Municipal Judge Walter La Buy.

"I find, your honor," said Attorney La Buy, "that the defendant knows me. In fact, he seems to know every one in my neighborhood, and he ran for political office. He's just slipped. He's well known, however.

"Eugene D. Sullivan [Republican committeeman of the Thirty-second ward] acted as his attorney in this other case. Now, your honor, I wish to state that I believe I could show these photographs to a jury of 12 good men and true, and four of them might be called obscene, but the rest would not."

"Well, I'd call them obscene," said Assistant State's Attorney Robert Klenha. "You may be a liberal, but I guess I'm narrow minded about art."

Pleads Wife and Baby.

Attorney La Buy went on to say that Richards was a married man with an 8 months-old baby. Richards in a quavering voice also stressed the fact he was a "family man."

"Yes, his wife and child should be taken into consideration. He should be punished more severely because he showed so little responsibility for them in his conduct," said Assistant State's Attorney Klenha.

"It's the fault of the newspapers," said Richards, now almost blubbering. "They've made me out so bad all my friends have turned me down."

After the court had sentenced the defendant and ordered him taken away, Richards whispered to his attorney, then asked to address the court.

"I want to be taken to the county jail instead of the house of correction," he said. "Through my political affiliations I learned that the house of correction was not sanitary. The jail is a new building."

"You've looked into your place of confinement pretty well, but you're misinformed," said Judge McCarthy. "The House of Correction is sanitary, and it's where you'll be. Take him away."

Museum Employe Brings Four Snakes from Michigan

Four snakes, two of them over five feet long, have been brought back from Michigan by Gordon Pearsall of Batavia, Ill., he revealed yesterday. Two of the snakes are racers and two of the "hog nose" type. None is poisonous. Pearsall said he would present the snakes to the Field Museum of Natural History.

LINCOLN PARK 'DUBS' WIN RIGHT TO PLAY ON NEW GOLF COURSE

The controversy between the "dub" golfers and the Lincoln park board ended amicably yesterday. The poor golfers can play on the new north course as long as they abide by the rules, which include the prohibition of high heels and replacement of divots.

Attorney Robert Scher, who represented the inexpert golfers, said contemplated court action will be dropped. The "dubs" had formed a Citizens' Golf club of Lincoln park to carry on the battle after several poor players were ruled from the course.

The belief that a good golfer takes up more turf than the poor player was expressed by Harry Cooper, professional at the Glen Oak course. "But the golfer will replace the divot while the 'dub' doesn't care or will forget to do this," he added.

Cooper's opinion was concurred in by Laurie Ayton, pro at the Evanston Golf club. "About 80 per cent of the good golfers dig up sizeable divots when they use their irons," said Ayton.

MRS. BROPHY II. GRANTED SECRET DIVORCE IN RENO

A divorce was granted at a secret hearing in Reno Saturday to Mrs. Truman W. Brophy II., the former Hazel Eckhart, daughter of the late Bernard A. Eckhart. This was learned yesterday when the decree was made public.

Mrs. Brophy filed suit in Reno July 6, charging cruelty and nonsupport. Her husband, Truman W. Brophy II. did not contest the charges when he was served with notice of the suit on July 19. The Brophy townhouse is at 1530 Lake Shore drive.

The Brophys were married in 1905. Their son, Truman W. Brophy III., was married last September to Miss Jane Condon. The young couple now live in Los Angeles.

Mr. Brophy is the son of the late Dr. Truman W. Brophy, noted oral surgeon. The son was in the flour milling business in the company headed by his father-in-law, B. A. Eckhart.

What will 1933 Prices be?

It is an old adage that "coming events cast their shadows before." Today, rising commodity prices forecast higher price ranges, new price levels—less purchasing power for your dollar in the months to come.

Needless to say, rising commodity prices will affect hotel rentals. A few months from now, you will find yourself confronted with an advanced rate scale.

Today's rate arrangement at Hotel Shoreland will carry you into 1933—at prices well below anticipated 1933 levels—offering you values that will probably never be obtainable again.

Contrary to the general tendency to curtail service in order to meet price competition—here, at Hotel Shoreland there has been no compromise with the recognized high standards which have established and maintained Shoreland leadership.

Catering to Chicago's most distinguished clientele—with its cultured environment and social prestige—Hotel Shoreland presents the few available apartments for the consideration of a select prospective clientele—in the light of a value that people, who appreciate and do demand the finest of living, cannot afford to overlook.

HINTS PHYSICAL CLASH TO KEEP WALKER ON JOB

Curtin Appeals to Court to Stop Governor.

the governor had been upheld, declaring:

"The question is not one for determination by the judiciary. It is solely for the executive to determine. We will not submit to judicial determination of the proceedings now in progress."

The hearing before Gov. Roosevelt droned along quietly enough throughout the early afternoon. The mayor opened his defense by placing Felix Muldoon, second deputy police commissioner, on the stand.

The police witness testified he had obtained his job because he had gone to college with former Police Commissioner Joseph A. Warren, who had appointed him. He said he was in charge of the "hack bureau"—the city's taxicabs. He told of the organization of a taxicab board of control in January, 1932, and said the mayor at no time had ever instructed him regarding the control of taxicabs, about 19,000 being licensed then—probably 16,000 operating now. He named the members of the taxi board, Maurice Hotchner, chairman; Daniel L. Reardon, L. F. Loree, president of Delaware and Hudson; Col. George W. Mixter, and Philip Lebouteiller, the banker.

Hotchner Makes Inquiry.

These men were all present as witnesses and Mr. Hotchner was next called to testify. He identified himself as a civic leader and said his appointment to the taxi board was without organization or individual political backing. His testimony concerned the operations of the largest taxi company in New York and tended to exonerate Mr. Walker of attempting to limit the number of cabs in any way after the Sisto bond transaction.

"One of the things," said Mr. Hotchner, "that the industry has had itself concerned about and the public, largely through newspaper headlines, is this bugaboo of monopoly.

Bugaboo of Monopoly.

"When I said 'bugaboo' I say that advisedly. When I was brought first into the work I thought myself that that was a thing that was just on the horizon, and I say here and now there is nothing to it. So far as I can find out there never has been, and to allay that fear completely, at one of the open hearings of the board of taxicab control I brought up the question of monopoly and I asked under oath and on the record, right in the open, the representatives, the executives, and the attorneys of the four largest manufacturing and operating companies in the field to make a public statement of their position on it.

"The four companies responded, the four I called upon, they were the only ones concerned—that is, the Parmelee system, combined with the Checker Manufacturing company and the Yellow Cab company, three organizations in one, owned by the Parmelee; secondly, the General Motors corporation, which operates the Terminal cab, which is the third largest, the Parmelee first; the second largest company, which is the Paramount Cab company, and the fourth, which is the Dodge Manufacturing company, and all denied they were interested in any monopoly and would not accept it."

Interested in Selling Cars.

Mr. Hotchner explained that the taxi companies were interested in selling cars and that the "field would be limited or even closed" if only one corporation got a franchise monopoly.

He testified that there were approximately 9,000 individual taxi operators in New York City. He called them "the little men."

This group caught the attention of Gov. Roosevelt and he asked for more information about "these one-cab men."

The witness was asked if J. A. Sisto "either personally or through any one else asked you to do anything particularly for him or his company."

The emphatic answer was: "No, he never did. He never sent me a message of any kind."

Reardon a Witness.

Daniel Reardon, president of the United States Trucking corporation, was the last witness. He spoke in a low voice and the stenographer had difficulty in hearing his testimony.

"Did Mr. Samuel Ungerleider at any time speak to you directly or indirectly about this taxicab industry?" [Ungerleider has been referred to by Mr. Seabury as buying securities from Sherwood at $20,000 above the market price.]

"I never saw him and don't know him."

The matter that threw the mayor into a rage took place about this time. Mr. Curtin was questioning the witness about the whereabouts of some other members of the taxi control board. Mr. Seabury arose, smiling.

"What bearing has any of this upon the question as to whether the mayor got the bonds from Sisto and the circumstances under which he got the bonds?"

The mayor sprang to his feet. "It's a ——" he began with two of his aides tugging at his coat tail.

"I'll give you the answer, if you'll let me," said Mr. Curtin. "It brings out that you insinuated the Sisto matter without saying it, and to some extent charged it, that there was something wrong with the law organizing the board in favor of the Parmalee company by reason of those taxicab bonds. That's the relevancy of it."

"I think the law shows that it was a law desired by Sisto and Ungerleider," said Mr. Seabury.

"Let's go ahead," said the governor wearily.

Long Wrangle on Unification.

There was a long wrangle about the meaning of "unification" as applied to the New York transit situation and Mr. Walker had a bit to say about an old, unworked out plan whereby the taxicabs might be made to pay the subway deficits. Mr. Seabury continued to prod him with words. The mayor turned and shouted:

"To save time let's assume all this—counsel did not apply himself to the law nor to the charter of the city of New York. If he had he would know that the board of estimate and apportionment has not got the right to give a franchise for a monopoly of taxicab operation. He would know if he investigated that as completely as he did my personal life that a bill was introduced in the legislature and defeated and I think he will find that the city of New York was against it. So argue as you will, the city didn't have the power to grant a monopoly without state legislation. It couldn't be done without the signature of your excellency."

"May I call your attention," said Mr. Seabury in a biting tone, "that this law which was passed did call for the granting of a certificate of necessity and convenience by which the same purpose could in effect be accomplished?"

HOOVER PLANS TO SPEAK THREE TIMES IN WEST

Hurley Picked to Reply to Roosevelt Tomorrow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Administration leaders close to the White House expressed the opinion today that President Hoover will make at least one and possibly three speeches in the west, prior to the November election. In their opinion the action of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in directly criticizing the President and his record in his Columbus, O., speech of last Saturday, will be the deciding factor in deciding the President to make a few campaign speeches outside of Washington.

Although Republicans in various sections of the country assailed the Democratic nominee for his charges that the Hoover administration was responsible for the depression, no direct comment was forthcoming from the White House. It was disclosed, however, that Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley will reply to the Roosevelt speech Wednesday at Rocky Point, R. I., when he addresses the Republican organization there at the invitation of Senator Felix Hebert [Rep., R. I.], chairman of the Republican campaign in the east.

Reports from West Not So Good.

All the reports reaching the President are to the effect that Republican stock in the eastern section of the country has been on the upgrade for several weeks. The reports from the west have not been so good. Indications today were that several of the Republican speakers will be sent to the west during September and October. It would not be surprising if the President spoke at Chicago, St. Louis and possibly at some city even farther west.

One high official said today that the President's speaking plans are being kept flexible so that a change can be made on short notice. Secretary Hurley will go to Portland, Ore., in September to address the American Legion. During this trip he plans to make several speeches in the west and far west.

Confers with Callers.

The President motored to the White House from his Rapidan camp this morning and spent the day conferring with callers and working out the program for the conference of business leaders which meets in Washington Thursday and Friday. He talked to Joseph Crupper, Republican national committeeman from Virginia; Representative James M. Beck [Rep., Pa.], house wet leader; J. H. Duncan, chairman of the Republican state committee; Atlee Pomerene, chairman of the board of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and Franklin Fort, head of the new home loan bank organization.

YOUNG TEDDY TO FIGHT ROOSEVELT FOR PRESIDENCY

Late President's Son to Back Hoover.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 22.—Gov. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt, who will sail for the United States on Sept. 14 to participate in the Republican presidential campaign, is slated to begin his speeches in behalf of President Hoover on the Pacific coast as soon as he lands, early in October. The governor has many friends among the American Legion in California.

It is expected also that the Republican national committee will send him on a tour across the continent which will bring him to the east to close the campaign. He plans to return here in November to resume his duties as governor general. Mrs. Roosevelt will not accompany her husband to the mainland.

Thus there will be a Roosevelt on each side in the presidential campaign. Gov. Gen. Roosevelt is the eldest son of the late President Theodore Roosevelt. The elder Thedore Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee, were distant relatives.

Policies to Be Carried On.

Gov. Roosevelt's decision to leave here was made after a several weeks' exchange of cables between Washington and Manila. This exchange resulted in the appointment of John H. Holliday as vice governor. Mr. Holliday was sworn into office on Saturday and is ready to carry on Gov. Roosevelt's policies here.

The provincial governors and legislative leaders, as well as the Philippine press, have been unanimous against Gov. Roosevelt's leaving in the face of this big reorganization, in which he contemplated combining departments to cut expenses and to dispense with the services of one-third of the 28,000 government employes.

Gov. Roosevelt's Announcement.

Gov. Roosevelt's announcement of his decision to take the stump for President Hoover follows:

"Circumstances have made it necessary for me to return for a brief period to the United States. I will sail on Sept. 14 and start to the islands again the first week in November. While there, naturally I will do all I can for the Filipino people and hope to accomplish something.

"I am confident that the mere fact that I am leaving will in no way hamper or mar this work, so necessary for our people, and that the legislature will carry it through to a statesmanlike and triumphant finish. I sincerely hope that the legislature will succeed in accomplishing the reorganization it has initiated and will pass a balanced budget before I leave."

In his contacts with members of congress during the presidential campaign, Gov. Roosevelt is expected to urge a fairer treatment in tariffs and other features of economic relation than offered in the Hawes-Cutting bill, designed to grant freedom to the Philippines after an educational or probationary period.

AUTOS COLLIDE NEAR WINNETKA; 1 DEAD, 1 HURT

Wesley Parsons, 21 years old, 6326 North Albany avenue, was instantly killed and Gunnar F. Oberg, 23 years old, 3808 North Kimball avenue, received a possible skull fracture last night in an automobile collision at Sunset Ridge road and Winnetka avenue, west of Winnetka.

Sterling Carlson, 21 years old, 3001 Wellington avenue, was driving the car occupied by Parsons and Oberg. The three are caddies at the Ridge Country club. The other car was driven by Bjarne Paulsen of Winnetka. Neither driver was injured although both cars overturned. Oberg was taken to the Evanston hospital.

In a terrific collision of two automobiles near the South Park police station in Washington park early this morning Miss Cliffie Turner, 17 years old, 5921 Michigan avenue, colored, was killed and three men were injured. The girl's companions, Louis McDonald, 23, 4020 South Park way, and Monroe Bernard, also 23, of 4344 Michigan avenue, both Negroes, were seriously hurt, and taken to the Washington Park hospital. H. L. Cassell, 40, of 10429 Hamilton avenue, an advertising man, driver of the other car, was less seriously hurt. The accident occurred at what would be the intersection of 56th street and St. Lawrence avenue.

The deaths of Parsons, the Turner girl and one other in Cook county increased the toll for 1932 to 744. The other victim:

George Padalski, 30 years old, 4229 Cullerton street. Died at the county hospital. His automobile struck a lamp post at 24th street and Hamlin avenue Saturday.

Chicago Woman Killed.

Reading, Pa., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Mollie Moss of 2419 Clybourn avenue, Chicago, was killed today and her husband, Benjamin, was injured as their automobile was struck by a freight train at Lenhartsville.

J. A. MORROW, WOMAN DIE IN AUTO COLLISION

Champaign, Ill., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Joseph A. Morrow, superintendent of grounds and buildings at the University of Illinois, and Miss Doris Huse, 27 years old, of Sioux City, Ia., were fatally injured today when the automobiles in which they were riding collided at Tuscola.

J. S. Huse, father of Miss Huse, was critically hurt, and his wife and S. E. Griffith, driver of the car in which Mr. Morrow was riding, received less serious injuries.

Mr. Morrow was 62 years old. He entered the employ of the university when he was 15 years old, following the death of his father, a pioneer Methodist preacher in Champaign.

His widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Walsh Morrow, and two sons, Thomas, an employé of THE TRIBUNE, and Charles, superintendent of buildings at Ohio State university, survive.

SEND QUESTIONS FOR CANDIDATES ON TAX CUTTING

Rossetter's Group to Quiz Federal Office Seekers.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures, of which George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, is general chairman, mailed out its questionnaire to 30 state organizations yesterday. These state organizations in turn will ask candidates for federal office at the November election to make specific replies concerning their stand on the reduction of governmental expenses.

The first of the questions asks whether the candidate favors cutting federal expenditures "by at least 750 million dollars and will work to that end if elected to congress."

This suggests only a comparatively small reduction, according to Mr. Rossetter. His organization, he explained, has collected information indicating that federal expenses could reasonably be reduced by one billion 507 million dollars, and the organization may ask the views of the candidates for congress upon such a reduction later.

Question to Candidates.

The second question for the candidates reads as follows:

"Three general ways have been suggested by which federal expenditures may be reduced:

"1. Reduction in expense without sacrifice of results through consolidation of bureaus and reduction of personnel.

"2. Reduction of compensation of government employés in line with reduction of taxpayers' incomes and of living costs.

"3. Reduction or elimination of less essential governmental activities and appropriations therefor.

"Will you please state whether you are in favor of reducing expenses by all three of these methods, and if you care to do so, state in detail any particular reductions you favor?"

Under the third question the organization says that most of the members of congress have expressed themselves in favor of economy "but disagreed as to what economies should be made, with the result that little has been accomplished." The organization believes "that log rolling must cease."

On Cutting Expenditures.

The third question asks whether the candidate will make the saving of not less than 750 million "a major feature of his platform, and will not permit this objective to be defeated solely by differences of opinion on ways and means."

This National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures was formed on June 3 in Chicago by action of the representatives of 640 organizations distributed throughout 48 states. Since then state organizations have been developed in 30 states. State-wide meetings were held last week in Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota, and Wisconsin.

A corps of field representatives left here last night for a meeting in Nashville, Tenn. Other meetings will follow at Birmingham, Ala.; Atlanta, Ga.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Columbia, S. C.; Charlotte, N. C.; Richmond, Va.; Baltimore, Md.; Wilmington, Del.; Harrisburg, Pa.; Columbus, O., and Indianapolis, Ind. All of these will be held before Labor day.

"An Overshadowing Issue."

The questionnaire sent out to the state organizations says that "tax reduction is an overshadowing issue." To the candidates it says:

"You are no doubt aware that national, state, and local taxes have remained near their highest level, while national income has been cut in half, and on the average the tax burden is thereby doubled. Our organization holds that it is most essential to the recovery of business prosperity and the relief of our individual citizens that the cost of national, state, and local government be substantially and promptly reduced in line with reduced capacity to pay."

TAXPAYERS ASK FOR NEW DELAY IN SUBWAY CASES

At a meeting with city officials yesterday in the mayor's office, representatives of the State street council, loop real estate owners, banks and railroads requested that hearings in the subway special assessment case, scheduled to open in the Superior court on Sept. 20, be continued until the companies accept the unification transit ordinance.

The representatives also cited the unsettled economic conditions as a reason why the cases should not be tried now. As a result of their protest a committee of four will be appointed to meet again with the city officials.

Among those at the meeting were D. F. Kelly, Fred W. Sargent, Melvin A. Traylor, Attorney Lester Falk, B. M. Winston, John Redmond, Graham Aldis, and Walter L. Gregory. For the city there was Corporation Counsel Sexton, Commissioner of Public Works Sprague, and B. F. Lindheimer, president of the board of local improvements.

In another transit action Justice Frederic De Young of the Supreme court, denied the petition of Attorney Falk that the court order a rehearing of the case in which the court recently upheld the validity of the transit ordinance and its enabling legislation.

FIRST CARLOAD OF WINE GRAPES RECEIVED HERE

The first carload of juice grapes, suitable for making wine, was being unloaded yesterday at the produce terminal at 27th street and Ashland avenue. Chicago is expected to consume 2,500 carloads of this year's California crop.

The carload received yesterday was the zinfandel variety, a black grape. This carload had a sugar content of 25 per cent. Other varieties to follow will include the better known muscat, white; and the alicante, black.

First sales this year were made at a price of $1.25 a box. Each box holds about 26 pounds of grapes, which is considered sufficient for two to two and one-half gallons of juice. A carload of grapes holds sufficient vintage for about 2,500 gallons of juice.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Zeppo Marx, one of the four Marx Brothers of screen and stage, reported to the sheriff's office today his Hollywood apartment had been robbed of jewelry valued at $37,600. Marx said the loss was discovered when he and Mrs. Marx returned from their Malibu beach cottage.

DEMAND MILLION SAVING IN WILL COUNTY'S TAXES

Joliet Meeting Promised Relief.

Taxpayers of Will county demanded a 25 per cent reduction in real estate assessments for 1932 at a public meeting of the board of review in the courthouse at Joliet yesterday. The cut would save taxpayers approximately $1,000,000.

Speakers urging reduction were cheered as they demanded an end of wasteful tax spending. There were no speakers for continuance of the 1931 assessment.

Assessed at 96 Millions.

The value of real estate in the county was fixed at approximately $96,000,000 for assessing purposes in 1931. The assessment represented a 15 per cent reduction from 1930 valuations in the city areas and 25 per cent in the farm area.

Taxes of $4,260,000 were levied on the valuation. Of the levy $3,281,000, or 78 per cent, has been paid. Speakers for the reduction held that the amount collected in 1931 was more than sufficient, and valuations should be adjusted to a $3,200,000 tax basis.

D. H. Lentz, chairman of the board of review, indicated a reduction approximating 25 per cent will be granted. The board must act before Sept. 1. The average valuation of farm land in Joliet township is $66 an acre, and from $35 to $40 in other townships.

Land Owners Can't Pay.

Edward Gorman, owner of 1,000 acres of farm land in Will county, said he has been unable to pay last year's taxes. He offered a first mortgage on his farms to any one who would give him money with which to meet the taxes. He suggested reduction of the salaries of county employés under a tax reduction program.

Charles Gaskin of Lockport township said income on his crops on a 77 acre farm is insufficient to meet taxes. Taxes have risen on his farm from $25 when he purchased the property 29 years ago to $120 last year.

SPENCER TO FACE JURY ON CHARGE OF LURING GIRLS

A motion to suppress evidence, consisting of obscene photographs and paintings, was denied yesterday in the case of Harvey Raymond Spencer, 31 years old, by Municipal Judge Justin F. McCarthy in the Jury court, and selection of a jury was begun. It will be completed today. Spencer is being tried first on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 16 year old girl. He also is charged with adultery and disorderly conduct.

Miss Constance Selbach, who posed as Spencer's secretary when he induced young girls to come to his apartment in the Hyde Park Manor hotel, 5510 Harper avenue, and to pose for photographs in the nude, asked for a separate trial. She will waive a jury trial, according to her attorney, M. G. Kaufman. She is charged with a statutory offense, police declaring she lived for three months with Spencer at the hotel.

SWANSON PLANS CONTEMPT SUIT IN TAX STRIKE

Mayor and Teachers Are Backing Move.

State's Attorney Swanson proposed yesterday to bring a contempt of court action in an effort to break the taxpayers' strike. The formation of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers of Illinois, with 28,000 members who are said to be withholding $20,000,000 of taxes, is of itself proper, the prosecutor declared, but for the association to bring a suit in behalf of its members comes, in Swanson's opinion, under the legal ban against corporations practicing law.

These views were contained in a statement issued yesterday on the results of a month's investigation by the state's attorney's office of the taxpayers' association, undertaken at the request of Mayor Cermak and the school teachers. The purpose was to determine whether there was any violation of the statutes by the organization in its advice to its members not to pay real estate taxes.

John M. Pratt, with the title of executive secretary, is the active head of the association. He receives a salary for his activities.

Promises Quick Action.

The contempt action was decided upon as a form of strategy. If the Supreme court should hold with his opinion that the association is in contempt of court for practicing law, Mr. Swanson said, the association's two appeals now pending in the state Supreme court and one to the United States Supreme court automatically would be dismissed. This attack on the tax strikers will get far quicker action, the prosecutor said, than could be had by awaiting the outcome of the appeals.

A decision was cited in which the Supreme court held the People's Stockyards bank, which was a corporation organized for profit, to be in contempt of court for practicing law. No decision has ever been given regarding a nonprofit organization, such as the taxpayers, practicing law.

"It seems to be advisable," said the prosecutor's statement, "to bring a test case to determine whether the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers of Illinois, a corporation organized for profit, is guilty of contempt of court in bringing suits in behalf of its members, through attorneys employed on a regular salary by the association. This litigation most likely will settle finally all the questions involved in the controversy and do it quickly."

Bar Investigating Case.

The prosecutor said the Illinois State Bar Association's committee on unlawful practice has been investigating. John R. Snively, of Rockford, chairman of the committee, has been consulted by Swanson and has agreed to cooperate with Assistant State's Attorneys Grenville Beardsley and Edward E. Wilson, who will handle the contempt petition.

The cases now pending on appeal involve payment of 1929 and 1930 taxes. Attorneys Roy D. Keehn and Morris Schaeffer, acting in the name of Mrs. Lillian Cisar of Oak Park, won a judgment in the county court, which held the taxes in Cook county had been levied improperly. The Supreme court reversed this finding, but other litigation made it appear that final decision might be a matter of years.

The public has been advised over the radio and otherwise not to pay taxes, and at present there is approximately $300,000,000 in taxes due and unpaid, Mr. Swanson said in his statement.

GIRL PILOT AND PASSENGER IN AIR DERBY FALL

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Mildred Morgan of Beverly Hills, Cal., and Valentine Sprague, passenger flying in the Transcontinental Air Derby, were injured today when their plane crashed on the El Paso Country club golf course. Both were brought to a hospital here.

Eldon Cessna, of Wichita, Kan., led the field of contestants into El Paso, the night control point, this afternoon. Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach, Cal., was second. Roy Hunt of Norman, Okla., was third.

Art Carnahan, Bloomington, Ill., and Plane N C 6433, registered to Harry Sham of Oakland, were reported speeding from near Nogales, Ariz., where they made forced landings.

Touhy Leads Into Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 22.—(AP)—J. H. Touhy, Olean, N. Y., aviator, today won the second leg flight from more than a score of contestants in the 2,396 mile handicap derby from Washington to the National air races in Cleveland. Only 30 seconds behind Touhy came Fred Dorset, of Augusta, Ga. Dorset yesterday won the first leg from Washington to Winston-Salem, N. C. Third to roar over the line was Helen McCloskey, Pittsburgh, who landed less than two minutes behind the two leaders.

Michigan Cherry Order for 60,000 Dozen Cans

Traverse City, Mich., Aug. 22.—(AP)—The John C. Morgan company and the Traverse City Packing company today announced receipt of an order for 60,000 dozen cans of Grand Traverse cherries, the largest single order in the history of the cherry packing plants here. The order, from a national retail house, represents a trainload of 40 cars of fruit.

TAXIS OFFERING REDUCED RATES DENIED LICENSES

First Deputy Police Commissioner Alcock announced yesterday that the public vehicle license commission, of which he is chairman, has denied the petition of the Public Taxi Service company to operate seven taxicabs in Chicago. The commission decided, he said, that the evidence submitted to it on Friday did not show that public convenience and necessity requires more cabs on the streets.

Attorney Lee Daniels, who represents the company, said he would carry the fight to the courts. "The commission failed to consider," he said, "that reduced cab fares are matters of convenience and necessity to the public."

The new company proposed to charge 15 cents for the first third of a mile and 5 cents for each additional third of a mile. The Yellow and Checker companies, which protested issuance of the licenses, now charge 25 cents for the first quarter mile and 10 cents for each half mile thereafter.

OAK PARK PLANE, BUILT IN YARD, TO ENTER RACES

A tiny plane, said to weigh only 280 pounds, will be flown from the Chicago airport tomorrow for participation in the national air races at Cleveland, starting Saturday.

John H. Fitton, 26 years old, of 3320 Fulton street, and Simon H. Chilleen, 30, of 904 Mapleton avenue, Oak Park, are the builders. The pilot will be Walter Franklin, 20, of Kankakee, who claims a world's altitude record of 15,400 feet for this small type of plane.

The ship will be christened "The Spirit of Oak Park." It was made in the back yard of Chilleen's home. According to the makers, it has a Church Marathon J-3 motor, of 42 horsepower, and 108 cubic inch displacement. Its wing spread is 28 feet, and it is 16 feet 9 inches long. The plane will be entered in the 115 cubic inch motor displacement class.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". "The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

EXCESSIVE COST OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

Representative Schnackenberg is working in one of the most promising fields of tax relief and one of the least considered. His energy and ability should produce practical results and will if given the public support they deserve.

As chairman of the committee on local government of the Illinois commission on taxation and expenditure he calls attention to the disclosure of a preliminary report by Griffenhagen & Associates, accountants employed by the committee to look into county and township expenditures. They present a picture of needless expenditure through overlapping functions and unnecessary officials, through faulty methods and too liberal pay for service performed. One small county cited pays $25,000 a year for road commissioners. Often counties, says Chairman Schnackenberg, have from fifty to a hundred such jobholders drawing salaries and commissions. Many county courts have not enough to do to justify their cost.

Former Gov. Lowden has called attention to the crying need for the reorganization and reduction or simplification of local governments. The picture was one of staggering waste and Representative Schnackenberg is going to verify it. We trust the people are to have a complete picture. At this moment they are realizing what taxes mean and now if ever can there be raised a citizens' demand strong enough to overcome the resistance which it will meet.

What citizens must realize is the tremendous strength of this resistance. The vested interests in all these jobs and benefits can easily defeat mere public protest. We can only win the drastic reforms essential to substantial relief by definite and determined organization. Representative Schnackenberg and his committee are opening the way when they thoroughly investigate conditions and present to the body of citizens an account of the whole situation. Upon this, practical recommendations for a general and specific scheme of reorganization and retrenchment can be found. Next must come the organization of public strength to compel its adoption in spite of stubborn resistance. Resolutions and appeals will not get far. There must be the explicit pledging of legislators and political leaders to definite action.

There has been no battle harder to win in our political history than this will be. It could not be won in good times, but it may be won if it is not postponed too long now. The burden of taxation is felt as a grievous burden by all our people, a fatal burden to many. The cost of unnecessary government machinery, of political tribute, of waste and graft is intolerable and yet it is avoidable if the citizens will use their power.

POLITICS AND THE MUNICIPAL JUDICIARY.

One of the candidates for Municipal judge has demonstrated his unfitness for the office he seeks well in advance of the election, and it is fortunate Judge Lindsay has enjoined the election commissioners from placing him on the ballot. If the decision stands the place on the Republican list will be filled by the city central committee, and that body, we trust, will select some one else.

The candidate's name was until August, 1930, Joseph F. Mall. In that month, by court action, he adopted the name of Haas. As Joseph F. Haas he seeks election to the Municipal court bench. This scheme, which would mystify the reader unacquainted with politics, is no mystery. The name of Joseph F. Haas was that of a very popular politician and office holder now deceased. By adopting it Mall obviously hoped to garner in the votes of citizens who were not aware of the passing of the real Joseph F. Haas. In other words, he hoped to profit by cheating them. The ethics of that leaves no doubt of the quality of justice Mall would dispense if he ever reached the Municipal bench.

That Mall, as Haas, succeeded in winning the nomination at the April primary is a reminder of the need for better safeguards for that important court. The Municipal judges, though lowest in judicial rank, have responsibilities as great in the social sense as those of the higher courts, if not greater. They are also the class from which promotions to the higher courts are often made. It was hoped when the court was established that its judiciary could be maintained on a fairly high level. The first selections encouraged this hope, but there has been a gradual deterioration. Some of the incumbents, lawyers agree, have been grossly unfit. This is chiefly the responsibility of the party organizations, which in the main control primary results.

The situation has become deplorable and ought to have more attention from the bar and civic organizations, since politicians are not likely to change their standards and methods. Excellent material is now in the court and more can be put there if selection can be taken out of the routine process of spoils politics. The work of former Chief Justice Olson showed what could be made of this popular tribunal, and his successor, Chief Justice Sonsteby, is demonstrating initiative and the disposition to make the court what it ought to be. But he should not have to work with the material which irresponsible or corrupt politics is willing to put into this court.

THE PEOPLE AT THE MUSIC FESTIVAL.

People who were on Soldiers' field Saturday night for the great music festival could have found the greatest miracle of it in themselves. There assembled at night a hundred and twenty-five thousand persons interested in music. They came by all available methods of transportation. They gathered in perfect order, parked their cars, if they drove, found their way to their seats through the almost perfect system of stadium management, and were helpful to each other when help was needed. The courtesy was perfect and any infirmity found instant consideration.

The police arrangements and service would have been regarded by any general staff as something for memorable self-congratulation. This was the real Chicago, a society of self-respecting men and women who respect each other, courteous, regardful of each other's rights and comfort, good natured, esthetically interested, capable of taking care of themselves and willing to take care of others.

The raw deals they get from their political arrangements they do not deserve, although they are not always able to avoid them. They suffer in interests and in repute by the assaults criminals make upon their social structure. Although often betrayed and injured, they preserve the integrity of life. They make the real city, even when it seems to take its color and get its fantastic reputation from evil elements out of control.

The night was one of a gorgeous musical event, but the greatest thing was the assemblage of people themselves, and many must have carried such an impression away from the field as the crowd dissolved in the undisturbed good order in which it assembled.

A WASHINGTON BOY MAKING GOOD.

Mr. Stimson's addendum to the Kellogg treaty, evolved out of his Manchurian experiences, is nonrecognition of territory acquired by conquest. This was his ultimatum to Japan and he persuaded other American republics to join him in giving it to Bolivia and Paraguay. Where Mr. Kellogg produced a noble thought Mr. Stimson seeks to add a noble act. The consequences have not been completely thought out, but evidently nonrecognition is not merely a state of mind. It must have a technique. There must be specific things which are not done and specific things which are done. Japan may yet offer the first instance.

Herriot of France recently took notice of Mr. Stimson's proceedings in a fashion which indicates that a new light had struck him. He observed that Mr. Stimson was working out something in the nature of a security pact such as France desires. It would be strange if the French prime minister were really slow in perceiving such possibilities. When Briand decoyed Mr. Kellogg into the Kellogg treaty it was the Frenchman's intentions to get to one thing by way of another.

What Mr. Stimson does with his policy of nonrecognition of acquisition of territory by conquest is to underwrite the treaty of Versailles which the United States would not sign. The map of Europe, redrawn by that treaty in violation of many equities, stands intact unless the possessors willingly abandon their possessions. Herriot sees the light. We'd not accuse Mr. Stimson of not seeing it. The generosity of the oppressor is the only refuge of the oppressed, and the moral charm is that it seems to mean only that the peaceable are protected from the strength of the aggressor.

The American secretary of state is in the way of becoming a world figure in statesmanship which has yet to show a profit for his own country. If Herriot's second view of the Kellogg treaty's new tooth sustains the impression of his first view the entire state department will be welcome in society.

Editorial of the Day

FROM THE STATE'S BALANCE SHEET.

[Bloomington, Ill., Pantagraph.]

The striking feature of the biennial report of State Auditor Nelson, just issued, is the tremendous drain upon the funds of the state of Illinois for emergency relief during the last year. This extra and unusual outlay accounts for the fact that expenditures of the state increased $14,996 during the year instead of decreasing $9,400,000, as would have been the case except for the relief expenditures. The state provided in all $18,500,000 for relief work for the year, but only $9,419,323 was expended before July 1 and therefore comes within the period covered by the biennial report.

Another startling fact revealed in this report is that virtually half the expenses of the state during the year were met by borrowing, or what is called the issue of anticipation warrants. Appropriations for the biennium covered by the 1931 legislature totaled $366,499,468. But the cash income of the state from various sources was only $126,205,100 during the year, hence it became necessary for the state treasurer to issue anticipation warrants to the extent of $127,029,641. This sum is virtually the same as that of the total tax warrants issued for the preceding year. Delay in tax payments throughout the state, but mainly in Cook county, was responsible for the necessity of these tax warrants.

In noting the summary of biennial appropriations it is seen that the largest item is for highways, with the requirements of interest and bond retirements coming second. Expenditures for education come third, and for penal and charitable institutions next. Refunds of gasoline taxes to counties are now a major item in the state budget, totaling over thirty-three millions for the year.

As to the sources of the state's revenues, direct property taxes are first in size, with gasoline taxes closely following. The slump in tax collections, in fact, brings the gas taxes up ahead of property taxes. Property taxes are now collectible in two installments, and only about half these taxes had been paid within the period covered by this report. The whole effect of the operation of this new law cannot yet be told, for it has not had a year's trial.

HE'S NO DUMBBELL.

Suspected of being mentally deficient, a schoolboy was asked by a psychologist:

"How many ears has a cat?"

"Two," the lad replied instantly.

"And how many eyes has a cat?"

"And how many legs has a cat?"

The boy looked at him suspiciously.

"Say," he inquired, "didn't you ever see a cat?"—London Answers.

OLD SOLDIERS' DRUMS.

I'm just too old for drillin',
I can't hike any more,
So I'm bound for the doughboy's graveyard
Behind an office door.
They sing, "Old soldiers never die."
We don't; we live on crumbs,
The shrilling, splendid bugles
An' the thunder of the drums!

I won't do a guard in a snowstorm,
An' I won't hafta go out an' fire;
It's just messin' around an office
An' waitin' to retire.
"Approved per 1st endorsement . . ."
An' through the window comes
The music of a guard mount
And the cadenced throbbin' drums!

Twenty-three an' a butt in the doughboys,
Why, I've hiked a million miles!
But they said my age couldn't stand it,
An' they detailed ME to the files!
This work is nice for some men,
Who can take it as it comes,
But you know their hearts ain't achin'
For the pullin', poundin' drums!

D. S. C. an' a noncombatant!
When there's guys that'd give their life
To piddle around an office
An' go home at night to the wife.
But I'll get back to formation,
There's a day that always comes,
An' I'll ride on a painted caisson
With the muffled, sobbin' drums!

MAIZIE'S MEMORANDA

The White columns of the
Hall of Science, with their odd illumination,
Reached up to a gold moon in a
Choppy mackerel sky.
Far off, a steamboat whistled on the dark waves of Lake Michigan.
A wide blue open bus glided along, filled with Admiring passengers.
Guides, in neat uniforms, told of Incredible Wonders that would charm the dawn of June, 1933.

. . . . .

An old man stepped out of the shadows.
He was cheaply clad and had the look of one
Who had long been a stranger to beefsteaks.
"Lady," he said, "I've worked hard
All my life . . . I've never had time to build Air-Castles. . . But when I look at this . . ."
And his arm circled the magic around us . . .
"I thank God that there are some men
Who have time to dream my dreams for me
And make them come TRUE . . ."

This Wake-Line Is Conducted By Harvey T. Woodruff. Help! Help!

INSTEAD OF ANOTHER Grab Bag day, for which many requests have been received, The Wake-Line has decided for a "Last Chance day" along much the same lines. R. H. L. is scheduled to return to these preserves next week. Therefore, before our playfulness ends, let's make the coming Saturday "Last Chance day." Instead of publishing the first ten contributions received in Friday's mail, ten poems or quips will be selected from the first twenty opened. So if you wish to make the Line during this interregnum, turn the brain children out to roam for Friday's mail.

THAT LIFE SAVING NIP.

A RECENTLY received letter related to a man who was drinking pretty steadily. When he arose he took some toddy in order to feel fit for the day. After that he took a snort every few hours. He had heard that drinking whisky was bad for a man, and he thought that might be true of the ordinary man but he was certain it did not apply in his case.

He always felt fine in the morning after he had had a drink or two. Before he had his pickup he felt terrible. While he was hard at work during the day, at least once before lunch and once toward the latter part of the afternoon, he would feel as though he were running down. Whenever this feeling came on he would take a good, stiff drink and, after that, he was back to full efficiency.

These were observations which he had checked for several times. Therefore, he felt certain in his case whisky increased efficiency. For him it was a good thing. Others seemed to think it was bad for them, and that might be true, though he could not fully understand why what was so good for him could be so bad for others. However, he did not ask to interfere with the other fellow or even to change his opinion. All he asked was to be left alone, to take a drink whenever one was necessary to pep him up or to keep him equal to his job.

We are sure our friend is telling the truth. He runs down when the effect of his liquor is gone and, in the morning, he is a wreck until he has his eye opener. He is quite right that to get back up to par he must supply the alcohol hunger of his body cells.

Having agreed with him he may be willing to listen to a part of the story that has not been told. What he says, in substance, is that his tissues have acquired a taste for alcohol and unless that is satisfied they are willing to do some sabotage. If this taste is catered to there are immediate results—the machine, for a time, hits on all cylinders.

But as time goes on there must be an increased amount of priming. Finally, not even full priming suffices. The thing just won't work or, if it does, works poorly. Whenever a man must have his drink before he can start the day, whenever the machine runs down when the stimulus runs out—then the man is in danger.

LEAVE ONIONS ALONE.

M. B. writes: Why is it I cannot eat a raw onion without getting a sick feeling and burning down my stomach that makes my body burning hot and causes vomiting? I also get a headache, which lasts about five minutes. Strong or mild, I get the same result.

REPLY.

You seem to be sensitized to onions. Avoid them. You do not need them.

BOTULINUS POISON.

Mrs. I. H. K. writes: I saw recently a notice of the third victim in two weeks who died from botulinus poison.

1. Will you kindly explain this form of poison?
2. Does it occur in jams, jellies, etc.
3. In pickles that are put up like dills in cold water?
4. Does the health officer's warning mean they should be boiled in an open kettle before canning in order to destroy the botulinus bacteria?
5. Any advice on the safest way to can in order to avoid these bacteria shall be greatly appreciated, as I have heard of it but never understood how one was to combat it.

REPLY.

1. This bacillus is found in many soils. It gets into meats and vegetables. When foods that contain it are canned without being properly cleaned and heated to a high temperature, the bacillus multiplies and secretes a poison. It grows only in substances from which the air has been excluded, as in canned goods. It does not develop in sour substances. Food that contains botulinus poison is apt to taste and smell suspicious. However, this is not a safe sign to follow, and tasting a highly poisonous food may cause death. Botulinus usually causes vomiting and diarrhea. It is liable to be a day or more in causing symptoms. The symptoms are usually located in the nervous system. Double vision is apt to be the first sign.
2. Rarely, if ever.
3. Same as 2.
4. That amount of heat is not enough.
5. Select good food articles to be canned. Reject all that are not in good condition. Wash and clean well. Sterilize by steam under pressure. The temperature must be carried higher than 212 and, in boiling, the temperature does not go above that level. When suitable, use vinegar or other sour ingredients in the foods to be canned. Botulinus does not thrive in sour stuff.

BOOZE NOT ALWAYS VILLAIN.

S. E. W. writes: What causes red or purple places on the skin which, on close inspection, are tiny blood vessels very close to the surface. I have had those places on my legs for several years and now I notice the same thing on my chest. I am 25 years of age, 5 feet 6½ inches tall, and weigh 118 pounds.

REPLY.

Drinking whisky is generally charged with being the cause of these small varicosities. It is sometimes the cause. More frequently it is not. I do not know the cause of those cases not due to whisky drinking.

PERIL IN BROMIDES.

Miss A. G. writes: Is it harmful in any way to make a daily habit of taking two or three bromides? I know some one who can't seem to do without them.

REPLY.

It is. Bromide is a habit forming drug. It dulls the mind and changes the personality. People who use it lose coördination and are prone to hallucinations. A minor effect occasionally noted is a bromide eruption.

BURNING OF REFUSE.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—[Friend of the People.]—The store owners nearby our home are in the habit of burning their garbage and other refuse in the alley. This pile of garbage, etc., is usually smoldering every morning, polluting the neighborhood with its vile odor. At night time it is a feasting place for rats. What can be done to abate this nuisance? R. B. G.

Report is made that notices were served on storekeepers to discontinue burning of refuse in alley and assurance has been given there will be no further cause for complaint. Alley will also be kept under observation.

APARTMENT LEASE.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I rented an apartment four years ago without a lease, the manager of the building saying that for each year I remained I would receive the twelfth month free. For two years this was done. Now the building is in charge of a bondholders' committee and I am told that when they took possession all leases, agreements, etc., became void and that they cannot live up to the agreement made with the previous manager. 1. I would like to know if this statement pertaining to all agreements becoming null and void is true and, under the circumstances, if books covering the receivership of a building are unavailable to a bondholders' committee. H. F. B.

It is true in the sense that the receiver could repudiate such agreement, but in absence of express repudiation it would be presumed that the terms of the previous tenancy continued.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TOO SMALL FOR PROBATE.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband died two years ago. I have some land under his name, worth about $120, in Michigan. 1. If I were to sell this land, must this go through Probate court? There are minors. 2. About how much would the cost be? 3. Could this be settled some other way? B. S.

1. Court proceedings would be necessary in order to produce a merchantable title, but where the value of the property is so small probate would hardly be worth while and you might be able to find a purchaser who would be willing to waive probate.
2. The attorney's fee would be the largest item, and we are not in a position to estimate this.
3. See 1.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ARTICLES IN PAWN.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Several months ago I pawned a shotgun and received a thirty day ticket for it, thinking I had a twelve month ticket. It was my impression that no article pawned was forfeited until it had been left twelve months or more. Am I right, or are these thirty day tickets legal if they are not signed by the holder? 2. Also, has a pawnbroker a right to make your ticket out for $6 when he only lends one $5, and also charge interest of 10 per cent per month on $6? C. P.

1. The state law requires that articles be held a year. In our opinion this cannot be superseded by private agreement.
2. No. The legal maximum interest is 3 per ment per month and the additional charge would make the interest usurious, so that he would not be entitled to collect any interest.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 23, 1916.

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson and leaders of the railroad executives at a White House conference laid the foundation for an agreement which it is believed will result in a settlement of the wage controversy between the carriers and their employés. As a result of the conference a general strike of the 400,000 train operating employés of the 225 railroads of the country is now regarded an extremely remote possibility. The railroad chiefs are ready to yield to the establishment of the eight hour day with the understanding that the carriers shall be granted an advance of freight rates sufficient to offset the increase in wages.

LONDON.—The British have made a further advance between Martinpuich and Bazentin where they captured 100 yards of German trenches, the war office says. British troops on the Somme front have advanced along a line a half-mile long in the region of Pozieres and have also made an advance near the Lepsic salient. The Germans are stubbornly clinging to their hold on Guillemont, although sustaining heavy casualties as a result of the terrific British artillery fire on the place.

PARIS.—Progress was made by the French on the Somme front north of the river in the outskirts of Clery. South of the river the French captured trenches near Estress and Soyecourt.

PARIS.—The allies have captured a series of heights west of Vardar river on the Saloniki front, the war office says. On both wings advanced detachments have fallen back before the counter offensive of the Bulgarians.

BERLIN.—Heavy attacks by both the British and the French on the Somme front have been repulsed by German troops, the war office announced. The British attacked between Thiepval and Pozieres but only succeeded in capturing one advance salient. South of the Somme trenches lost to the French in an attack were recaptured by a German counter attack.

SOFIA.—Further advances for the Bulgarians in the Struma valley on the Macedonian front are announced by the Bulgarian war office.

BERLIN.—The Russians are continuing their determined efforts to advance west of the Stokhod river in Volhynia near Rudka-Cherbische, but have been repulsed by Bavarian cavalry and Austrian dragoons who inflicted heavy losses on the attacking forces.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—Champions of Wisconsin and Indiana and the Chicago city champion, Mrs. Melvin Jones of Glen Oak, were eliminated as championship possibilities in the first round of the women's western championship at the Kent Country club here. The state champions to fall were Mrs. E. R. Whitcomb of Wisconsin, who was outclassed by Miss E. Rosenthal, the western champion, and Mrs. Harry G. Hammond, Indiana title holder, who was defeated by Miss Louise Fergus of Glen View. Miss Marjorie Edwards of Midlothian was eliminated by Miss Vera Gardiner of Glen Oak.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Gus Christie of Milwaukee won the decision over Knockout Brown of Chicago in an eight round bout here.

CHICAGO.—Funeral services were held for Charles Ffrench, member of the board of education and former president of the Irish Fellowship club, in St. Thomas the Apostle Roman Catholic church. Fifty automobiles and several thousand mourners on foot went from the residence at 5850 Harper avenue to the church for the services.

CHICAGO.—Invitations have been issued to the wedding of Miss Blanche Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Spencer of Baltimore, Md., and George Thomas Solitt of 4526 Woodlawn avenue, on Sept. 6, in Baltimore.

MAN POWER.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—In reply to the question by T. B. and others, a man pushing or pulling horizontally on a capstan or oar can be expected to develop 1,526,000 foot pounds of energy in an eight hour day. Raising his own weight up a stair or ladder he could develop 2,050,000 foot pounds per eight hour day, which amount of power could theoretically be delivered by an inclined treadmill or "man wheel." For authority see Kent's Mechanical Engineer's Handbook, 8th edition, page 507.

I have no data for amount of power which could be developed by pedals, but in my opinion it would be markedly less than by either of the above methods. This is no doubt the reason that pedals have not generally been used to develop man power. C. A. BENJAMIN.

Chicago Aug. 18.—Man power can be most efficiently delivered by means of the treadmill. The fact that treadmills are still used in Asiatic countries indicates that man has by experience found this method of transmission to be most efficient. In pedaling a bicycle or in rowing, where specialized groups of muscles are called into play, the element of fatigue is greater and, in consequence, muscular efficiency lessened.

EDGAR T. MOSELEY.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—My answer is pedal locomotion is the most effective of the three, for the simple reason walking a treadmill or pulling an oar tires the muscles of the body after three or four hours and energy lags, thus decreasing efficiency and effectiveness ere the 8 hours are up, whereas pedaling at a moderate pace conserves energy and therefore is not as severe a bodily strain.

There are, however, different angles to this question; it depends a lot on circumstances. THOS. LARSEN.

MR. BROOKHART'S VICTIMS.

Osage, Ia., Aug. 13.—In your editorial of Aug. 9, entitled "Field of Iowa," you say, with particular reference to Senator Brookhart, "The radicals have become ridiculous and the condition of the people they have deluded has become pathetic." By "the people they have deluded" you intended, of course, to include those who helped to send Brookhart to the senate. The condition of most of them, as well as that of most of his other constituents, is in fact pathetic. I am no admirer of Brookhart, and yet I am at a loss to understand why you lay the blame for that condition upon him. Just what "preposterous proposal" of his has he ever succeeded in enacting into law? What radical law has he ever persuaded congress and the President to place on the statute books? Or, when you speak of the people that Brookhart has deluded, do you have in mind those whom he persuaded, in the last presidential campaign, to vote for Mr. Hoover, who conceived and procured the creation of the farm board and signed the Hawley-Smoot tariff act? L. L. SCHMALTZ.

REAL BEER.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—In reply to G. C. M. of West Lafayette, Ind., in regard to what will happen to home brew when [not if, but when] real beer is here: As sure as you're alive the American people that so desire—and there are millions of them—will be drinking real beer inside of a year. The best home brew is still a substitute. When real beer, brewed scientifically, with a quenching, mellow taste that is healthful and satisfying, comes back to us like a long lost brother, home brew goes out. The problem of the home brewer changing to a purchased product, even at a higher price, will take care of itself because of higher quality that is dependable and really drinkable. G. L.

A LADY WHO LIKES TO SWIM.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—I was extremely interested in your article in a recent issue regarding not being permitted to swim at our beaches on the south side.

I have had exactly the same experience. I am a member of the London Royal Life Saving society, London, England, and each summer always try to swim a few miles each day to keep fit for the winter months, and also to reduce. I located a couple of blocks from 63d and Stony Island avenue, to be near Jackson park beach, and thought I would be able to swim every day all summer, until I soon found out differently from the very diligent lifeguards. Very often I could get out before they saw me and could get in a real swim, but when they did intercept me I always came back without protest until a couple of weeks ago one of the guards got me when I was about five feet out and ordered me in such a contemptuous way I felt I could not with self-respect obey him, which was unwise on my part.

You may be interested to know that this guard became so angry at my refusal that he threatened several times to strike me on the head with his paddle, which he was excitedly waving at me, and calling me some very choice names, during which time I must admit, however, I was not entirely silent myself. I knew I could easily evade his paddle, but when he circled me so close that I was in real danger from his outboard motor I pointed to my husband on the shore and said, "Go ahead and strike; there is my husband watching." He immediately turned and motored away.

I am so disappointed in these glorious beaches. Now I go to 67th street beach, but it is so far away I cannot go every day as I had so confidently planned on doing in the beginning of the season. Cannot something be done to allow swimmers to take advantage of the warm waters and beaches nowhere else to be found? It is impossible to swim in five feet of water. Were it not for this restriction, the beaches in Chicago would indeed be wonderful. EDNA MORRISSEY.

AN ISSUE DISPOSED OF.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Now, since there is practically no difference of opinion about the liquor question between the two principal candidates for President, Mr. Hoover having gone farther than the Republican platform and Mr. Roosevelt not quite as far as the Democratic platform, the liquor question should be allowed to rest until after election. Nothing can be done about it until next December, when congress reconvenes, and it should not be used as a smoke screen with which to obscure the mental vision of the average voter. At the very greatest it is only a subject of minor importance, especially so at this time, when far greater issues are clamoring for solution. Let us hope that THE TRIBUNE finds itself big enough to write on subjects that are of vital interest to all of us instead of trying to fill us, its readers, with a lot of twaddle. HARRY HANSEN.

JUDGE LANDIS.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—The recent publicity given our Cub baseball team makes one wonder just what good to the great game of baseball Judge Landis really is.

Judge Landis has capitalized about long enough on his so-called fine to the Standard Oil company, which was never paid, and we are wondering if it would not be a good thing for baseball for Judge Landis to be read out of it. Some man should be given the job who would not pussyfoot, especially on the eve of a crucial game, and by his action, or lack of action, cast a doubt on the integrity and honesty of our Chicago ball players. LOANS BY R. F. C. MADE PUBLIC BY CLERK OF HOUSE

Total Is $46,711,056 for 11 Days in July.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—The first detailed accounting of the activities of the 3 billion 800 million dollar Reconstruction Finance corporation was opened to inspection today with the publication of the initial report made by the corporation under the much argued "publicity clause" of the recently approved relief act.

The report was made available by South Trimble, clerk of the house of representatives, and contains the itemized record of the corporation's transactions from July 21, when the relief act was signed, to July 31, inclusive.

437 Are Authorized.

During those eleven days, the report showed, the directors of the corporation authorized 437 new loans aggregating $45,057,556, and increases of former loans totaling $1,653,500 to banks and other credit institutions and to railroads. The total so loaned was $46,711,056.

Under the new relief provisions, three million dollars was authorized to be loaned to Illinois. And five million dollars was allocated to the secretary of agriculture to be used for commodity loans direct to farmers.

The largest loan made to a bank in the Chicago territory during the period reported on was that of $415,000 to the City National Bank and Trust company of Evanston. Two Chicago banks received loans. These were the Mid-City Trust and Savings bank, which obtained $320,000, and the Lake View Trust and Savings bank, which obtained $170,000. The Avenue State bank of Oak Park was the recipient of a loan of $280,000.

Illinois Bank Loans.

The total of loans to Illinois banks during the period was $1,840,500, and the complete list was as follows:

CHICAGO.
Lake View Tr. and Savings bank	$170,000
Mid-City Trust and Savings bank..	320,000
BATAVIA.
Batavia National bank	20,000
CICERO.
Western State Bank of Cicero	35,000
Western State Bank of Cicero	45,000
DUNDEE.
First National bank	72,500
EVANSTON.
City National Bank and Tr. Co.....	415,000
OAK PARK.
Avenue State bank	280,000
WHEATON.
Wheaton Trust and Savings bank...	97,000
BEECHER.
Farmers' State bank	20,000
BLOOMINGTON.
First National Bank & Tr. Co.....	50,000

Buena Vista State bank	46,000
FREEPORT.
Union Bank and Tr. Co.	94,000
GALENA.
First State and Savings bank.....	15,000
GRIDLEY.
State Bank of Gridley	12,000
LOMAX.
Commercial Tr. and Savings bank.	15,000
QUINCY.
State Savings Loan and Tr. Co.....	75,000
State Street Bank and Tr. Co.	56,000

The report constituted the first occasion on which the names of Lorrowing institutions and the amounts loaned them have been made public. Since the publicity mandate passed by congress was not made retroactive, the names of institutions which had borrowed prior to July 21 were not mentioned. A total of 4,947 institutions had borrowed up to July 31, so that 4,510 escaped the publicity requirement.

Total 866 Millions.

Though it figured as the main feature of the report, the list of borrowers was, however, only a part of the larger picture presented. At the close of business on July 31 the corporation had made and disbursed loans totaling $866,047,522, and had authorized but not yet disbursed loans totaling $223,882,599. It had made available but not yet disbursed the $3,000,000 relief loan to Illinois and had allocated a total of $97,500,000 to the secretary of agriculture, of which $75,000,000 had been advanced.

Adding in $39,396,481 of cash on deposit with the treasurer of the United States, $8,409,776 in accrued interest receivable, and other assets, the total assets of the corporation on July 31 were reported as $1,239,929,651.

The loans to banks and trust companies, it was noted, included $29,502,250 to aid in the reorganization and liquidation of closed banks.

In addition to the loans shown in the statement of condition, it was explained that the corporation had outstanding on July 31 agreements to make loans totaling $875,000 upon the performance of specified conditions.

Loans of which the proceeds had been disbursed, less repayments, were scheduled as follows:

Banks and trust companies.	$505,129,665.56
Credit unions	369,684.00
Building and loan associat's.	56,867,230.38
Insurance companies	49,142,815.17
Federal land banks.....	9,000,000.00
Joint stock land banks.....	1,126,294.66
Live stock credit corp.....	6,846,287.38
Mortgage loan companies....	72,801,896.73
Agricultural credit corps...	681,852.63
Railroads [includ. receivers].	164,082,596.76
Total	$866,047,522.87

Loans authorized, but the proceeds of which had not yet been disbursed, were as follows:

Banks and trust companies.	$115,681,810.86
Credit unions	31,848.00
Building and loan associat's.	3,816,528.72
Insurance companies	16,187,611.68
Federal land banks.....	17,000,000.00
Joint stock land banks.....	269,190.88
Live stock credit corps.....	435,181.13
Mortgage loan companies....	5,306,343.37
Agricultural credit corp.....	78,752.03
Railroads [includ. receivers]	57,075,532.50
Total	$223,882,599.17

Distribution of Loans.

The 437 loans made during the period from July 21 to July 31 were distributed as follows:

Banks and trust companies [including receivers]	$ 32,990,180.23
Agricultural credit corps....	104,309.58
Building and loan associat's.	3,088,650.00
Insurance companies	2,247,500.00
Joint stock land banks.....	90,000.00
Live stock credit corps.....	580,716.29
Mortgage loan companies....	747,000.00
Railroads	6,862,700.00

Loans to banks in central states other than Illinois were:

A total of $680,000 to eight banks in Indiana; $990,000 to twenty-six banks in Iowa; $1,775,000 to seventeen banks in Michigan; and $2,313,500 to twenty-six banks in Wisconsin.

Some of the Wisconsin loans were as follows:

WISCONSIN—Coon Valley, Coon Valley State bank, $100,000; Fond du Lac, Commercial National bank, $265,000; Kenosha, United States National Bank and Trust company, $160,000; Madison, Security State bank, $100,000; Milwaukee, Badger State bank, $225,000; Milwaukee, North Avenue State bank, $475,000; Two Rivers, Bank of Two Rivers, $170,000; Wauwatosa, First National bank, $240,000.

Interest 5 and 5½ Per Cent.

With the exception of three banks in the hands of receivers which were charged interest at a rate of 5 per cent, banks and trust companies received their loans at an interest rate of 5½ per cent.

In size the loans ranged from $1,500 up to the $3,800,000 granted the Bank of America National Trust and Savings bank of San Francisco.

Nowhere did the report mention what collateral for the loans had been put up.

Five railroads received loans during the period embraced by the report. These were:

Buffalo Union-Carolina	$ 53,000
Denver and Rio Grande Western	1,000,000
Minn., St. Paul and S. Ste. Marie ..	5,000,000
New York, Chicago and St. Louis .	700,000
Texas, Oklahoma and Eastern	108,740

Railroads Pay 6 Per Cent.

The corporation charged the railroads interest at the rate of 6 per cent. Among loans to building and loan associations were one of $17,500 to the Batavia Savings and Building association of Batavia, Ill., and one of $20,000 to the Kedzie Building and Loan association of Chicago.

In addition to Illinois' application for a relief loan which was granted the report stated that ten other applications for relief loans to states were made and 20 applications for loans to finance self-liquidating construction projects.

Certain of these relief applications have since been granted, as has also a second application from Illinois in the sum of $6,000,000, making Illinois relief debt to the corporation to date $9,000,000.

The corporation's method of financing the loans was also shown in the report. Its original half billion dollars of capital was subscribed by the treasury. Two series of notes, each series aggregating 250 million dollars and bearing interest at 3½ per cent, have been issued. The first series and all but $25,000,000 of the second series had been purchased by the treasury at the time of the report. On July 23 the directors of the corporation authorized the issuance of a third series of notes bearing the same rate of interest and maturing Oct. 27, 1932.

MOVE TO SPLIT UP NEW SOUTH WALES

PUBLICITY ON LOANS NOT POLITICAL MOVE, CLERK TRIMBLE SAYS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—A denial of charges that his decision to publish the reports of the Reconstruction Finance corporation had been a political move, was issued today by South Trimble, clerk of the house of representatives.

He was replying to the recent assertion of Representative Allen T. Treadway [Rep., Mass.] that Mr. Trimble had acted as he did in order to gain favor with Speaker John N. Garner, Democratic candidate for the vice presidency who was an advocate of publicity for the reports.

Mr. Trimble issued his answer to Mr. Treadway at the same time that he opened the first of the reports to public inspection.

Mr. Trimble called the Treadway charge "ridiculous" and said that he had acted upon the legal advice of his son. The law, he declared left him no discretion in the matter.

He also revealed that ten minutes before he announced his decision last week a "high official in the administration" called him on the telephone to ask what his decision would be. Mr. Trimble told the official.

"He stated," said Mr. Trimble, "that my decision was contrary to the wishes of the President and was not authorized by law."

FIGHT TO CUT UP LARGEST STATE IN AUSTRALIA

Enemies of Radicals Push Plans.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 22.—Constitutional steps for the creation of three new states out of the present boundaries of New South Wales are being pushed by the country party movement, led by Dr. Earle Page, former federal treasurer of the commonwealth in the Stanley Bruce nationalist government. At a convention in Sydney the party proposed a plan for submission to the present New South Wales government.

The Country party's formal and constitutional request for the subdivision of Australia's largest state into three new states is the culmination of an agrarian agitation for self-government and freedom from the domination of the city labor cliques in both the state and federal governments.

The final plans of the Country party, which is linked with the new United Australian party, calls for the following subdivision:

NEW ENGLAND—To comprise the northeast section of New South Wales with Newcastle the principal port and Tamworth the capital.

NEW SOUTH WALES—To comprise the central and western portions of the present state with Sydney as the principal port and capital.

RIVERINA—To comprise the southern section of the present state.

Serious obstacles obstruct the movement from the aspect of finance, political control of railways and the national problem of admitting new states into the commonwealth. Constitutionally, no new states may be created in the commonwealth without a revision of the federal constitution and without a referendum on the matter within the state to be subdivided.

The principal objective of the Country party in demanding a subdivision of New South Wales is to offset any future danger of the country or agriculture districts falling under the influence of radical forces.

Russia Orders Death for Kulak Woman; Stole Grain

SAMARA, U. S. S. R., Aug. 22.—(AP)—A kulak (well to do peasant) woman, named Gribanova, today became the first of her sex to receive the death penalty under a new decree classifying as capital offenses thefts from collective farms. The woman was sentenced to be shot after she had been convicted of stealing grain near the village of Osinovka.

FARMER STRIKE HITS 7 STATES; PICKET OMAHA

Massmeetings, Blockades for Better Prices.

Sioux City, Ia., Aug. 22.—(AP)—The farmers' holiday movement picked up today a cyclone like movement which carried it into many parts of the middle west and west, affecting seven states in all.

In Iowa, where the strike for higher produce prices originated, it stirred up a host of mass meetings, parades, blockades and attacks on trucks. Officials of the National Farm Holiday association reported growing strength in other central and western states.

In Minnesota, Gov. Floyd B. Olson declared his willingness to join governors of other states in a plan, "even martial law," to stop farm marketing until prices rise.

Successful in curbing all truck shipments into Sioux City, leaders of the strike turned their attention to the nation's second largest livestock market and set up a barricade across the two main highways from Iowa into Omaha.

Reaches to Idaho.

More than 400 farmers near Lewiston, Idaho, agreed not to sell any of their 5,000,000 bushels of wheat for sixty days except at a profit.

A state wide meeting of South Dakota officials was called to determine their sentiment on starting a strike in that state.

Farmers gathered in LeMars, Cherokee, Boone and other Iowa cities to plan further extensions of their campaign and to demand that creameries, produce houses and other markets be closed during the holiday period, or until they get better prices.

Sioux Center Mass Meeting.

Five hundred farmers of Cherokee and Plymouth counties, in northeast Iowa, met on the county line and then paraded through three counties and eleven towns near there. At Sioux Center they staged a meeting tonight. There was an attendance of 1,000 farmers and 800 stockholders.

The coöperative creamery decided overwhelmingly against closing the plant.

After a day of quiet picketing on six roads leading into Spencer, Ia., 200 farmers returned home tonight prepared to go to work again tomorrow in enforcing the blockade on farm produce. Receipts of farm products dropped to almost nothing today but farmers were reported to be taking their produce to smaller towns where much larger receipts were reported.

Eric Carbon, leader of the Clay county strikers, said today the blockade will end when the local buyers agree to close in coöperation with the farmers and that smaller towns will follow Spencer's lead.

Government May Step In.

Possibility that the United States government might take action was foreseen by A. O. Epperson, assistant United States attorney, at Omaha. He said that the United States might intervene on the grounds that the farmers had "entered a conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce by hindering, delaying or preventing shipments." The farmers also might be accused of operating a combination in restraint of interstate commerce, he said.

WOMAN RELIEF WORKER BEATEN IN PAY DISPUTE

Kidnaped by Idlers She Had Aided.

Charles City, Ia., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Disputing over the wages they were paid from the city relief fund, a party of unemployed men today abducted Miss Marion Stull, Floyd county overseer of the poor, and held her prisoner for several hours.

She was released after being struck and rendered unconscious for a short time near New Hampton, thirty miles east of here, with an order to stay out of Charles City.

Five of seven men who accompanied her on the automobile ride were among eleven later arrested and charged with kidnaping.

Unemployed Put to Work.

Unemployed men put to work in county roads and community gardens were paid $2 per day, the wood cutters asserted, adding they worked nine hours.

Between 50 and 75 workers invaded Miss Stull's office this morning. When she appeared they forced her into the car with seven men and sped away. At New Hampton they released her and abandoned her car. She drove to Alta Vista and telephoned Mayor G. C. Gray here that she was safe.

Miss Stull said the men had beaten her, twisted her knees and struck her in the back of the head and that she lost consciousness. Bruises were found on her arms and head, but she was not seriously hurt.

She identified Chester Coving, one of those under arrest. Others arrested whom she identified were Don Dodd, John Bauer, Joe Sievers and Ellwood Mohring. Arrested with them were Henry Ness, president of the Unemployed association; Kenneth Emerson, James Smith, Girvin Hutton, Martin Hallberg and Russell O'Connell.

Miss Stull said all of the men had been employed on the city's relief works. She said that the number of days of work depended upon the size of the worker's family.

The workers claimed that Miss Stull had not "treated them with proper respect."

SLAYERS IN TRIPLE SACK MURDER ARE SOUGHT BY 2 STATES

New York, Aug. 22.—[Special.]—New York and New Jersey authorities are coöperating in a hunt for the slayers of the three sack murder victims whose bodies were found last Sunday, two of them in a vacant lot a Harrison, N. J., and the third in North Bergen, N. J. Police are convinced that all three were murdered in New York and their bodies taken in automobiles to where they were found.

The victims found in Harrison were Vincent Boccio, known also as Joseph Di Maio, and Andrew Fabrizie. Both had police records. The North Bergen victim, William Maloney of Union City, N. J., was a former speakeasy proprietor and one time partner of William Cassidy who, with Simon Walker, an ex-convict, was shot and killed in a fight in the Hotsy Totsy club in New York in July, 1929.

JETTA GOUDAL

"STAGE and screen stars know that no woman can keep her charm without a perfect complexion," says Jetta Goudal, intriguing screen star.

"I am 30 years old. There was a time when no woman would tell her age, but nowadays a woman need not hesitate to admit her years if she keeps her complexion 'the eternal 18.'

"I find Lux Toilet Soap a great help in keeping the complexion young. I use it as do hundreds of other stars."

Of the 694 important Hollywood actresses, including all stars, 686 are devoted to this fragrant, caressing soap. All the great film studios have made it their official soap—so gentle and beautifully white no other soap can rival it!

NEVER UP—NEVER IN!

THE sweetest putter in the world will never sink your ball unless you put enough punch behind it. You can measure the distance to the cup and worry about the lie, but if you don't hit hard enough—well, it's just another stroke on your card.

Advertising is like that. You can figure out copy slants, debate layouts and headlines, but if you don't reach enough people in a market you hardly start a ripple in it.

Because they were asleep at the switch during the past 15 years while the population of Chicago and suburbs increased by 409,541 families—55%—some Chicago newspapers make a virtue out of failure.

No one stays small by choice! Every newspaper in Chicago has made strenuous efforts to get circulation. But to get it and to hold it—you've got to print the news the public wants.

The Tribune is the only Chicago newspaper that reaches every other family in the city and suburbs. It has 36 per cent more daily circulation in this community than any other newspaper. It reaches practically as many readers as any two other Chicago newspapers combined.

It is the only publication that has the coverage, that packs the power to build the sales volume available in this market—and needed by advertisers today.

You just can't get the volume you want with advertising media that reach only a fragment of purchasing power and that don't have enough reader interest to sell themselves in their own markets.

Never was the superior ability of the Tribune to produce sales volume for advertisers more evident than today. During the past 15 years, while every other Chicago newspaper published in 1917 was slipping, the Tribune steadily forged ahead, penetrating and saturating every level of family life.

The Tribune increased its daily coverage of the families of Chicago and suburbs from 36 per cent in 1917 to 55 per cent in 1932. The Daily News dropped from 57 per cent coverage to 35 per cent. The American dropped from 42 per cent coverage to 40 per cent. Other papers in existence in 1917 either lost ground, merged or failed.

The Tribune is the most popular newspaper in Chicago and suburbs. It is constantly increasing the preference of readers because it is constantly increasing its service to them. As the newspaper which has made the most out of market possibilities it does the best job for advertisers.

Ask a Tribune salesman for further facts and about the new discounts which enable advertisers to buy more space to get more sales in Chicago and suburbs.

Families and Daily Newspaper Circulations In Metropolitan Chicago

	1917		1932
	Number	Coverage	Number	Coverage
Families	748,136	....	1,157,677	....
Tribune	270,810	36%	634,778	55%
American	313,800	42%	467,648	40%
News	428,746	57%	404,917	35%

Note: Circulations are averages for six months' periods ended March 31.

1917 was a memorable year! It marked America's entrance into the war and the beginning of sweeping changes in ideas, institutions, habits.

In 1917 the Tribune reached 36% of metropolitan Chicago's 748,136 families. It was third in volume of daily city and suburban circulation. Today it is first.

Fifteen years brought a 55% increase in families and a gain of 134% in Tribune circulation. Today the Tribune reaches 55% of the families in this great market—a gain of 53% in density of coverage—while every other Chicago daily newspaper published in 1917 slipped, merged, or went out of business.

Lackaye's Wit as Famous as His Stage Life

Noted Actor Known for "Wisecracks."

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

THE death of Wilton Lackaye at 1 a. m. yesterday—an event which was chronicled in the final editions of THE TRIBUNE—removed from the roster of the American stage an actor of unique personality. For forty years he was a brilliant figure in the rich theatrical life of his period. On the stage he was a sound and commanding actor of many picturesque rôles; off the stage, he was a man of vivid social gifts, much sought after and admired in the free companionship of clubs, cafés, baseball parks and race track gatherings. For wherever Lackaye went, there was likely to be a sparkle of wit.

In a profession that has a tradition for merry quips and ironic retorts, Lackaye's name led all the rest. He had the quickest, sharpest, merriest tongue in the American theater. Epigrams were his specialty, and his satirical sense of humor was always active.

Bon-mots, jeux d'esprit, puns, persiflage and all the other varieties of witty remarks, now popularly labeled "wise-cracks," were his natural medium of expression. He perpetrated or emitted them without strain or pose; no one ever got the impression that Lackaye wasted any time in preparing his jests for their audience. He was absolutely extempore, and he invariably rang the bell of laughter.

Lackaye's epigrams were uttered in a light, purring, unctuous voice which took much of the sting out of its sarcasm. Many other famous wits have been cordially hated by their targets; but Lackaye's method seemed to salve the wound. He was often an unkind humorist, but his arrows seemed to carry no poison.

His jests were so clean cut that they clung to the memory of their bearers. They were treasured as worth repeating, were passed on from one Rialto habitué to another, until finally they became regarded as classic. He was not a poseur who tried to talk for posterity, but many of his casual, street corner remarks have been kept alive for years.

The first time I ever met Lackaye was on a street corner—at Clark and Randolph streets, of course—and our conversation lasted less than two minutes. He was on the wing, and in a matter of fact, afternoon frame of mind. He said something, however, which I took pleasure in repeating and which has been passed on so often that it is one of the standard items of the Lackaye anthology of wit and wisdom.

The name of a certain dramatic critic, who had spoken harshly of Lackaye's current play, was mentioned. This writer had a side line: he was also press agent for the Grand Opera house, then owned by the Messrs. Hamlin.

"A critic, you call him?" Lackaye purred. "I call him the Paid Piper of Hamlin."

Once, it is recalled, a dramatic combination was proposing to produce his play founded on Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" and Lackaye was asked about it. "Produce it?" he remarked. "Why, they can't even pronounce it."

Many wits have won reputations with epigrams on the subject of women—Bartlett's book of quotations is full of such utterances. Lackaye was once challenged to add his saying to this vast collection, and he promptly answered with a remark that tells the whole story. This epigram may not be as ornamental as Oscar Wilde's "Women Are Sphinxes Without Secrets," but it covers more ground. Said Lackaye:

"I do not dislike women; I merely understand them."

This was said to Mae Tinée of THE TRIBUNE [then a very little girl, although an accomplished interviewer] in 1910.

Miss Tinée also asked Lackaye what he thought of dramatic critics, and got this response:

"They are always at the tail of the procession, yelling 'Come on.'"

After many years of this sort of thing, Lackaye was persuaded to compile a book of epigrams. He gave it the title of "Laconigrams, Projected or Purloined by the Author." This brochure, now a collector's item, contains a choice assortment of pithy sayings. For example:

"The shadow you see most often in life is your own."

"The flatterer says, 'Bless you'; the cynic says, 'Damn you'—and neither of them means it."

"Arguments are vulgar—and then, the other fellow is often right."

A star who often appeared in plays that were regarded as suggestive was about to dedicate a new and extremely large theater, designed in opera house proportions. He went to inspect the building a few days before the premiere, with Lackaye as his companion. He surveyed the spacious auditorium ruefully and then said:

"Rather a barn, this place—but then, my play has been called broad."

"Well," Lackaye answered, "here you can be obscene but not heard."

Thousands of humorists have claimed this joke for their own; and even if Lackaye did not invent it, he was a pioneer in its use.

His facile tongue was at its best during rehearsals of the plays in which he starred, and many a young player burned under the flick of his irony. He made dozens of tender ingenues cry—and thus taught them to become better actresses. One of these girls, after bungling a scene twenty or thirty times, appealed to him wistfully, saying:

"You are an artist and know what I mean. I have the feeling for the part but can't express it."

"Yes, yes," Lackaye said, "I know what you mean. I have the feeling of a violin, but I can't express it."

Lackaye's longest run in Chicago was in the rôle of a wheat market speculator in "The Pit," dramatized from Frank Norris' novel, during the fall of 1903. The pit of the Chicago Board of Trade during a panic was

Cape Triumphant Over Sleeves in French Dresses

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Of all trends revealed by the fashions seen during the last week of the social season in Paris, the cape sleeve was the most triumphant. It is a safe and sane estimate to say that 50 per cent of the smart frock worn during that week had short cape sleeves. Often the cape sleeve is sleeve in name only, for a cape or bertha around the shoulders of a sleeveless frock serves as sleeves. Other frocks have actual capes around the arms.

The Molyneux dress shown in our sketch today, is one of the smartest and least banal of the cape-sleeved frocks that I've seen recently. This dress is made of a transparent wool, as smooth and almost as sheer as chiffon, and in a beautiful shade of olive green. The blouse is perfectly plain, and the cape-sleeve detail is cut in one with the blouse front on the left side. It goes over the top of the arm, crosses the back of the blouse as a cape, over the right arm, and buttons on in front with two green buttons.

The neckline of this frock is round and close to the base of the throat. A little scarf of red and white dotted crêpe de chine is tucked in this neckline. A bag of the same dotted crêpe is worn with the dress.

The skirt of the frock is a wrap around skirt fastened in the center front with three buttons from the waistline. The belt is of green leather.

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

Now I'm no optimist—and DON'T call me Pollyanna!—but Happy Days are here again and there are proofs.

Evidence I would proffer to your honors is the long queue of waiters-in-line at the opening of McVickers Friday, and the packed houses the Madison street house has sustained since that time. After which, wouldst point with pride to the fact that the first show at the Palace Saturday packed the main floor, comfortably filled the galleries and saw a line in front waiting for the second.

Think a bit and draw your own conclusions. [You see I'm just back from the open spaces and notice things that maybe you haven't.]

Of this there can be no doubt—people want to laugh. The Marx Brothers are knocking them off their seats in "Horse Feathers," while Wheeler and Woolsey and Edna May Oliver are achieving like results, in somewhat lesser degree, in "Hold 'Em Jail." This, like the former offering, is nuttily concerned with football.

The crying need of the Bide More [or Bide Long, forget which] penitentiary for girdiron experts, results in a frameup on two novelty salesmen, Curly and Spider, who have made the mistake of bragging too big to a warden.

Their incarceration in the Big House follows with dispatch, and their adventures in that peculiarly conducted institution occupy the rest of the film's footage.

The story is just plain foolishness and there is no sense to the dialogue. Thus fortified the W's and Edna May, completely at their ease, make merry in fashion eliciting the shouts that must make glad the hearts of the management.

The supporting cast is a smart and peppy one—according special mention to Paul Hurst and Warren Hymer. Direction was efficiently attended to by Norman Taurog, who, you may remember, megaphoned for "Skippy."

The short comedy preceding the feature is enjoyably insane. Russ Columbo and his band head the vaudeville acts that round out a generally pleasing program.

See you tomorrow.

Suits Continue Vogue Despite All Predictions

Tweed Ones Have Stylish Accessories.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

SUITS, in spite of extensive research, pie charts and everything else to prove that these all-American favorites aren't as favored as of former seasons, still storm the best stores and are grabbed by all the fashion wise shoppers. They are, as you may gather, very hard to resist. You may have coats and one piece frocks and ensembles and costumes, but if there isn't a big enough balance in your clothes budget to afford one of the new fall suits you'll differ with your conscience and filch sufficient funds from the other appropriations that decorate the household budget sheet.

You can get tweed suits for what is known among sprightly suit sellers as a song—suits that boast of a swagger three-quarter length coat with wide loose long sleeves and a tiny stand-up collar. The same modest price tag probably includes a clever short sleeved sweater with bright hued stripes streaking across the chest, a plain tailored slightly flared skirt and a vagabond matching tweed hat with a brim—all this for a startlingly small amount of cash, pessimistic unbelievers, please notice.

If you are the proud owner of a pedigreed fox scarf or a fur piece that sniffs for a suitable atmosphere, the new collarless models are what you have been dreaming about. There is a snooty black ostrich cloth suit that is just complicated enough to get into to win special attention. The skirt is fashioned high around the ribs—thereby assuring the new and form fitting silhouette—it ties nonchalantly over a soft ribbed silk sleeveless blouse that is a perfect example of what a good blouse designer can do to make a different looking blouse. The high square cut neckline only uses a one sided narrow overturning collar, the yoke in the back is sewed to a bias-cut back section and some bias cuts are inset on the front and then accented with buttons as the only decoration.

The coat is the third member of this silky wool trio. The sleeves have a carefully restrained leg-o'-mutton fullness, the coat fits tightly and buttons with rows and rows of black bone buttons. But the collar is what you will purr over. It is long and drapes and winds around the neckline, showing a sparkling triangle of the white silk blouse and then zooms up the left side, slips under a button and hangs over your right shoulder.

This is a suit that you can find just once in a season. You can wear it immediately without any furs and stop traffic, but what will happen when you wear it with sables or cross fox or silver fox is something for you to gloat over.

Fur trimmed suits are so loaded with furs that any casual buyer will doubt all the weird tales of curtailed allowances and hidden hoards of gold. These gorgeous suits are sold so rapidly that the gal who hesitates loses the most distinctive models while she dallies.

One Robin Hood green wool suit, made of a new silky wool, has one of the biggest and best looking red fox collars ever sewed to a garment.

Another suit is of chocolate brown suede with a Russian air about it achieved with many bands and a high collar of satiny small curled Persian lamb.

The suit season is now open for the usual rush of suit collectors who know the swanky slim smartness that only a well designed suit can give.

Near Deadline for Entries of Fall Gardens

Inspections to Be Made in September.

BY PAUL POTTER.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is seeking the names of the amateur gardeners within a forty mile radius of Tribune Tower whose gardens are considered fine enough to be entered in its annual fall competition for the honor roll of outstanding flower garedns.

All names of entrants in the competitive judging must be mailed by midnight tomorrow night, accompanied by the signatures of two neighbors or friends who can assure the judges that the garden has been developed without paid professional assistance.

Judging of the amateur gardens will be completed in September. A score card which insures unbiased consideration of all gardens entered will be used, and those whose rating is sufficiently high will be awarded a handsome certificate and their names will be published in THE TRIBUNE metropolitan news section.

This competition, a continuation of the annual contests which this newspaper has conducted for many years, is designed to stimulate interest in amateur gardening and to select gardens of unusual merit in Chicago and its suburbs. The territory in which gardeners are eligible extends from Waukegan on the north to Geneva and Aurora on the west and Joliet and Crown Point, Ind., on the south.

Dentist Lists Irritants That Injure the Gums

Alkaline Mouth Wash and Massage Recommended.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The appearance of the normal healthy gum is pink in color, firm, smooth, moist, and lacking in sensitiveness. Any continuous change from the normal firm, pink condition of the gum may be suspected of leading to pyorrhea trouble. When the gum is sensitive, swollen, red, bleeds easily, shows signs of receding, that's the time to make the dentist appointment a fixed and definite one.

Some of the irritants that cause a lowered general resistance of the gum, cited by a well known dentist are: Tartar, which has accumulated on the teeth, and if permitted to remain too long, leads to the formation of pus pockets.

The wrong contacts between the upper and lower teeth.

Poor contact between the teeth of the same jaw, which permits food to be forced down against the gum.

Missing teeth. Irregularities of teeth that may invite an accumulation and impaction of food between the teeth.

Badly fitted fillings, crowns, bridges, and places for the accumulation of food around poorly finished dental work.

Lowered general resistance, due to general disease or undernourishment, or due to deficient vitamin and mineral content in the diet.

Help may be given by stimulating vigorous circulation of the blood in the gums, by using an alkaline mouth wash, and by massaging the gums. The latter is best done while the teeth are being brushed. The gum is included in the brushing.

This same dentist recommends for acidity of the mouth a mouth wash used after the brushing made of pure lime water. This is swished back and forth between the teeth until it foams. The lime water washes away and neutralizes any acids around the teeth. The formula for making lime water you may have from me upon request.

Hallbergs Enjoy Abundance of the New Luncheon Carts

Barrington Friends Learn Clever Gift is 'Bringing Coals to Newcastle.'

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE ten or twelve couples in Barrington who took a refreshment cart to a recent Sunday luncheon party of the Lawrence G. Hallbergs' must have felt as if they were "bringing coals to Newcastle," for when they arrived with their swanky gift they found that clever "Gus" Hallberg already had such a cart, having made one himself.

The Hallbergs are so generous with their swimming pool, I'm told, that some of those who had enjoyed their hospitality this summer decided to send to New York for one of the carts that have been illustrated lately in some of the fashionable magazines, never dreaming that Mr. Hallberg had started early in the summer making one.

He had told no one about it, intending to spring it as a surprise when it was finished, so now he and Mrs. Hallberg have two, but judging by the numbers who take advantage of their invitations to use the pool, which he constructed himself, by the way, two carts won't be too many to hold the food and drinks necessary to feed the hungry swimmers who congregate often at the Hallbergs' residence on the Barrington turnpike. Doesn't turnpike sound truly rural and as if it were far, far from the city?

Children Enjoy Barrington Party

A gay party for the younger set in Barrington, not the very youngest but for the boys and girls near the age of the 11 year old hostess, Laura Elizabeth Pettengill, was one given last Friday by young Miss Pettengill and her mother, Mrs. Russell A. Pettengill, at their residence on the Barrington turnpike.

I doubt if the youngsters, there were a score or more of them, appreciated the charm and beauty of the Cape Cod farmhouse, or farmhouses, in which the Pettengills live, but they did appreciate the vast expanse of lawn on which they played baseball, the croquet court, the hour glass shaped swimming pool in which they swam after the games, and the good supper they had afterwards.

And I am almost forgetting the treasure hunt which started off the afternoon's festivities and which was won by Kitty Lawrence, Mrs. Samuel D. Rowe's eldest daughter, and Priscilla White, the Sanford B. Whites' younger daughter.

The Pettengill's Barrington house is composed of three very old farmhouses that were moved, piece by piece, from Cape Cod, and reassembled into a most comfortable and perfectly fascinating house. The furnishings are all in keeping with the house and the result is one of the most charming places in this part of the country. The Pettengills go in for early American things "in a big way" and Mr. Pettengill's new office in New York is furnished in such perfect taste with specimens of Americana that I'm told that several experts have compared it favorably with the American wing of the Metropolitan museum in New York.

Miss Frank Sets Wedding Date

Miss Marjorie Louise Frank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Frank of 2634 Lake View avenue, has decided to be married at Lake Geneva, where her parents have their summer residence, on Saturday, Sept. 24, the wedding to take place at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon at the Big Foot Country club. Three-thirty Lake Geneva time is 4:30 Chicago time, you know, for Wisconsin does not have daylight saving time, which is a bit confusing for those Chicago families who summer at the lake and whose men folks come into town each day.

Miss Frank, who was graduated from Smith college last June and before that went to the Latin school, is to be married to Henry Hanna Brigham of Glencoe, who finished at the University of Illinois last year.

Mrs. James Delos Swan Jr. of Highland Park, Mr. Brigham's sister, is to be matron of honor, and Miss Carolyn Erminger of Chicago is to be the maid of honor. Miss Mary Bell of Lake Geneva and Harvard, Ill., and Miss Mary Randolph Matteson of Chicago will be the bridesmaids. Erwin Risley Brigham will serve as his brother's best man and ushering will be Robert G. Ferris of Harvard, Nathan B. Hunt of Harvard and Pasadena, Francis W. Holbrook of Glencoe, W. Donald Forsyth of Mount Vernon, Ill., Frederick A. Schnell of Chicago and Ernst C. Schmidt of Chicago and Lake Geneva.

About 100 extra chairs will be set up this morning in Mrs. Clyde M. Carr's drawing room in Lake Forest for the last of four lecture recitals by Lee Pattison. The hour is 11 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilton B. Martin of 191 East Walton place are expected to return this week-end from a six weeks' motor trip to California and to Colorado Springs, where they visited their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Channing Sweet, and their children.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Newton Perry and their daughter, Miss Polly Perry, and the Bryan S. Reids are expected to return some time today from the fortnight's cruise they have been making as the guests of the Sterling Mortons on their yacht Freedom. Mrs. Morton returned to Chicago on Sunday night, having left the boat at Harbor Point and taken the train home. The boat stopped at Harbor Point on the first run of the cruise and headed from there toward Desbarats, Canada.

Burrows Give Up Vacation

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Burrows have been planning all summer to visit a dude ranch this month but various things have come up which have necessitated a change of plan and so they expect to remain in Lake Forest where they live the year 'round. They had a lovely vacation last winter in Arizona, and since Lake Forest is ideal in the summer, they really aren't feeling sorry for themselves, even though they aren't to have a western trip this summer.

Howard Linn arrived home on Saturday from a trip to California but Mrs. Linn will not return for about ten days, having stopped in Santa Fe for a visit with Mrs. William E. Clow Jr. on the way east. After visiting Mr. Linn's sister, Miss Mabel Linn, in Belleaire, the Linns went to Santa Barbara for a visit with the Arthur Meekers.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and their two sons, Deering and Brooks, will return next Monday from a ten days' vacation at the Kesgo club. The Walter B. Wolfs and Mrs. Wolf's sons, Walter and Hathaway

Expert Sales Talk Enters Beauty Shops

The Operators Take Up Psychology.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Now there's a feminine version of the old adage that no man is a hero to his valet. Character analysis has sidled into the beauty business, gals, under the guise of sales psychology.

Be warned in time, if your favorite operator is a member of the American Cosmeticians association. For there were devious doings yesterday at the convention of that organization, spread all through the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman and spilling over onto the mezzanine.

They're a canny lot, these white smocked, nimble fingered ladies of the daintily draped booths. Long ago they learned from artists what tints of makeup best became each individual complexion; and from chemists, what ingredients could go healthfully into the concoctions they spread so soothingly on cheek and chin. Yesterday they learned quite different things, from a brown eyed miss named Grace Shuey, who came from New York to tell 'em.

Your fair white brow won't be just that any more to the educated cosmetician. As her fingertips knead subtly scented cream up where the wrinkles gather, she'll be classifying you as a "bulging forehead" or a "receding forehead." As she massages your chin, she will take note whether it juts out pugnaciously, or retreats timidly. Thereon hangs her campaign.

For the frontal bulge informs the wise cosmetic saleslady that if she's going to sell you the $5 jar of that same "perfectly marvelous" wrinkle eradicator, or the $3 hot oil treatment for your scalp, that the sales appeal must be made primarily to the ear. Because that's how your brain works, on the word of Miss Shuey, who has spent quite a few years finding it out. You'll need "a line" about the product first, and then you will make up your mind when you see the cream.

Whereas, if you happen to have a receding forehead, advises the authority, you won't really be interested until the skilled saleslady slips the snooty jar of the product into your hands and croons, "I just want to show you something." Your brain follows your eye, the theory goes, and thereafter you listen, when otherwise "the line" would be lost on you.

Similarly the prominent chin indicates a deliberate mentality, slow to make decisions, while the opposite is true of the receding jaw, allows Miss Shuey. Ergo, it is poor salesmanship to "high-pressure" the former, but it is the proper technique for the latter. Of course, the medium type of features indicates a balance between the two characteristics.

Some 4,000 delegates are expected to visit the exposition in the Sherman during the three days it is on, and the attendance yesterday indicated that a large proportion of that number had already registered. Representatives from forty-one states are accredited.

On the lecture program yesterday, nobody drew a larger crowd than Mme. Auralea of New York, an authority on what the well dressed face will be wearing this fall and winter. She had a chart to prove it—approved by the best and most skilled in the trade, and dictated by the demands of good taste. No redhead who pins her faith on the chart can err on the side of adopting a brunette's makeup, and no blonde will mistakenly accept what's meant for her auburn haired sister.

Softer facial ensembles are promised by Mme. Auralea, generally speaking. To harmonize with the duller tones of autumn costumes, one's lips will not be so brilliantly lipsticked, one's powder toned in with the rouge spread liberally—not so sparingly as of yore—across the cheek. Slightly more emphatic tones in each may be utilized for evening. With, of course, the luxurious, long, artificial eyelashes now in vogue.

Young Women Plan "Hot Dog" Sale at Labor Day Picnic

Eight young women gathered yesterday at the home of Miss Freida Foltz, 37 East Division street, in solemn conclave over the prospect of "hot dogs" for Labor day. Under the chairmanship of their hostess, they constitute a committee in charge of the delectable wienies for the Republican rally to be held at Riverview park on Labor day, the group being organized under the Chicago charities committee. Those present yesterday were Princess Rostislav, Mrs. Murray Brush, Miss Nancy Wolff, Mrs. Paget Cady, Mrs. Winfield Ellis, Miss Margaret Miller and Miss Virginia Postlethwaite.

The Death Watch

By Edgar Wallace

SYNOPSIS.

Peter Dunn, a sergeant in Scotland Yard, and the only baronet in the service, kept right on working after coming into his title and fortune. Inspector Sam Allerway, Peter's instructor and buddy, is a great detective and thief catcher, with a weakness for brandy. The Canadian Bank of Commerce in London is robbed of nearly a million dollars at the time of an organized demonstration of unemployed.

INSTALLMENT II.

THE ROBBERS CONVICTED.

The discovery of the robbery was immediately made. One of the two watchmen was sent off to a hospital in an ambulance, the second taken to the station for questioning. Within half an hour the big chiefs of Scotland Yard were at the bank, making their investigations, and Allerway was allocated to the case.

"This is not an English job," he said, when he made an inspection of the tools. "It is a Yankee crowd or a French crowd, and it's nine to one in favor of America."

"I suppose," said the chief, who did not like him [he was afterwards dismissed for incompetence by the Kenley commission] "you're going on the fact that the tools are American made? Well——"

"They're English made," said Allerway, "as you would have seen if the Lord had given you good eyesight and you weren't too lazy to look."

Allerway used to talk like this to chief inspectors, and that was why he was not particularly popular.

He began his search like the workman he was. By Monday morning he had identified Red Fanderson as the owner of the handkerchief. He had a room off the Waterloo Bridge road, and a search of this led Allerway to a very high class hotel in the west end and to the discovery of a gentlemanly guest who had left on the previous day after ostentatiously labeling his baggage for Canada.

Here Allerway had a lucky break. There had been staying in the hotel a southern European royalty, who had been photographed by a newspaper man as he left the hotel one morning. Quite unconsciously Mr. Lee Smitt, who had also chosen that moment to leave the hotel, had appeared in the background. With him had vanished his valet, Joseph Kelly, pleasantly spoken, a favorite in the couriers' room and quite a modest personality.

Lee tried to pass but the squad driver rammed him.

Police throughout the country were warned. A week later Sam picked up a new clew. A man answering Lee Smitt's description had purchased a second hand car, and had it registered in the name of Gray. He had chosen an American car of very popular make.

"The number plate——" began the garage man.

"You can forget the number plate; he's got another one by now," said Sam.

It was Peter Dunn's first big case, and he was thrilled. He hardly got any sleep in the first week of the chase, and on the night the three men were located he was ready to drop; but the news that the car had been seen passing through Slough galvanized him to life.

It was a foul night; rain was pouring in buckets, and a gale of wind was sweeping up from the southwest. They picked up the trail at Maidenhead, lost it again at Reading, cut back to Henly without any greater success. At six o'clock in the morning the car was seen at Andover, and a barrage laid down, but Lee doubled back towards Guildford. It was on the Guildford road that they came head to head, the squad car and that which carried the wanted men. Lee tried to dart past, but the squad driver rammed him.

There was in the police car, besides the driver, only Peter Dunn and Inspector Sam Allerway, but the three men offered no resistance.

Peter took charge of the prisoners and Sam drove the car back. They stopped at a little wayside inn, and here Sam searched the car. He found nothing in the shape of property. There were two suitcases, containing the belongings of the prisoners, but no money.

It was curious, the number of people who had seen Lee Smitt and his companions, if not leaving the bank carrying a suitcase, at least in the vicinity of the bank. Yet they might have escaped conviction on the ground of insufficient evidence if Sam Allerway had not dug up from a railway luggage room a duplicate set of bank smashing tools. It was on this evidence that the three men went down for twelve years.

It was this evidence which spurred Lee Smitt to make his remarkable statement, that in the car when he was captured were four packages of Canadian currency valued at $60,000. Smitt told the judge that Sam had promised to make it light for him if he could slip these in his pocket and forget them. It was a crude lie. Peter Dunn stood in the court, raging. But it was one of those lies which had possibilities. People read the account and said: "Well, I wonder . . . ?" There was a departmental inquiry. Sam Allerway was crushed, beaten. He turned up for the meeting of the board, drunk and truculent, and was dismissed from the force.

A fortnight later they picked his body out of the Thames.

Two years after that Peter Dunn was the principal witness at another staff inquiry, and the chief inspector who had been responsible for Allerway's ruin was dismissed with ignominy, and narrowly escaped a term of imprisonment.

Where was the bulk of the money taken from the Canadian Bank of Commerce? Scotland Yard thought it had been sent abroad, divided into thousands of small sums and sent through the post to an American address. It was a simple method of disposing of paper currency, and practically undetectable.

Interrogated at intervals at Dartmoor, Lee Smitt hinted that this had been the method of disposal. But there were shrewd men at Scotland Yard who pointed out that at the time the money had been stolen the men had been fugitives, and that there had been a special watch placed by the post-office on all bulky packages addressed to the United States.

Peter's own report on the case is worth quoting.

"These three men arrived in England six months before the robbery, which was not only perfectly planned, but their getaway was as skillfully arranged. They had a car to take them to the coast, but this was damaged in a collision; otherwise the second car would not have been purchased. Lee Smitt is a man with an American police record; he was concerned in three bank robberies, was sentenced to from five to twenty years in Sing Sing, but was released on a technicality when the case went to the Appellate court. He is a man of brilliant education, and there is no evidence that he had any confederate in the United States. Every important bank in America has complied with the request of Scotland Yard to render an account of suspicious deposits made by mail from England, and nothing out of the ordinary has been discovered."

Nine years later the three men were released from Dartmoor, escorted to Southampton and put on a boat bound for the United States. The New York police reported their arrival. And that, so far as Peter Dunn was concerned, was the end of the case.

. . . . . .

It was in the late summer of the next year that he became acquainted with the Death Watch, and in the strangest and most unusual circumstances.

Peter Dunn was taking a vacation. His idea of a vacation was to hire a little cabin cruiser and move leisurely from Kingston to Oxford, camping at night by any promising meadow, stopping at the towns to purchase his supplies, and, with the aid of a gramophone and a small library of books which he brought with him, pass the evenings that separated him from the morning's plunge in the river and another day of progress through a procession of locks towards the historic city he knew so well.

Between Lockton and Bourne End the hills rise steeply. It is a wild and a not particularly cheerful spot in the daytime. He arrived at his anchorage late at night, tied up to the weedy bank, pulled down the fly proof shutters of his cabin and cooked his evening meal.

It was not a night which attracted holiday makers to the river. A drizzle of rain was falling; a chill wind blew down the river, and when the sun set he was glad to pull on an extra warm pullover. He did not know this part of the river at all, and had a feeling that it was some distance from a road. He neither saw motorcar lights nor heard the hum of engines.

Peter cursed the English summer, pulled close the door of his little cabin, and spent ten minutes destroying such inquisitive flying things as had found their way into the interior.

Five Delicious Grape Recipes Given Today

BY MARY MEADE.

"If we can't drink them," said we philosophically back about 1920, "then we'll eat them."

The subject under debate [to put it mildly] was grapes. Consequently, we found ourselves pioneers in a field formerly untouched because of the until then accent on grapes for wine—a whole field of grapes for eating.

And as usual—veni, vidi, vici—this season sees the grape growers of the country busier than ever shipping every color and flavor of grape to markets in increasing quantities, as well as pouring their luscious goodness into myriads of bottles for cool beverages and tangy grape dishes which each season seem to grow more and more popular.

This week, with Concord table grapes plentiful and the height of the movement of Michigan grapes only two weeks away, calls are already coming in for grape recipes. So here are five to start off with. And if you've better, newer or more unusual ones, won't you send them in?

SPICED GRAPES.

8 pounds ripe grapes.
2½ cups vinegar.
9 cups sugar.
1 tablespoon allspice.
1 tablespoon cinnamon.
1 teaspoon ground cloves.

Mash the grapes slightly and simmer over a low heat until well softened. Rub through a sieve, discarding the seeds and skins. To the pulp add the vinegar, sugar, and spices. Boil, stirring occasionally, until thick. Pour into clean, hot jelly glasses and seal with paraffin. This spicy sweet-sour relish makes a delicious accompaniment for meats.

GRAPEADES.

Tantalizing grapejuice drinks are becoming year 'round favorites since grapejuice may be purchased or home canned so easily. The coming fall days with their wide opportunities for entertaining and yet their continued warm weather are certain to need plenty of thirst quenching inspirations.

Apple-grapeade is truly a fall drink that raps right smartly on the palate. Prepare it from equal parts of grapejuice, apple juice, and water. Flavor to taste with lemon juice and sugar sirup and serve over plenty of crushed ice.

CONCORD PIE.

Seed but do not skin sufficient Concord grapes to make two cups. Add one and two-thirds cups of sugar and stir in two well beaten eggs. Line a large pie tin with paste and sprinkle the bottom with a tablespoon of flour. Turn in the grape mixture and fit on the top crust, pinching it securely around the edges, and leaving a series of cuts in the top for the exit of steam. Brush the top crust with white of egg and bake in a moderately hot oven [375 degrees F.] for forty minutes.

GRAPE SPONGE PUDDING.

2 cups grapejuice, scalded.
2 tablespoons gelatin.
3 tablespoons cold water.
3 egg whites.
½ cup sugar.

Sonk the gelatin in the cold water for five minutes, then dissolve in the scalded grapejuice. Add the sugar and stir till dissolved. Chill until partly set, then fold in carefully the egg whites which have been beaten stiff. Whip the sponge until stiff and pile lightly into sherbet cups. Top with fluffs of sweetened whipped cream and sprinkle with grated pistachio nuts.

MALAGA SALAD.

2 cups seeded Malaga grapes, halved.
6 tangerines.
Roquefort cheese.
Ground nuts.
French dressing.

Thoroughly deseed the grapes. Peel, section, and remove seeds from the tangerines. Combine with the grapes and chill. Serve cold in individual bowls of crisp lettuce. On each salad place two balls of Roquefort cheese mashed and molded with ground nuts. Offer French dressing in small boats.

Should a Woman Sacrifice Happiness for Sake of Child

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Must a woman sacrifice her own happiness and hopes of a brighter future for herself for the sake of her child?" asks Mrs. B. J.

She has a girl of 8. She and her husband have been separated for a couple of years. A divorce was considered, but finances made it impossible at the time. Lately the husband is making overtures in the hope of making up.

"What shall I do?" the woman asks. "I no longer love him. I'm absolutely indifferent toward him and could not dream of ever being his wife again. I suppose some would think because of my child my 'duty' is to make up and try again. But, feeling as I do, I can't see it that way. What would you advise?"

Personally, of the three it seems to me that the child is the one who matters most. The child's future is the important future, the child's right to happiness the main right to happiness. And I would advise a trial for the child's sake. But in order that it be a fair trial for the child's sake all old grievances would have to be wiped clean off the slate.

Whether a woman who admits frankly that she can't see "duty" in that light would make a success of a new trial venture is questionable. But it is a live problem and I would like to hear readers' opinions and tried out experiences.

In the Very Young Set

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Young Master Harry B. Clow III. and his little sister, Adrian, were all dressed up when this picture was taken in Lake Forest, but they probably aren't looking at all like this at Desbarats where they have gone with their parents, the junior Harry B. Clows, for up there overalls and bathing suits are the favorite attire for all ages.

Best People Turn Killers in Mysteries

New Crime Tales Flood the Market.

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

MYSTERY stories are in spate, good, bad, and indifferent, and we have a number to recommend to readers for one reason or another.

The old timers are very much to the fore, and Harper's, with a reprint of Wilkie Collins' "Woman in White," has retapped the very font and origin of the mystery story. This and "The Moonstone," also recently reissued, make excellent provision for holiday reading. They move more leisurely than our modern thriller, and since in those days a reputation was a reputation blackmail seems incredibly easy, but they are grand old books and may be read with an eye to the model they set for less grand new ones.

Old Mr. Fletcher also has a new book, though I expect he is old only in terms of production. He is one of the few incessant writers of detective stories who seem to attack each problem freshly and with enthusiasm. In "Murder of the Ninth Baronet" (Knopf) he tells a good story with a plausible and surprising solution. There is a satisfying quality in Fletcher that endears him to the mystery hound. He writes nicely, never fakes his clews, and never lets you down.

Venal state's attorneys, defaulting family lawyers, and outrageous police sergeants have had their little day, and now we have an outbreak of a new sort of criminal. It's the good, kind people who are doing all the killing. You'll see what I mean if you read the long list of books I am about to commend.

In order of importance might come "Reenter Sir John" [Farrar & Rinehart], by Clemence Dane and Helen Simpson. Sir John, you may remember if you read "Enter Sir John," is an actor whose theatrical company is dogged by murders of one kind and another. He stands valiantly by and detects in their favor in a manner lordly and a little tiresome, but if you are the sort of reader who likes both Clemence Dane and detective stories this will be your fancy. Of course, it is good, but it is as elegant as Sir John, and just how elegant should a detective story be?

Charlie Chan is with us again in "The Keeper of the Keys" [Bobbs-Merrill]. Earl Derr Biggers has a very convincing way with him and in this story Charlie and the particular problem he meets and debaffles are unusually engaging. The scene is set at Lake Tahoe and to's and fro's from Reno. Charlie and another nice old Chinaman swop maxims and what with a pleasant case of love at first sight and unusual atmospheric conditions you'll like this very enjoyable book.

"The Man from Scotland Yard," by David Frome [Farrar & Rinehart], is a real detective story with Inspector Bull wending his slow and sure way through it. It's one of those stories about superior people who usually avoid killing each other and I'm willing to bet you'll be very surprised at the outcome. It is agreeably told and sure to please those people who like a certain sophistication among murderers and their associates.

Another story that will please the same sort of readers is "Murder Intended," by Francis Beeding [Little-Brown]. It is unlike any of Mr. Beeding's other books and not strictly a mystery story at all, for almost from the beginning you recognize the incredible murderer who is made credible through deft handling. It is an unusual book and an interesting one and the end is masterly.

"Murder by an Aristocrat," by Mignon G. Eberhart [Crime Club], is a story told by the same nosy nurse who recounts all Mrs. Eberhart's stories. It's all about a rather unpleasant family in which murder becomes epidemic. It is interesting enough, but told at such tension that each horrific event somewhat discounts itself. After all she has been through in succeeding stories, Nurse Keat ought to retire. In the manner of Typhoid Mary, she seems to introduce murder into the home.

You are sure to like "Five Fatal Words," by Edwin Balmer and Philip Wylie [Ray Long and Richard R. Smith]. In another extraordinary family extraordinary things happen which just can't be explained. But they all are, in the end, and very satisfactorily. There is the plottiest kind of plot, and if nothing else in the book were admirable you would have to admire the ingenuity of the authors. But it is one of the best stories I have read for a long time and full of amusing characters, dialogue and detail. For train, steamer, toothache and bank failures I recommend it unhesitatingly. It may even make you forget the rising market. Incidentally, it was the basis of a grand award recently to sleuthing readers of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Insouciant Model for the Engrossing Play Hours of Young Miss Aged 1 to 6

CHILD'S DRESS.

This attractive dress is made with the back in one piece, while the front has an inset at the center gathered into the brief yoke. Wouldn't a red and white dimity finished with dark blue bindings be adorable?

The pattern, 2972, comes in sizes 1, 2, 4, and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1½ yards of 39 inch material with 3¼ yards of binding.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Lackaye's Wit as Famous as His Stage Life one of the scenes in this play. William McKay, managing editor of the Chicago Journal, suggested to Lackaye's manager that his star's impressions of a morning in the wheat pit, then in turbulent session, would make an interesting newspaper article.

The next day Lackaye appeared in McKay's office, and after introducing himself asked:

"How much do you want on this wheat pit story?"

He was told that a column would be gratefully received; he sat down at an empty desk and began to write. An hour later he tossed a sheaf of manuscript on the editor's desk and walked out. His "copy" proved to be of star reporter's caliber.

Lackaye was, in fact, highly educated. He was a master of arts of Georgetown university. He had planned to enter the Roman Catholic priesthood, but after his college course his ambition turned from the church to the stage. His career began in 1883 and ended with his retirement in 1927.

Requiem high mass will be held for Wilton Lackaye at 11 a. m. today in St. Malachi's church, New York City. Burial will be in Colway cemetery.

Film Thriller Solves Death at Grid Game

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

How does the prospect of seeing a thrilling mystery picture strike you, boys and girls? You know that's what we're going to do at our next party and it should be particularly interesting, because the scene of the story is laid in a college and there will be a lot of thrilling football scenes.

The name of the picture is "Seventy Thousand Witnesses," and instead of seing it at the Chicago theater as I announced before we will see it at the Oriental, and there will be one of those big stage shows, too, for which this theater is especially noted.

Phillips Holmes, Dorothy Jordan, Charlie Ruggles, and Johnny Mack Brown are a few of the names in the cast and there are many others whom you know and like, too. With such an array of stars to interpret the story you can be assured of seeing a good picture.

You know by this time, I suppose, that the big mystery concerns the killing of a half back who meets his fate while carrying the ball to the goal post for the touchdown which should bring his team to victory.

If you are the kind of boy or girl who likes an exciting picture you should have no difficulty writing a winning letter.

Just tell me why you'd like to go to this party and if your letter is among the hundred most convincing ones you will be invited. In writing be sure that you tell me your age and see that your name and address are plainly written. Send your letter so that it will reach me no later than Thursday morning. I'll have more to tell you about the party tomorrow.

Wedding Announced

MRS. ROBERT MORITZ SCHAEFFER.
[Moffett-Russell Photo.]

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Beulah Mary Wanzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Wanzer of 6463 Kimbark avenue, to Robert Moritz Schaeffer. The bride attended the Gulf Park school in Mississippi and Northwestern university. The groom attended the University of Munich. They will reside in Waukesha, Wis.

World's Fair Hop Will Be Danced Today

A lively and simple dance step to carry the spirit of prosperity will make its debut today at the convention of the Chicago Association of Dancing Masters at the Congress hotel. It is to be known as the World's Fair Hop and is to be introduced by Mrs. Agnes S. Gleason, Chicago ballet teacher, and E. C. Marlatt of Terre Haute, Ind.

"You never can tell how a new step will take until you try it," said Mr. Marlatt, "but I think this one will strike the popular fancy. It will carry the gay spirit of the coming World's Fair and should sweep the country."

Louis Stockman of Indianapolis predicted a return of the tango.

"The celeta, a Spanish waltz, borders on the tango and will be one of the popular dances of the winter," according to Stockman. "The tango is constantly gaining favor because more orchestras are playing music which can best be interpreted by the tango. Then there is dignity and grace and poise in the tango, and many dancers prefer such dancing.

"More people are dancing, too, because the fads that were too strenuous for the older people are disappearing."

Nearly 350 dancing teachers from all over the United States rehearsed classical steps, musical comedy dance numbers, ballet, and went through the latest wrinkles in ballroom dancing all day. The convention will last through next Sunday and is, according to officials, the largest in several years.

Child's Fine Qualities Are His Protection

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

He was the head of half a dozen laborers and they were being held up by a delay in the delivery of some supplies needed in the work on the grounds of a house where I was visiting.

I noticed this workman's interest in the children, so we got talking. And how intelligently he talked about his own! Incidentally, he described how he saved one child from being a hopeless invalid by being posted on certain symptoms and by his quick action. One thing led to another, and little by little in language which betrayed his foreign parentage, his story came out.

"Up to the time I was 9 I was in an orphanage," he said. "Then my mother was able to take us out, because she married again. But she died in a couple of years and then my sister took me in. I went to work and earned four dollars a week and gave her three. But her husband didn't seem to want me around, so they tried to get me sent away—you know, to a reformatory.

"But there was no reason for sending me away and I couldn't be committed without one. At last they made up a charge of vagrancy."

He laughed—but without a trace of bitterness. "Vagrancy—when I didn't have a home to leave!"

"All this time I'd remembered that my mother used to say to me: 'Learn a trade—learn a trade.' So when I got up there in the reformatory I was allowed to work with one of the men in charge [not an inmate] and I learned my trade all right.

"At 16 when I left I got a job with the firm I'm with now. I married a fine girl and I've got four fine children, and a nice little house.

"I would have a good bank account, but my little girl was sick all last year and then got caught in the epidemic, and it took every cent of my savings," he said quite cheerfully. "But what do I care? She's healthier than she's ever been and a beautiful little girl."

The only part I have in this story is to point out the hint in contains for those parents who while doing their best, live in dread of their children "going wrong" and who have no faith in their children's innate qualities, or in human nature's inherent decencies. Surely this boy had little to help him up. What was in him carried him through.

Wales Lands in France.

CANNES, France, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The Prince of Wales and Prince George, accompanied by Lord and Lady Mountbatten, arrived here today aboard the cruiser Shropshire.

Gift Causes Two Surprises at Luncheon

Watson Jr., are expected back at their Winnetka residence on Friday of this week from a week's stay at the Keego club.

Mrs. Warren M. Salisbury, who has house guests most of the summer at Tor Court, her lovely summer place at Pittsfield in the Berkshires, has visiting her now Mrs. Farley Hopkins and Darrow B. Fulton. Mrs. Henry Calvin Durand of Lake Forest also is visiting in the Berkshires now. She is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. David Ives Mackie at Pine Cliff, Great Barrington.

Mrs. George A. Poole Jr. and her infant daughter are at Charlevoix, visiting Mrs. Poole's mother, Mrs. John Stuart, at her cottage on the grounds of the Chicago club. Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams, with their children, Mary and Cyrus III., went to Charlevoix last week and have opened their cottage to remain until late September.

From Mackinac island comes news of a benefit concert given there recently for the Mackinac Island Community house and the Beaumont Emergency hospital, in which the Chicagoans summering on the island took an active part. An active part in the arrangements that is, not in the concert, for that was given by Ossip Gabrilowitsch and his wife, Clara Clemens Gabrilowitsch, who have been summer residents of the island for several years.

Mrs. Tracy Lay Turner of Chicago was vice chairman of the committee in charge and among other Chicagoans on the committee were Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cremin, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy, Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Dixon, Dr. and Mrs. Robert T. Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Louis T. Jacques, Dr. and Mrs. Selim McArthur, and Dr. Hugh T. Patrick, Mrs. Alvin T. Hert of Louisville, that well known Republican woman, was chairman of the committee.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Thomas A. Edison and her daughter, Mrs. John E. Sloane of South Orange, N. J., left the White House by motor this morning to return home.

Mrs. Hurley, wife of the secretary of war, has gone to White Sulphur Springs to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred I. Du Pont for a few days.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, accompanied by her brother, John Randolph Bolling, is at White Sulphur this week to be the guest at the festivities attending the Lee week celebration there.

Mrs. Champ Clark, widow of the former speaker of the house, and their daughter, Mrs. James M. Thomson of New Orleans, are at the Mayflower for a short stay. Mrs. Thomson has been visiting her mother in Missouri and assisting her brother, Col. Bennett Clark, in his successful effort for the Democratic nomination for senator.

Free Ice Fund Rejoices Over Spurt of Gifts

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

THE TRIBUNE free ice fund had good reason to rejoice yesterday. Contributors gave the fund a push that sent the total over the $2,000 mark, with some to spare toward the $3,000 mark.

The ice fund and also the Camp Algonquin fund have had unusually hard rows to hoe this year.

As in past years, contributors have sent their gifts, but these have been smaller in denominations than previously. Both funds face a deficit. So this is a reminder to old friends—the ice and camp funds need your help immediately.

Another gift from children, raised through a benefit, reached the ice fund yesterday. Lois Eisner, Marion and Jack Butler, Arthur Hoelck, Anthony Young, and Betty Diez gave a show in the basement at 3312-14 North Oakley boulevard and earned $1.07. Contributions were:

$14—M. Leopold.
$3—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lelewer and David Lelewer.
$2—Mrs. M. E. Shire.
$1.80—Sunday Contract club.
$1.07—Children's benefit.
$1—"O."
25¢—Roby M. Parkhurst.

Total	$ 22.62
Previously acknowledged	1,987.42
Grand total	2,010.04

The Camp Algonquin fund remained forgotten yesterday. However, nearly 500 tenement folks enjoyed the roomy acres of the camp with its cool dormitories and playgrounds at the edge of the Fox river near the town of Algonquin. They were unknowing of the extreme effort being made to raise enough money to finance their vacations.

There is nearly a month left for the underprivileged to visit the camp. It is up to friends of the fund to see that they are not disappointed.

Gifts to both funds may be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

It's moving air
NOT FRESH AIR
that peps you up!

The action of your skin furnishes the reason, says science!

A BRISK wind in your face peps you up. So does a fan in hot weather. The air that blows against you may not be particularly fresh, either. But it snaps you out of the all-in feeling that comes from being in a room or space where the air is standing still. For it's the stillness and not the staleness of the air that causes the feeling of depression.

Why? Science says the effect is produced through the action of the moving air on your skin. Your skin is a breathing organ as well as a covering for your body. It regulates your temperature. It helps the body clear itself of waste. The motion of the air keeps your skin active. And when your skin is active, doing its work right you feel better, awake or asleep.

Think, then, if a breath of air makes a difference to your skin, how much difference is effected by daily washing with soap!

Start using Cuticura Soap today. See how much it helps! Through its use many thousands have found relief from apparently hopeless skin troubles. Cuticura Soap contains the same delicate medication that makes Cuticura Ointment the first thought in treating pimples, eczemas, and other skin ailments. Reliable! Convenient! Cuticura products, including the soothing, refreshing Cuticura Talcum Powder, are known and sold everywhere.

What $16,000 buys in The American Weekly

A full page in color more than twice the size of any other magazine page in the world . . . 5,500,000 families at a cost of less than ⅓ cent per family . . . The attention of the entire family instead of a single buying factor.

AT $16,000, a full-page advertisement in The American Weekly carries the largest individual price tag on the entire publishing counter.

Sixteen thousand dollars is a lot of money—particularly in times like these.

However, as Mr. Einstein says, "all is relative."

The right way to figure advertising costs is not in terms of what you pay but in terms of what you get for your money.

Regarded in this light, The American Weekly represents the biggest bargain on the entire publishing counter.

That's quite a statement. Let's see if we can prove it.

This Mighty Magazine reaches 5,500,000 families, nearly double the number of families reached by any other publication.

By the simple process of long or short division you can see that the page cost of $16,000 is reduced to ⅓ cent per family.

No other magazine on earth can offer comparable economy.

For $16,000 the manufacturer may reach 5,500,000 families with a full-page advertisement, printed in four colors.

Now measure the dimensions of that page.

It is more than twice the size of any other magazine page. That means room to tell your merchandising story with force and drama.

Coverage? National! From one coast to the other, The American Weekly concentrates and dominates in the richest buying areas.

Now, what about the magazine itself? Is it interesting? Do the people read it?

The American Weekly is the most widely read; the most quoted magazine published.

To sustain a circulation twice as great as any other publication requires that each issue of The American Weekly contain something of real interest to every member of the family.

Thrilling stories from real life—dramatically illustrated—and absorbingly told; fascinating tales of strange lands and weird people—made vivid and real for the stay-at-homes who yearn for travel; archaeology, astronomy, religion and the wonders of science interpreted for the layman by the world's greatest authorities.

Romance, adventure, mystery penned by the leading writers and authors.

That's what you buy for $16,000. That's what you get for ⅓ cent per family.

Where this Magazine goes

The American Weekly is the largest magazine in the world. It is distributed through 17 great Sunday Newspapers. In 558 of America's 995 towns and cities of 10,000 population and over, The American Weekly concentrates 70% of its circulation.

In each of 136 cities, it reaches one out of every two families
In 105 more cities, 40 to 50% of the families
In an additional 153 cities, 30 to 40%
In another 164 cities, 20 to 30%

. . . and, in addition, more than 1,750,000 families in thousands of other communities, large and small, regularly buy and read The American Weekly.

Where can you spend your advertising dollar more effectively?

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 22. — Harry Eichelberger of Los Angeles, a husky young man with a frame as long as his name, played the Rockford Country club course today in 70, one under par, to lead the field at the end of the first 18 holes of qualifying play in the 33d annual western amateur tournament.

Eichelberger's score was no surprise to followers of the western amateur in the last decade, for the Pacific coast has sent five of the last six champions to the tournament. Aside from this far western tradition, Eichelberger, a senior at Stanford, himself is no stranger in golf, particularly since the results of the Los Angeles district trials for the national amateur were hung out. He shot a 75—67—142 to lead the field there for the second low score of 589 amateurs throughout the country.

36 Hole Final Saturday.

Whether Eichelberger will prove that his par breaking card today was a mistake will not be known until Saturday, when the 36 hole final match will be played. Another 18 hole round of medal play will be transacted tomorrow with the low 31 scorers for the 36 holes joining Don Moe of Portland, Ore., in the match play bracket. The next sixteen low scorers will battle it out for whatever honors accrue to a first flight.

Moe, the defending champion, was exempt from the trial play, and will not make his first appearance until Wednesday, when match play will start with two 18 hole rounds. The third round Thursday, the semi-finals Friday and the championship match Saturday, all will be at 36 holes.

Eichelberger will have to maintain almost the same pace he set today, for the field of 133, the largest in the history of the tournament, includes three former western champions and a collection of expert amateurs hailing from the south, Pacific coast and central states. Right on Eichelberger's heels today were Johnny Lehman of Olympia Fields, champion in 1930, and George Dawson, Glen Oak star, who came home with 71s.

Six in 72 Group.

Following them came a sextet of 72 shooters, composed of Dick Martin of Sunset Valley, Chicago district champion; Babe Bunning of Edgewood Valley; John Jordan of Des Moines; Gus Moreland of Dallas, Tex., trans-Mississippi champion, and Harry La Veau and A. J. Holm, both of Rockford.

The 73 delegation included Charley Seaver, the Stanford football star who was co-medalist in last year's national amateur, and C. M. Fish of Rockford.

Among the 74 cards submitted were those of Frank Justin of Edgewood Valley, Rodney Bliss of Omaha, who took an 8 on the par 4 twelfth, which was the nemesis of nearly the whole field today; Don Armstrong and Frank Renwick of Aurora; Ira Couch of Chicago Golf, who missed a 2½ foot putt for a 73 on the last green; A. J. Huhta of De Kalb; Charles Lee Weems, former mayor of Quincy, Ill.; Bob McCrary, one time trans-Mississippi champion, and Ralph Harmon of Des Moines.

Pitch Shots Bring Birdies.

Eichelberger was in trouble throughout the round, but a series of fine pitch shots enabled him not only to get his pars, but four birdies as well.

Lehman was over par on three holes going out, but holed a birdie deuce on the 7th. His second nine included birdies on the 10th, 13th, and 14th. He was over par on the 12th, which proved a bugaboo to nearly every one in the field, and probably cost Dawson the first day's lead.

Dawson turned the first nine in 34, two under par, and it appeared that he was going after a course record until the 12th, where his second shot found a trap and it took him three to struggle out. He finally blasted to within five feet of the pin, but failed to sink the putt. He had birdies on the 2d and 4th with good approaches, and missed a third one at the 9th, when he couldn't run a five footer down. He got a birdie on the 11th with a good second shot and a three foot putt. He missed a chance for another birdie at the 14th, where he failed on another five foot putt.

WILSON HOISTS A STEIN AND HAS THE LAST LAUGH

He's Hitting Homers and Hornsby's Out.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 22.—Rogers Hornsby, a citizen who never fouled his lungs with the fumes of the noxious weed or put lip to a crock of ale, wine or hootch, has retired to his potato patch in Missouri. Hornsby is physically done for as a high grade ball player.

He fell off quickly in the last couple of years and when, during the current season, he gave himself a trial at third base, which is a post just a half grade more active than that of a customer sitting in the zone where the foul flies drop, he convinced himself that as a major league ball player he was one with Joe Dugan, Eddie Collins, Bucky Harris and Johnny Evers.

Wilson Enjoys Revival.

In Brooklyn, Hack Wilson is enjoying a revival. The victim of Hornsby's strict notions of hygiene and abstinence, Wilson pined and suffered all last year. Within twelve months after he had hit all those home runs to establish the National league record and win a contract for $30,000 a year he was fined, fired and apparently doomed.

Wilson liked beer and Hornsby's aversion to beer was exceeded only by his aversion to ball players who drink it, so he made life socially and officially unpleasant for Wilson, who, being a sensitive soul, was pulled temperamentally out of joint. Hornsby contended that Wilson's indulgence in the high and low beers available in the beer dives of the National league cities was doing dirty tricks to his hitting and fielding eyes and his legs and feet.

Wilson tried to explain to sympathetic friends that his trouble was not too many beers, but too few, and at times when he was in his seidels and his confidence began to flow he would moan that Hornsby's unkindness, his reluctance to praise, were causing much misery in his heart, to the detriment of his work.

Just a Delicate Flower.

Built like a Bulgarian wrestler, unacquainted with the poets, and a laborer by trade, Wilson nevertheless depicted his own nature as that of a delicate flower which thrived on the warmth of executive sympathy and required to be fertilized constantly by compliments from his boss, the baseball reporters, and the customers. He was at his best when Joe McCarthy was there to condone his earnest failures and celebrate his successes.

A gambler committed to the rule of percentage, Hornsby had certain definite prejudices as to the right and wrong ways of doing this and that, and believed that if a thing were tried the right way always, the percentage of success would be higher in the long run. He disagreed with Wilson's natural, inspirational style of hitting, and tried to make him hit his way.

He Was a Sad Gent.

This imposition, in addition to the beer problem and Hornsby's depressing theory that method was the cause of success and faulty application of the method was responsible for failure, made Wilson the saddest of men last year. If he hit a home run, the Hornsby system of swinging the bat was responsible, and Wilson had figured only as the agent. If he fouled out or fanned, the system still was correct but had been badly represented.

It was not a new conflict between the practical and inspirational schools of endeavor. A system player in all his gambles, Hornsby found himself undone, like many a punter at Monte Carlo and Palm Beach, by the factor of the double-O.

Hack Wilson found asylum with the Brooklyn Robins this year under the management of a strange character who had been measured for the cloth, but regarded high and low beers as a reasonable and moral means to a desirable end in this special case. Wilson has enjoyed permission to beer this season under Max Carey of Brooklyn and has beered and prospered while Hornsby of the early hours and abstemious habits was closing his active career.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The pennant bound Cubs yesterday continued their forward march by trimming the Phillies for the third straight time in the series. The score of the game, witnessed by 26,000, was 8 to 4, the largest margin of victory the Cubs have enjoyed since they launched their pennant drive in a great big way.

In crushing the powerful Phillies this time—it was their ninth win over the Phils in the last ten games played between the two teams—the Cubs for the second successive day gained on all three of their most highly respected National league rivals.

When they enter the final with the Phillies this afternoon, the Cubs will be working with the inspirational knowledge that they are 3 games ahead of the second place Brooklyn Dodgers, 4½ games ahead of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and 8 games ahead of the Phillies, who came to town bubbling over with hope, only 5 games out of first place.

Put Game on Ice in Eighth.

Though the score of yesterday's game was a comfortable contrast with the long row of hairline decisions, it did not become so until after two were out in the Cubs' eighth inning. With the score 5 to 4 in favor of the Cubs and two out, Burleigh Grimes, who had rescued Bud Tinning in the first half of the inning, drove in two runs with a double and scored himself on Herman's single. So, you see, the plumpness of the Cub margin was a late inning matter.

The Cubs made 13 hits, every one of the ten man Cub cast except Cuyler contributing at least one good smack. Numerically Herman led the attack with three singles. Grimm got a double and a single and Hartnett knocked two singles, both of which figured in the scoring.

Seven of the Cubs' runs were made in two innings, four in the sixth and three in the eighth. While the Cubs did plenty of batting in their four run blast in the sixth, they should have been held to one run in the session. Three of the tallies came home after Friberg had booted a cinch double play ball.

Tinning Is Winning Pitcher.

Tinning was the winning pitcher, though Grimes had to pull him out with two runs in, the tying run on base and only one out in the eighth. Three double plays aided Tinning in the innings prior to his demise, but the young fellow pitched some nice baseball. It scarcely was comparable, however, to his great work in the big 19 inning victory over Boston last

Smack! Pinky Whitney of Phillies knocks out a home run in second inning of yesterday's game with Cubs. Fortunately for Bud Tinning, Cubs pitcher, there was nobody on base at the time. Gabby Hartnett is the catcher. The Cubs won, 8 to 4, for their third straight from the Phillies. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Chicago Fight Team Beats Italians; Phagan Is Victor

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Chicago's picked amateur boxing squad defeated the Italian Olympic team, four bouts to three, before 5,000 at the Stadium last night. The Italians wer game and nearly always aggressive, but looked travel-worn from the coast efforts and hard exhibition bouts in Kansas City on the way back.

So if the Italians did not look as keen as the German team which appeared against Golden Gloves champions in the international match at Soldiers' field, that no doubt was largely the reason. Chicago's boys likewise had not quite the spirit of the former occasion.

If the purpose of this show was to convince Chicagoans that Italian youth knows boxing, it was a success. Financially, the affair broke about even, according to estimates.

Phagan Bout High Spot.

The high spot of the night, from the viewpoint of both competition and disorder, was the welterweight bout between Johnny Phagan, international Golden Gloves champion, and Luciana Fabroni, Italian titleholder. Phagan had stopped his German opponent in less than two minutes of the first round, so when Fabroni, sturdy, but not especially ferocious looking, walked from his corner, most of the spectators felt sympathy for him, sympathy that would reach a climax the first time Phagan shot that deadly right.

Phagan shot his right in the first round, but Fabroni still was there. Johnny appeared to have a convincing advantage, but the Italian still was standing up. Possibly Luciana did not know enough English to have heard of Johnny's reputation. At any rate he began rushing and forcing with attacks to Johnny's midsection and kept the latter pinned. At the finish the crowd, about evenly divided in partisanship, was shouting for a decision for each man.

Italian Spurns Medal.

Then Announcer Frank Kalteux raised aloft the hand of Phagan in token of victory. From all over the house came a chorus of boos, mingled with a few cheers. Fabroni climbed through the ropes without the usual handshake of congratulation. As attention was called to his second place silver prize, Edouardo Garzoni, his second, waved it away. An official carried the prize to Fabroni as he was at the bottom of the steps leading from the ring. He took it and then threw it back into the ring while the crowd both cheered and jeered.

At this point, Mario del Fante, who superintended the training of the squad, and Edward Muzzio, vice president of the International Boxing federation, both of whom were officials at Los Angeles, raised their hands in appeal to their countrymen in the crowd for better sportsmanship. Sig. Del Fante also rushed over to the officials making the decision and exclaimed in broken but perfectly understandable English: "I apologize for the action of my boy. He was excited; but I will disqualify him."

The decision in Phagan's favor came from Judges Osborne and Klein while Referee Collins' vote was cast for the Italian. This writer's tab was for the Chicagoan, two rounds to one.

Results of the preliminaries follow:

Lenny Cohen, 112 pounds, Chicago, beat Harry Fuscaldo, Chicago, 112 pounds, in three rounds.

Johnny Baltzer, 112 pounds, Davenport, Ia., beat Frank Sanello, 112 pounds, Chicago, in three rounds.

Jimmy Eliopoulis, Chicago, beat Lynn Thompson, Chicago, in three rounds, at 118 pounds.

Joe Kleko, 135 pounds, Chicago, son from George Engle, 138 pounds, Benton Harbor, Mich., in three rounds.

CUBS HOLD ACE IN HOLE: SIX FEWER DEFEATS

The major league baseball season still has a month and two days to go—much too long a time for the "IF" statisticians to get in there every day. However, the standing of the Cubs, and the imminence of the series with the Brooklyn Dodgers, the Cubs' most highly respected pennant rivals, justifies a little statistical warming up in the bullpen at this time.

This morning the Cubs are in first place in the National league by a margin of three games over the Dodgers, with whom they open a three game series tomorrow. If the Cubs win today from the Phillies, they will gain a half game on the Dodgers, who will be enjoying their second successive day of rest, probably as spectators at the Cub game. A Cub victory today would make the Dodgers leave town Friday night in second place, even were they to sweep the series with the Cubs. In that event they would be a half game back of the Cubs.

28 for Dodgers After Friday.

On the other hand, if the Cubs take the game from the Phils today and three straight from the Dodgers, Brooklyn will leave town 6½ games out of first place. When the Dodgers depart Friday night, they will have only 28 games remaining on their schedule. At that time, the Cubs will have 33 remaining to be played. The difference of five games, and this is significant, will be covered by games the Dodgers have lost and which the Cubs have a chance to win.

The Cubs, in taking their third straight from the Phils yesterday, tied the idle Dodgers in the number of games won. The standings this morning are:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Cubs	66	51	.564
Dodgers	66	57	.537

Mathematically, the Cubs are leading the Dodgers by three games, but in consideration of the balance of the season the advantage is greater than that.

Cubs Could Lose Six Games.

Assume, if you will, that circumstances were such that the Dodgers could quit playing until the Cubs had

Big Day for Grove; He Hits Homer as A's Beat Sox, 8-1

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 22.—A pitcher named Robert Moses Grove did enough with his arm and bat today to cause grief among the pupils of Lew Fonseca's White Sox baseball school. With his rifle like arm Mr. Grove subdued the pupils with nine hits, only four of them in the last seven innings. With his bat he turned loose a home run with two on the bases and singled later to start a three run rally. The Athletics won, 8 to 1. It was the 19th victory of the year for the big southpaw.

Only three of the Chicago boys had any fun while going through the daily lesson. They were Elias Funk, Bob Seeds, and Billy Sullivan. They shared equally in a half dozen hits, but Sullivan had a bit of an edge on the two others because he came through with a double which picked up the only Sox run. It made eight safe smashes for Sullivan and the same for Seeds in the three battles here, the former in 12 times at bat and the latter in 13.

16 Hits Off Gallivan.

All of the Sox pitching was handled by Phil Gallivan, at one time a Brooklyn Dodger, but it can't be said that the young man caused much consternation among the enemy hitters. He was touched for 16 hits. He was able to hold off the run-getting until Grove drove his homer out of the park in the fourth.

At the start Grove undoubtedly wondered what had come over those Sox, that they should thump him like he was a nobody. They pummeled him with two singles and a double in the first inning, and got two more singles in the second. But the Chicagoans could score only one run. This happened in the opening inning. Funk singled to center on the first pitch of the day. He was out stealing while Hayes fanned. Then Seeds singled to right and came home on Sullivan's double over Simmons.

A's Start Scoring in Fourth.

Gallivan gave Prof. Fonseca heart trouble in a couple of innings. The young man had three on with none out as the result of a double by Bishop, single by Haas, and pass to Cochrane in the first inning. He got out of this by fanning Simmons, after which Foxx and McNair rolled to Selph for force outs. The third was almost as bad, but still no runs resulted. Bishop led off with a hit. Haas filed out, Cochrane walked, and Simmons filed out. Foxx beat out a scratch to Selph, filling the bases, but McNair bounced to short.

Miller singled to short in the fourth. Dykes also singled. Grove made one futile attempt to bunt and then changed his mind. He swung, and the effort couldn't have been improved upon. When the ball came down it landed in one of the wildcat bleachers erected on the roofs across the street from the right field wall. That was good for three runs. Another scored on Bishop's double, a bunt, and a long fly.

'Ray! A Hit for Simmons.

Simmons, after flunking out three different times with teammates on base, finally made a hit in the seventh and it meant a run. Cochrane, who also is having no end of trouble with the bat that once was so reliable, opened with a double down the left field line. Simmons scored him with a single to center.

Grove's second hit, a single to center with one out in the eighth, started the champions on the road to their last three runs. Bishop filed to Kress and Haas shoved a single past Sullivan. Cochrane doubled down the right field line to move both runners across the plate. Simmons was safe when Selph made a bad throw to Sullivan. Foxx then singled to left to score Cochrane from third.

BROWN WISDOM, NORTHGALIS JOIN VICTORS AT LAST

Patient Waiters Rewarded at Hawthorne.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Everything comes to him who waits, even to followers of the horses.

Those who had waited so long for Northgalis and Brown Wisdom to win finally were rewarded at Hawthorne yesterday when they ran off with the best races on the program.

Northgalis, making his ninth start, had never tasted victory and never had been as good as third but once before when he galloped to victory against a stylish band of 2 year olds in the Hy-Grade purse at six furlongs. Brown Wisdom, an old time favorite of every turf fan in the country, was making his twelfth start of the year. Previously he had been able to win but one race, and that happened down in Florida soon after the first of the year.

The old fellow pranced out in the Sylvania purse, ran away from his field, and rolled home in front of Sweet Scent, one of the shortest priced favorites of the season.

Both by Five Lengths.

It was a strange coincidence that both these horses, which seldom get in the winning mood, won by five lengths. Each scorched the track and won in dazzling time.

There was nothing strange about the long odds that prevailed against either of them. After the race players had lost eight bets in a row on Northgalis and nearly a dozen on Brown Wisdom can you blame them for not trying to make them pay dividends any longer?

So when Northgalis came with his rush in the stretch away out in the middle of the track and passed the early pace makers, Ted Clark and Monk's Dude, then left them struggling around in their tracks, he paid $18.60 to win. Form players were shocked. The faithful, who were certain this well bred son of Sir Gallahad III.-Fasnite sometime would win a race, put on a noisy celebration.

No Hope for Sweet Scent.

Brown Wisdom always is under suspicion. Ever since he came to the races he has been one of those in and out guys. When he lost folks thought he wasn't trying. When he won they rushed in with glee and cashed their tickets on him. That's the way it goes on the race track, where the search for a winner never ends.

Brown Wisdom's race was a smasher and even if Sweet Scent, which was a 1 to 2 shot, had been away with him, it is doubtful if she could have kept step.

Allen got Brown Wisdom away fast and they had gone hardly a furlong when he leaped out into a lead of 2½ lengths. Sweep All tried to match strides with him and was beaten by the time they hit the turn. Batting Knight offered a challenge then fell back. He's from Col. E. R. Bradley's stable but hasn't much heart. Back Log was up there and Brown Wisdom shook him off.

Look Out, Equipoise.

Sweet Scent then started driving down the stretch. The daughter of Bunting stepped by all the early challengers, had them whipped and took after Brown Wisdom midway in the stretch.

But when she tried to catch Brown Wisdom she found the job too big for her. Every time she put on speed so did Brown Wisdom. So he raced on home far in front. He rounded out the six and one half furlongs in 1:18 3-5, which was within two-fifths of a second of the track record.

It made the old fellow loom up as a possible challenger of Equipoise in the Hawthorne Gold cup to run Saturday afternoon.

FACTOR HOLDS ALEKHINE TO DRAW IN CHESS

Pasadena, Cal., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Three Americans won their games today in the sixth round of the international chess masters' tournament while Dr. Alexander Alekhine of France, the world's champion, was forced to content himself with a draw, although he continued to hold the lead.

The winning Americans were Herman Steiner of New York, who is in second place; Samuel Reshefsky of Chicago and Harry Borochow of Los Angeles. Samuel Factor of Chicago succeeded in holding Dr. Alekhine to a draw. The summary:

SIXTH ROUND—Reshefsky defeated Fink, San Francisco; Steiner defeated Capt. Araiza, Mexico City; Borochow defeated Reinfeld, New York; Dake, Portland, Ore., and Fine, New York, drew; Dr. Alekhine and Factor drew; Kashdan, New York, adjourned with Bernstein, New York.

THE SCORES—Alekhine, 4¼-½; Steiner, 4-2; Dake, 4-2; Factor, 3½-2½; Kashdan, 3-1; Reshefsky, 2-0; Borochow, 2-3; Reinfeld, 2-4; Fine, 2-2; Fink, 1½-4½; Bernstein, 1-4; Araiza, ½-4½.

Panetian Victim of Race "Fixers"; Open Investigation

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—C. Leroy King's Panetian, formerly owned by George D. Widener, was tampered with in his stall last night or early this morning, according to a statement from the stewards today. He was ordered withdrawn from the fourth race, the Burgomaster handicap, and an investigation immediately started.

The horse was sponged, that is to say, a small sponge was thrust up one nostril in order to impede breathing. George L. Arvin, trainer of Panetian, noticed that the lock on the stall door had been forced and called the track veterinarian. Examination disclosed that there had been tampering.

This afternoon stable hands and others were being questioned by the representatives of the Pinkerton Detective agency who police the course. The hope was expressed that more progress would be made in this case than in earlier ones of the kind, because of the recent change in the state law which makes a felony of such offenses.

Guy Duffy 4 Heat Circuit Trot Victor

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Guy Duffy, owned by H. J. Schmoeger of Peoria and driven by H. M. Parshall, won a stirring four heat victory in the 2:18 trot, feature of the Grand Circuit program which opened at the Illinois State Fair track today.

After finishing fourth in the first brush and third on the second time out, the Parshall entry breezed to a win in the third and came back to beat the four other heat winners, Simons Creek and Earl Pluto, in the extra mile.

Catherine, owned by J. E. Crosble of Tulsa, Okla., took the last two heats to win the 2:17 pace from Taylor Thomas. Two trials for two year olds completed the opening card, Volans winning the trot while J. B. McCord's Peg Abbe took the pace.

Handicap racing will be tried for the first time on an American track here tomorrow. A field of eight has been named, three starting from scratch, three more 40 yards behind, and two, Lock Bunter and Allie Pluto, 100 yards behind. Summaries:

By an Eyelash! That's Way 4 Races Finish

Four finishes at Hawthorne yesterday made strong hearts quiver and caused a lot of folks to wonder if they could believe their eyes. They came in the first race when Pete beat Chrysostom by an inch; in the second when Copperfield trimmed Porternesia by about three quarters of an inch; in the third when Islam just lasted to conquer Old Depot by a lip, and the sixth which found Uncommon Gold getting the decision over William T.

Tony Barrett from the Board of Trade nearly fell out of the press box when his Lydia Ann took the lead at the start of the seventh race and was threatening to make a show of her field around the club house turn. Then Lydia Ann slowed up. A lot of horses ran on past her and Mr. Barrett was normal again.

It appears that old Golden Prince can't win a race any more. He was running to be claimed for $2,500 yesterday, showed flashes of his old speed in the early part of it, then folded up and could do no better than finish. His corns and bunions probably started to pain him.

Faireno, William Woodward's claimant for the three year old championship, will arrive at Hawthorne this morning for his engagement in the Hawthorne Gold Cup race Saturday.

The winner of the Belmont Stakes, the Dwyer Stakes, the Hawthorne Handicap, and many other stakes was shipped direct from Saratoga.

Mate, A. C. Bostwick's winner of the American Derby and Arlington Classic of 1931, will leave tomorrow at the same time Equipose departs from the east for the Gold Cup struggle.

Mate has been a failure so far this year, but reports from the east say that the Bostwick colt is now showing all the fine speed that won him so much fame last year.

DON TURNS IN 115 MILE CLIP IN TRYOUT RUN

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 22.—(AP)—The world's fastest motorboat, with her pilot, Kaye Don, British ace, at the wheel, cut a foaming wake over the Harmsworth course in Lake St. Clair today at a speed variously estimated from 110 to 115 miles an hour.

It was the first test of Miss England III., the British challenging boat, in American waters, and at the close of a 15 mile run Don pronounced the motors satisfactory, and said the test marked the end of public appearances of the craft. He said he probably would make no further runs over the course until the marker buoys are placed over the route he and Gar Wood, veteran American pilot, race for the Harmsworth trophy.

Meanwhile Wood continued tests of his Miss America X., his new 48 cylinder speed giant, near his boatwell at Algonac, Mich.

The first heat of the Harmsworth race will [illegible] n Sept. 3, with successive heats on Sept. 5 and 6.

PIRATES DIVIDE WITH GIANTS AND LOSE HALF GAME

Capture Opener, 6 to 1; Drop Second, 4-3.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 22.—(AP)—The Pirates could get no better than an even break with the New York Giants today, winning the first game, 6 to 1, as Heine Meine held the visitors to five hits, but dropping the nightcap, 4 to 3, to fall a half game further behind the Cubs.

With Meine turning in one of his finest performances of the year, the opener was a simple matter for the Pirates. Three Giant pitchers were hammered for 14 hits. Jim Mooney was driven from the box under a four run barrage in the fifth. Adam Comorosky put the finishing touches on the big lefthander by hitting a home run inside the park with two on base.

Waite Hoyt went the route for the Giants in the second game and, although he yielded nine hits, was right in the pinches and held the Pirates scoreless after he had been given his winning margin in the sixth inning. Leon Chagnon went seven innings for the Pirates and was charged with the defeat. Scores:

Hadley Holds Yanks to Four Hits; Wins, 5-1

New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Irving [Bump] Hadley, St. Louis Brown righthander, beat the slugging Yankees, 5 to 1, on four hits today, and but for a bad break would have gained the distinction of being the first pitcher to shut out the leaders this year.

Earl Combs opened the game with a smash to center that got away from Schulte and rolled for a triple. A moment later he scored on Joe Sewell's infield out. But for that, Hadley had the McCarthy team stopped.

In the last eight innings the Yanks collected only three hits, all of them by Ben Chapman, and seven went down swinging at Hadley's curves. The veteran yielded eight passes, but they did him no damage. Babe Ruth struck out three times. Score:

RECORDS BROKEN FOR TRAPSHOOT CLASS TITLES

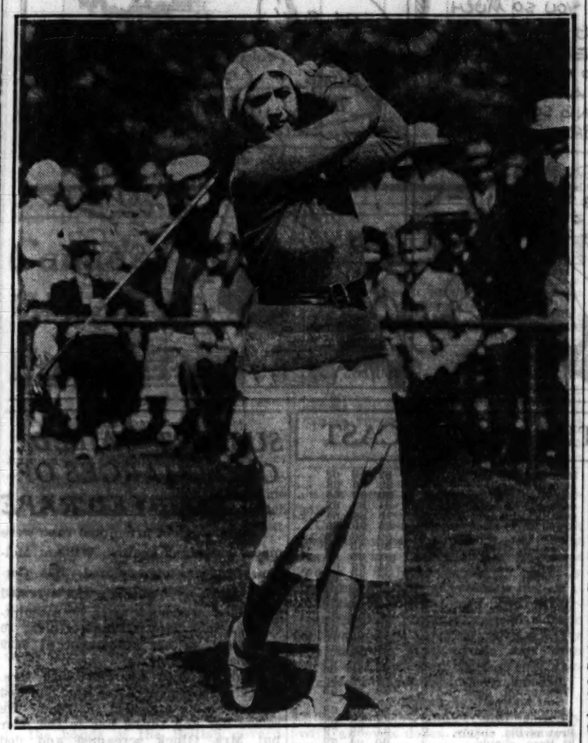
Vandalia, O., Aug. 22.—(AP)—World trapshooting scores were smashed right and left today as class championships of North America were decided in the 33d annual grand American handicap tournament.

Five marksmen broke 200 targets, a hitherto unheard of feat in class championships. Another record was set when K. M. Leach of Calgary, Alberta, won the class B title with a perfect score, the first time in the tournament that a class B entrant has attained perfection.

In class AA, Ralph Smoots of Kenton, O., won in a shoot-off with Steve Crothers of Chestnut Hills, Pa., and Walter Beaver of Berwyn, Pa., each of whom finished the regulation 200 targets without a miss. Smoots smashed 50 straight while Crothers broke 48 and Beaver retired after missing his 25th target.

George Slaughter of Benton Harbor, Mich., was the fifth 200 straight shooter. His score gave him first place in class A. Harry Pemberton of Roseville, O., won the class C title with 196. The class D title went to Charles Jones of Newark, O., with 193, and W. P. Burney of Hannibal, Mo., was crowned class E leader with 186.

CHAMPION—PLAYS LIKE ONE



Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City, Mo., defending champion, slashes five strokes off the course record yesterday in qualifying for the women's western golf championship tournament at Peoria. Mrs. Hill's rounds were 37—38—75. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Hill's 75 Sets Course Record; Tops Women's Golf

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City, Mo., who took up golf about eight years ago because of ill health, did more than the doctor ordered today in the qualifying round of the women's western golf tournament over the Country club of Peoria course. She led the field with a brilliant 37—38—75, one under par.

Mrs. Hill's card also bettered the course record by five strokes. Some eight years ago Mrs. Lee Mida of Butterfield, Chicago, shot an 80 over this hilly layout and since then the 80 had been untouched. Mrs. Hill's score contained four birdies and was perfect on all of the other holes with the exception of three putt greens at the fourth, twelfth and fifteenth holes.

Ten Chicagoans Qualify.

Second place went to Mrs. J. Walter Beyer of Tulsa, Okla., with 39—38—77. Mary Elizabeth Ford of Kansas City was tied with Mrs. Roy Greene of Glendale, Cal., for third place at 80. Jean Armstrong, Indian Hill, Chicago, and Lucille Robinson, Des Moines, had 81s.

Chicago placed ten among the 32 in the championship flight. In addition to Miss Armstrong there were: Mrs. Melvin Jones, Lincolnshire, 82; Mrs. Harold O. Foreman, Lake Shore, 84; Jane Weiller, Northmoor, 85; Rena Nelson, Exmoor, 85; Virginia Ingram, Sunset Ridge, 85; Mrs. Lillian Zech, Tam o' Shanter, 85; Priscilla Carver, 88; Marge Rosslein, Nordic, 88, and Helen MacMorran, Indian Hill, 89.

June Beebe Fails.

June Beebe, Olympia Fields, lost a chance to get into the championship flight when she sent her second shot out of bounds in the playoff for the last three places. Five had been tied at 89. Mrs. John Arends of Detroit and Helen MacMorran of Indian Hills shot birdie 4s on the first hole of the playoff to win, and on the second hole Dorothy Gustafson, South Ben, scored a par 5 against a 6 by Dorothy Foster of Springfield, Ill., for the last place.

Mrs. Hill's card:

Par—Out	555	355	453—40
Mrs. Hill—Out	454	444	453—37
Par—In	453	544	434—36—76

PAUL LIGHT'S 65 WINS MEDAL IN JUNIOR TOURNEY

Paul Light, an unattached golfer, won the medal in the qualifying round for the Chicago Junior Golf championship at Marquette park yesterday, shooting a 65, one under par. He scored a 34 on the first nine, and came in with a 31 on the second round.

Behind Light was Frank Ghiselli, Shorewood, who recently won the Cook county boys' championship at Garfield park. Ghiselli came home with a 68, even par. Light's card:

Par: Out	443	344	443—33
Light: Out	343	343	343—34
Par: In	444	443	434—33
Light: In	333	444	235—31

Light today will meet S. Budil, Marquette, who came in with a 77. Ghiselli will be paired against F. Grauman of Lincoln park, who scored a 77. Today's pairings follow:

Paul Light [unattached], 65, vs. S. Budil [Marquette], 77.

Olin Dutra's 138 Wins in North Shore

Once again the North Shore open title returns to the Pacific Coast, this time in the keeping of Olin Dutra of Los Angeles, who yesterday sprinted in with a 67-71—138 at Sunset Valley to win by a stroke over Jock Hutchison who carded a 71-68—139 for second place.

Last year the championship, which carries a cash prize of $350 to the winning professional, was won by Frank Morrison, also of Los Angeles. He scored 141, but did not defend his title this year.

Hagen, Armour Fail to Appear.

Yesterday's field of 180, the best in the history of the tournament, contained many of the nation's foremost golfers despite the fact that Walter Hagen and Tommy Armour, who had sent in their entries, failed to appear.

Jose Jurado, Argentina, finished third with 72-69—141. Al Huske of Elgin, a late starter, came home in the dark with 70-72—142 for fourth place. Others to finish in the prize money were: Al Espinosa, 69-74—143; Jim Foulis, 71-73—144; Laurie Ayton Sr., 70-74—144; Clarence Hackney, 74-70—144; Eddie Loos, 73-72—145, and Harry Cooper, 73-73—146.

Bill Chambers of Sunset Valley turned in the best score among the amateurs with 71-79—150. Art Favelli of Lake Shore, was second with 76-75—151. Laurie Ayton Jr., and Frank Adams tied for third among the amateurs with 153.

Dutra posted a 33—34—67 for his morning round, a score which clipped par by five strokes and knocked two strokes off the course record.

Dutra Meets Trouble.

However, he encountered trouble at the outset of the second round, taking 5's on the first and second holes, both of them par four holes. He finished the nine in 38, two over par. Meanwhile Hutchison, an early starter, had come in with a snappy 68, which added to his 71 of the morning, gave him 139.

Dutra opened his dash for home by reeling off par figures on the first six holes. But he had to improve on this to beat Hutchison. He came to the 16th, needing birdies on the last three holes to win. He got them, shooting 3, 4, 3 for 71. This figure, together with his 67, gave him 138. Dutra's card:

RAIL EXCURSION BUSINESS BOOMS WITH CUT FARES

Hoarded Money Pours Into Ticket Offices.

A survey made yesterday revealed a boom in the railway excursion business. The roads have reduced their week-end rates to unprecedented levels, far below the cost of travel by automobile and cheaper than the cut rate bus fare. The result has been a mass movement of holiday tourists, by the day coach and sandwich route, to and from Chicago.

Railway officials yesterday said they saw hopes of better times as they surveyed the week-end traffic reports. Currency of the old large size, silver dollars, and even gold pieces—money that obviously had been hoarded—were found in the strong boxes of the ticket offices. Reports were received of "first train rides in five years," and the coffee and sandwich dispensers who had leased entire baggage cars reported "sell outs."

3,500 Take Excursion.

On Sunday, Aug. 14, the Milwaukee road operated a round trip excursion to Milwaukee, and more than 3,500 people took advantage of it. Encouraged by this success, the road operated an excursion to the Wisconsin Dells last Sunday, advertising a limit of 3,000 tickets because of limited boat facilities in the upper Wisconsin river.

But more than 3,100 had purchased tickets before the wicket gates could be closed Sunday morning. These round trip tickets, covering a 390 mile journey, were sold for $3.

Next Sunday the road will operate a $1 round trip excursion to Milwaukee, a 170 mile journey, at the lowest rate in the history of the road, according to W. B. Dixon, general passenger agent.

The Illinois Central is conducting week-end excursions from points south of Vicksburg to New Orleans, the round trip fare from New Orleans to Chicago being $10, as compared with the regular summer tourist rate of $54.05. More than 1,600 came from southern points to Chicago over this road Sunday. They arrived Sunday morning and have until tonight to leave.

Sells Carload of Food.

A New Orleans business man leased an entire baggage car and loaded it with "Louisiana poors boys," a sandwich consisting of half a loaf of bread filled with ham, mayonnaise and coleslaw. Dispensing these at a dime a throw and coffee at a nickel a cup, he sold out his wares en route to Chicago.

The North Western road, on Sunday, Aug. 14, carried 3,500 Chicagoans to Milwaukee for $1 the round trip. Mayor Leon D. Case of Watervliet, Mich., parked his car upon reaching Chicago and went on to Milwaukee by train. He reported to Robert Thompson, passenger traffic manager, that he met people on the trip who told him they were taking their first steam railway ride in five years.

The North Western road excursions into Chicago last Saturday brought more than 4,000 from Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota at 1 cent a mile. The advertised attraction for this excursion was THE TRIBUNE'S Chicagoland Music Festival, which was featured by all the roads.

Omaha Round Trip $10.

The Burlington road is operating two special excursions to and from Chicago each month, charging an average of 1 cent a mile as compared with the basic rate of 3.6 cents a mile. Round trips from Omaha, for which the regular fare is $35.86, are only $10 on the excursions. If the tourists desire Pullman accommodations special fares are allowed on the basis of a round trip for one way fare, but there are no reductions on the Pullman rates.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and North Shore electric route operates Milwaukee-Chicago round trip excursions, good from Friday to Tuesday, for $3.35. In June more than 21,000 of these tickets were sold and the total reached 24,000 in July, officials of the road said. The traffic has been as heavy this month.

The Chicago, South Shore and South Bend electric route has conducted three $1 Sunday excursions to Michigan City and the Dunes, reporting an increase in passenger traffic of 500 for each Sunday. The line also was conducting excursions to Chicago from Michigan City, with similar results, and round trip excursions to South Bend for $2.

BANDITS OBTAIN $3,300 LOOT IN 2 S. SIDE HOLDUPS

Bandits took a total of $3,300 yesterday in holdups of a baking company and a currency exchange on the south side.

At the office of the Gordon Baking company, 5324 Federal street, three men forced six women employés and three men to lie on the floor and took $2,300 from the safe.

The Beverly Currency exchange, 1717 West 95th street, was the other place robbed. George Hall and De Witt Lane, owners of the exchange, surrendered $1,000.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

KEELER PRAISED FOR TAX FIGHT; RITES TOMORROW

Funeral arrangements for Harris S. Keeler, director of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, who died Sunday at Mackinac island, were announced yesterday as the body was being returned to the Keeler home at 5956 Race avenue. The services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the chapel at 318 North Central Park avenue. Burial will be at the Forest Home cemetery.

Associates of Mr. Keeler and public officials joined yesterday in praising the work he carried on for years against wasteful public expenditures.

"Mr. Keeler died a martyr to his devotion to civic and public duty," said Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the organization of which Mr. Keeler was a director. "His death was directly the result of a wornout physical condition, due to constant labors in connection with the breakdown of governmental finances, beginning in the winter of 1929 and 1930.

"Mr. Keeler probably was the master mind in the field of governmental finance in this community. His fairness in always basing his conclusions upon facts and never bending facts to meet preconceived ideas resulted in a reputation for accuracy and fairness of statement."

Corporation Counsel Sexton said that Mr. Keeler was untiring in his efforts to aid the various governmental bodies and was of great help when matters pertaining to Cook county were pending in the legislature.

DEWEY'S PILOT STOPS HERE ON WAY TO MANILA

Four years away from his native Manila, Capt. Francisco Aguado, who piloted Admiral George Dewey after the battle of Manila bay, passed through Chicago yesterday bound for home.

"It was a mistake to take Admiral Dewey's body to the Episcopal cathedral in Washington," Capt. Aguado declared during his wait between trains. "Being one of the first heroes of Manila, Arlington was where he should have rested."

Then beetling his black brows and smiling whimsically, the captain added: "No, sir; the church was not the place for Dewey. It might have been all right for President Wilson, who was a schoolmaster, but Dewey swore like a sailor. He should have remained in Arlington."

Captain Aguado first met Dewey when he went to Dewey's ship as a merchant pilot to collect the wo unded of the fleet of Admiral Montojo. He was then recommended to Dewey as a pilot by the American consul.

"Dewey was a good man. He was a man of great diplomacy and of very strong temper," Capt. Aguado added, "but he was a gentleman always."

REV. MacMILLAN'S FUNERAL TODAY IN PHILADELPHIA

The Rev. Dr. Joseph P. MacMillan, 42 years old, assistant secretary of the board of education of the Methodist Episcopal church, who was drowned while swimming Saturday in Lake Michigan near Tremont, Ind., will be buried this afternoon in Philadelphia, it was announced yesterday. Bishop Ernest G. Richardson will conduct the services.

During the war Dr. MacMillan was the secretary of the late Bishop Bashford, who was head of the war prisoners' aid in northern Europe. In 1918 Dr. MacMillan became the assistant secretary of the centenary commission of the Methodist church and later was made the manager of the New York office of the church's board of education. He came to Chicago in 1924.

Dr. MacMillan had offices in the Methodist Book Concern building at 740 Rush street. He is survived by his widow and two children, Janet and Donald. The family home is at 422 Sigel street.

COL. F. A. BATTEY, VETERAN OF '61, DEAD IN MIAMI

Col. Frederick A. Battey, 93 years old, veteran of the Civil war, and for many years active in Englewood civic and business affairs, died last night at his home in Miami, Fla. He was a former deputy collector of the internal revenue department here.

Col. Battey was born in Rhode Island in 1838. He came to Chicago when he was 14 years old, traveled farther west by stages, and later, followed by his family, settled in Bureau county, Ill.

His military career was colorful. He fought at Fort Donaldson, Resaca, and Shiloh, being wounded twice in the latter engagement. He was once captured by the Confederates. He marched with Sherman to the sea, commanding the regiment he had joined as a private. Col. Battey's rise included every rung from private to colonel. He participated in the Grand Review at Washington in June, 1865, and after the disbandment of his regiment at Fort Dearborn, Chicago, transferred as an officer to the 40th regiment, regular army.

Returning to Chicago in 1870, Col. Battey entered the publishing field, and devoted much of his personal activities to civic and political welfare. Later he entered the internal revenue offices, retiring at the age of 85. A few years ago he moved to Florida. He was a past commander of the George H. Thomas post, G. A. R.

Surviving Col. Battey are his widow, Jessie, who became his wife in 1924, and a son, Raymond B. Battey of La Grange, an executive of the Burlington railway. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

HOLD SLAYER OF NEIGHBOR ON MURDER CHARGE

Jeers greeted the verdict of a coroner's jury yesterday which held George Bucher, 56 years old, to the grand jury on a charge of murder. Bucher shot and killed Roy Ross, 32 years old, his next door neighbor, at South 50th avenue and 83d street, near Oak Lawn, last Saturday.

Deputy Coroner Matt Tychsen said the verdict was "a travesty on justice." The shooting was a clear case of justifiable homicide, he declared.

Ross's widow, Mary, 28 years old, wounded three times by shots from Bucher's gun, testified that Bucher shot her husband without warning after a quarrel over the loan of a can of paint. A number of other witnesses testified, however, that Ross had carried a gun for two weeks before the shooting and had a reputation as a trouble-maker.

Bucher testified he saw Ross and his wife beating his son, Richard, a shell-shocked war veteran. Mrs. Ross was armed with a large knife, he said. He declared he then got his automatic pistol and fired several shots.

Imperial Potentate of Shrine Is Chicago Guest

Earl Mills of Des Moines, Ia., imperial potentate of the Shriners, departed yesterday on the Grand Trunk Maple Leaf for Montreal after visiting in Chicago. Mr. Mills, who is to make a tour of Shrine temples in Canada, was accompanied to the Dearborn street station by U. J. Herrmann, potentate of Medinah temple.

SUSPECT JAILED ON 2 CHARGES OF ATTEMPTED RAPE

Two charges of attempted rape were made last night against William Molden, 24 years old, colored, 3111 Cottage Grove avenue. He was arrested yesterday afternoon after he attempted to attack Mrs. Gunnell Gluck, 30 years old, in her apartment at 5439 Woodlawn avenue.

Molden forced his way into Mrs. Gluck's apartment after she had fed him when he appealed for food. He seized her and threw her to the floor but Mrs. Gluck screamed and fled down the back stairs. George Sterkel, 5445 Woodlawn avenue, her brother-in-law, captured Molden as he fled down an alley.

The second charge against Molden was made by Marjorie Albertson, 9 years old, 916 Oakwood boulevard. She identified him as the man who entered the bedroom where she was asleep on the night of July 13 and attempted to attack her. Her cries frightened him away.

GUNMAN GETS $2,000 IN REESE HOSPITAL RAID

A robber invaded Michael Reese hospital yesterday and took $2,000 in the office of Frank Kassner, the hospital auditor. Before he fled he bound and gagged Kassner, his assistant, and a young woman stenographer, with adhesive tape.

Kassner's office is separated from the main office of the hospital by a corridor and he keeps the door locked. The bandit apparently lurked in the hall until he saw the auditor entering the office and slipped in behind him.

Inside, he drew a revolver and ordered Kassner, Carl M. Tandy, his assistant, and Miss Josephine Friedman, the stenographer, away from the table on which the money lay. It was being counted preparatory to deposit in a bank. The robber scooped up the money, ordered the three employés to turn their backs, bound their wrists, and gagged them with the tape, and made his escape.

PRICE ADVANCES IN COMMODITIES AID SENTIMENT

Rubber and Coffee Perform Better.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

While the stock market yesterday was crashing into new high ground for the summer recovery and bond prices were registering the best day's gains in months, improved sentiment was being reflected in other lines as well.

A number of commodity futures moved higher, a feature being the advance of nearly 20 points made by some deliveries in rubber. Contributing to this rise was a broad demand from commission houses and dealers. Cables were better and the strong tone of stocks also influenced the market.

Coffee also advanced sharply, with gains ranging up to ten points. Fear of a possible shortage as a result of Brazilian political unrest continued to influence that market.

Sugar futures were quiet at slightly higher levels, and raw sugar was quiet and firm. In cocoa the undertone was firm with prices moderately higher.

Cotton Futures Climb.

Cotton futures advanced briskly to new highs on the current move on a spirited rally during the afternoon. All deliveries participated in the upturn. New York spots attained the highest quotations in twelve months. Selling by southern coöperatives was more than offset by a good volume of buying for the trade. Yesterday's rise was equal to about $1 a bale.

Wheat made fractional gains despite the news from Ottawa of the British agreement to give tariff preference to empire grain. This development had been discounted pretty well in advance.

Disconcerting items in the news yesterday, such as the July decline in new building throughout the nation, were more than offset in financial circles by the importance and bullish portent of such developments as the buoyancy of bonds, signs of a seasonal stirring of activity in steel and railroad shipments, the continued strength of commodity prices, expansion in the textile industry and other lines of trade and prospects of a continued inflow of gold.

Gold Coming from Abroad.

With foreign balances reduced to a minimum as a result of the gold withdrawals by European nations during early summer and with foreign apprehension about the dollar giving way to foreign eagerness to make profits in American security markets a return of some of the gold that went abroad is anticipated. One Chicago banker yesterday expressed the opinion that influx of foreign gold during the last half of 1932 would amount to between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000.

The completion of the Ottawa conference clears up the foreign situation for the time being. Despite the news of British agreement to a preferential tariff for Canadian and Australian wheat, conservative leaders yesterday were breathing sighs of relief that the conference had closed. The worst fear, which was that the Ottawa meeting might be led into the unexplored intricacies of bimetalism, had not materialized. Backing up the stand of the South Africans, the delegates came out of the conference committed more strongly than ever to the gold standard.

May Go Back to Gold.

An early return of Great Britain to the gold standard would not surprise American banking interests, although the pound sterling, if it goes back on a gold basis, will probably go on something like the present deflated levels.

Bank deposits throughout the nation remained at about the same level during the week ended Aug. 17, despite the continued action in security markets, according to the weekly federal reserve statement of the condition of weekly reporting member banks in the leading cities.

Combined net demand deposits rose from $10,794,000,000 to $10,819,000,000. Time deposits declined $5,000,000 to stand $5,633,000,000 on Aug. 17.

Loans on securities declined from $4,609,000,000 to $4,583,000,000. Total loans and investments dropped from $18,622,000,000 to $18,580,000,000.

U. S. OFFICIALS SILENT ON STORIES OF NEW TARIFFS FOR BRITAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—Official Washington today maintained silence regarding the possible effect on American foreign trade by the tariff treaties consummated yesterday between Great Britain and her dominions at the imperial British tariff conference in Ottawa.

Handicapped by the action of the conference powers in withholding certain schedules of commodities affected by the preference agreements, officials of the commerce department declared they were unable to estimate what portion of our trade with the United Kingdom would be affected. An official report from American trade representatives in Canada is expected within a few days. Officials at the commerce department were inclined to view as excessively high reports that 200 million dollars of our exports to Great Britain and the dominions would be hit.

Trade Slump Remedies Stir Wide Disputes

[This is the first of four articles dealing with the decline in commodity prices and volume of trade and the effects on wages during the depression period that began in 1929. This article reviews some theories and the early effort to maintain wages. The next article will appear on Thursday].

BY SCRUTATOR.

Probably no former depression has produced so many theories and measures, both public and private, to ameliorate conditions. But whatever their humantarian purposes, their economic effectiveness is a matter of doubt and debate. For they have not prevented the current economic cycle from sounding new depths.

During the early part of the depression the common plea was that everything possible should be done to maintain purchasing power at its old standard. Industry was importuned to maintain wages and the federal government sought to keep up prices of wheat and cotton to benefit agriculture. The eventual breakdown of these purposes, however, has suggested that they may have prolonged depression instead of limiting it.

Cite Former Depression.

Proponents of this theory base their argument by comparing the current cycle with the 1921-1922 depression. Following the collapse of the stock market in 1920, commodity prices declined abruptly. There were many financial disturbances, but recovery from the ensuing depression came with surprising rapidity and by 1923 manufacturing operations, employment and commodity sales were on the way to new records.

One of the reasons for the prompt recovery was the fact that costs of production, including wages, were quickly readjusted from their wartime peaks. The silk-shirted teamster and the bejeweled steel roller disappeared. Commodity prices fell rapidly in response to reduced demand, being without the support of government funds to keep them up such as has been the case during the current depression.

Thus, prices and wages declined pretty much together and in proportion and although the settling down to a new base entailed considerable unemployment, the readjustment was accomplished rather quickly. Low prices stimulated demand and this, in turn, encouraged production. The cycle was reversed.

Some More Theories.

In contrasting the earlier and current periods, some economists have concluded that prolongation of the current depression has been due to a considerable extent to failure to make the adjustments in 1930, 1931, and 1932 that were accomplished so promptly in 1921. They assert that disequilibrium has been maintaained too long; that the government attempted too long with its money and influence to maintain wages and certain commodity prices at a level out of keeping with a generally depressed situation.

It is recalled that following the collapse of the stock market in the autumn of 1929, President Hoover called together industrial leaders in many lines of business. He exacted a promise from the conferees that they would maintain the 1929 level of wage rates. Henry Ford even went beyond the President's request and announced a wage increase in his automobile plants. Thereafter for more than two years, whenever a suggestion was made that wages be reduced in a particular plant or industry, the promise given to the President was cited and proponents of wage readjustments were reproached as being unpatriotic. But could industry keep its pledge?

Canada Asking What Price Empire Trade?

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

QUEBEC, Que., Aug. 22.—"Not much was accomplished," Premier Taschereau stated today in commenting on the lumber aspect of the imperial economic conference, which came to an end in Ottawa on Saturday.

"While I am ready to admit that Premier Bennett and the members of the Canadian delegation to the conference did as much as they could in opposing the entry of Russian lumber into Great Britain, they failed to carry their point.

"They were unable to agree as to the terms on which soviet lumber should enter Britain and the result has been that the decision rests alone in the hands of the British government.

"It has been made clear by the British delegates that nothing can be accomplished regarding a possible embargo on Russian lumber for at least six months. Then the existing British-soviet trade agreement will expire. I am afraid that the lumbermen of this province will not be pleased with the results. I suppose the Canadian government obtained what it could with regard to this important question.

Upsets Merchants' Practices.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Canadian observers had time following the end of the imperial economic conference Saturday to ponder the intangible factors running through the business of inducing orders from a market only a few hours away to one lying across 3,000 miles of water.

They recalled, for instance, that dominion shopkeepers and manufacturers have been in the habit of carrying low supplies for the sake of reduced overhead. In an emergency, they said, a telephone call to New York, Pittsburgh, or Detroit brought needed materials over night. The whole market structure was built on that practice. To whatever degree trade might be diverted from the United States to Great Britain, they feared, Canada's distribution system might have to be changed.

Merchants, builders, manufacturers and distributors may be forced, it was said, to return to the comparatively expensive habit of carrying large surplus stocks should they have to wait on an ocean voyage to replenish supplies.

Canada also has to consider such imponderables as United States tourist trade, at one time such a tremendous factor of national income as virtually to equal the disparity between Canadian sales and purchases in the American market. In instances that trade approached a favorable balance for the dominion. Much of that has fallen away and certain of the maritime governments have complained bitterly.

Many Pacts to Ratify.

The British empire stands today with an even dozen major trade treaties for individual parliaments of the commonwealth to ratify. Each seeks in theory to better the economic condition within the empire by turning to British nations certain trade which sister dominions have developed with foreign powers, usually through most favored nations treaties. It was the consensus of the conference that whenever an existing most favored nation treaty interfered with the operation of preferences as extended by one British nation to another, that treaty was to be nullified.

It was conceded that the British government might have more serious difficulty than the Canadian. Britain depends on foreign countries to absorb more than half its annual industrial exports. Reference constantly was made at the conference to fears in the united kingdom delegation of unfavorable reaction to restriction of Russian wheat and lumber, Argentine chilled beef, Danish bacon and South American ores.

In some quarters it was believed the British delegation had fortified itself by putting meats on a quota basis and wheat, lumber and ore on a tariff basis.

Rail Bonds Lead Advance; Market Strong in New York

BOND AVERAGES

DOMESTIC.

	Ave.	Net chge.
Rails	69.07	+2.08
Industrials	76.11	+1.49
Utilities	76.06	+.95
Combined	72.58	+1.65

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 22.—Railroad bonds today broke away from all restraining influences. They scored gains of 1 to more than 6 points in the most rapid advance since June 4, when formation of the American Securities Investing corporation was announced.

Bonds of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad led the upward sweep, with strength and activity centering in the 4½s due March, 1933, which, according to present plans, will be refunded one-half in cash and one-half with the payment of new 5 per cent refunding and general mortgage bonds.

Other Rail Bonds Benefit.

Rapid gains in issues of B. & O. were matched by sensational gains in all other divisions of the carrier list. In addition utility and industrial issues followed the upswing, though gains were less spectacular than in the more heavily oversold rail list.

In one respect the advance today was judged by Wall street to be more impressive than the gains of early in June, since today's gains are a continuation of the upswing which has had little or no interruption since the first week in July.

The burst of strength was clearly based on the hope that the R. F. C. will grant loans with equal liberty to other railroads having early maturities.

North Western Also Advances.

Illustrative of the pace of today's gains were advances of 3 points in B. & O. 4½s, 5 points in Chicago and North Western convertible 4½s, 3 points in Great Northern 4½s, 7 points in Missouri-Kansas-Texas 4½s, 4 points in Missouri Pacific general 4s, and over 2 points in Nickel Plate 6s due this year.

That the advance may be overstretching itself was an opinion commonly heard today among traders, but the contrary view was also expressed that the market has until now shown its ability to hold gains as they accrued, even in the face of reactionary trends in the stock market.

While corporation bonds were advancing without restraint, the foreign list and U. S. Governments attracted little or no interest, with prices moving in a narrow range.

Bonds of Canadian Pacific railroad were included in today's plus column, with buying undoubtedly traceable partly to reports that the Canadian government is considering taking over the lines with a guarantee of dividends on the common stock.

Industrial and utility bonds were buoyant in both the high grade and speculative classifications.

Interest in the new issue market centered upon an offering of Pennsylvania Electric company bonds and upon an expected offering of $8,915,000 Dayton Power and Light first 6s.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY'S MARKETS

NEW YORK STOCKS—Higher; rail roads lead sharp advance.

CHICAGO STOCKS—Strong; trading expands.

NEW YORK BONDS—Higher; rails lead.

WHEAT—Higher; follows stocks up.

CORN—Irregular; big receipts.

CATTLE—Lower; heavy run.

HOGS—Lower on slow trade.

COTTON—Higher; trade and Wall street buying; higher cables.

SUGAR—Quiet; steady spot market.

COFFEE—Steady; Brazilian support.

CURB SHARES GAIN

New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—After a slow start, buying enthusiasm quickly spread throughout the curb market today and in turnover of 320,000 shares, against 250,000 last Friday, stocks advanced vigorously. There were numerous gains of 1 to 5 or 6 points.

The public utility list enjoyed especial popularity. Led by Electric Bond and Share common, which gained 2⅞ points to 25⅜, a number of the more active issues ran up 2 to over 4 points These included American Gas and Electric, American Light and Traction, and a number of preferred stocks.

The publication today of National Power and Light company's 12 month earnings for the period ended last June 30 attracted considerable buying to that company's 6 per cent preferred. The stock ran up 6¼ points to a new 1932 high at 73. Another new high to appear in the utility group was scored by Niagara Hudson Power common which closed at 18, after reaching 18¾.

CITY RECEIVES BID OF 95 FOR $1,000,000 BONDS

City Controller Szymczak saw signs of an improvement in Chicago's credit yesterday in a bid of 95 for $1,000,000 of the city's refunding bonds bearing interest at 5 per cent and maturing Jan. 1, 1934. The controller rejected the bid, the only one made, stating that he expects to receive better bids at a future offering.

"The offer of a price of 95 at a time when other municipal bonds are selling in the open market for 88 is encouraging," said the controller.

The bid was for only a portion of the $8,000,000 worth of refunding bonds offered by the controller. The bonds are those sold by the city to its aggregate of funds recently to meet bond principal and interest payments due July 1. The controller refused to name the one bidder, but, according to dispatches from New York, it was the Chase National bank of that city.

BRITISH BANKER'S VISIT STIRS RUMORS ABOUT DEBT CUTTING PLANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 22.—Bankers express both surprise and mystification over the visit of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, to this country at this time. In the absence of specific information speculation was rife regarding his mission.

There are reports that he is here to tell America that agreements reached at Ottawa were in no way aimed at the United States.

In other offices the belief is expressed that he is here to sound this country on the allied powers debts.

Mr. Norman hopes, according to those reports, to find out just what foreign debtors of the United States government should do, if anything, to "get in line" for reductions.

Still another version is that preliminary conversations are under way, or shortly will be, between Governor Norman and representatives of the American government in connection with the forthcoming international conference on economic and financial questions, the date for which has not yet been determined.

There also are those who believe, or at least suspect, that questions that have to do with German foreign indebtedness, particularly perhaps on short terms, have arisen as a result of recent developments, including those at Lausanne, and that Governor Norman wishes to find out as specifically as he can what the position of the financial community here is with reference to them.

Buckner Likely to Head Commodities Finance Corp.

New York, Aug. 22—(AP)—The first organization meeting of the new $50,000,000 Commodities Finance corporation was held today. It is rumored Mortimer N. Buckner, president of the National Credit corporation, would be designated to act as head. Its purpose is to provide a more flexible means of financing the movement of commodities of virtually all kinds into finished goods.

New York, Aug. 22.—A continual wave of buying, which reached its crest in the final hour of trading, carried stock prices up from one to nine points today.

Rails were in the lead, with Union Pacific shooting up 9 points, but the advances extended throughout the list and embraced all the principal shares.

Buying orders on a large scale appeared early in the session and were interspersed throughout the day. Instead of sagging in the last part of the session, the market increased its momentum. Prices closed generally at the highest levels of the day.

Buying Orders Boost Stocks.

Heavy buying orders sent the opening prices upward and established the trend which persisted until the final gong. There were rumors again that foreign interests had reëntered the market on the buying side but there was no evidence to substantiate this recurring report.

Rails were in the van mainly because of the carloading report issued on Saturday which indicated a substantial pickup in traffic. Both common stocks and preferred were favored, and rail bonds also felt the response of the public to more favorable outlook.

While Union Pacific made the most startling gain of 9¾ points, closing at 78¾, all the rails shared in the advance. New York Central closed up 3 points. New Haven scored 3⅛. C. & N. W. gained 2¼, Illinois Central 1¼, Santa Fe 6, Delaware and Hudson 6½, Southern Pacific 1⅝, Baltimore and Ohio 1⅛, and Pennsylvania ⅞.

New High for Steel.

U. S. Steel sold up to 45, a new high for the current movement, and closed at 44¾, a gain for the day of 3⅞. American Telephone and Telegraph sold up to 116⅝ and eased off to 115⅞ for a gain of 6 full points. American Tobacco preferred eased off to 115⅞ for a gain of 6 full points. American Can gathered in 4⅜ points, American Tobacco picked up 5¼, Auburn 6⅝, Consolidated Gas 3, J. I. Case 3¾, International Harvester 1¾.

Tuning Up

We are making more and more loans of $600—$800—$1200—to a splendid class of executives—managers—and to excellent families who find the kind of loan we make and the way we make it, admirably suited in tuning their affairs to the times.

We are glad to have the opportunity to "fill the gap" in this period when things are on the mend. We are anxious for more and more of such opportunities to be useful in this great city.

INCOME TAXES HIT FIVE PAYERS IN VARIED WAYS

Survey Shows Some Strange Results.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 22.—The United States treasury during the current fiscal year will have to refund about $3,500,000,000 to $4,000,000,000 of short-term maturities, raise several billions for the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and cover a possible deficit in the budget.

Meanwhile movements are gaining headway in financial circles to cut governmental expenditures.

William Leslie, member of Leslie, Banks and company, public accountants, in a survey of the situation completed last week, says unless governmental expenditures are cut drastically the tax problem will remain one of distribution of the burden among the various types of taxpayers, rather than one of reducing the burden.

Spend 14 Billions Yearly.

"Our federal, state and local governments are spending at the rate of some $14,000,000,000 a year," Mr. Leslie points out. "That is 20 per cent of the national income.

"To illustrate some of the inequalities under the federal income tax, let us take a number of individuals with the same incomes, say $100,000. A man with that income pays $30,036 in federal income taxes. Normally this is so, but there are many with that income who pay more or less. For example, if half the income is derived from tax exempt securities, only $8,536 is paid.

"If a taxpayer with $100,000 income earns half of it in a corporation which did not distribute its earnings, but used them further to develop the business, only $15.41 tax is paid, consisting of the individual tax of $8,536 on the $50,000 he earns individually, and the corporation tax of $6,875 on the $50,000 earned by the corporation. The tax saving, however, is offset by the fact that when the corporation pays out of its income in dividends the stockholder will be obliged to pay the surtax thereon [the law practically forces such distributions in certain cases], and this further illustrates the abnormality in tax on the same amount of income.

Still Another Example.

"Let us take another taxpayer with $100,000 income. There is a restriction in the federal law on the deduction of losses on sales of securities held for less than two years. The man with a net income of $200,000 who has lost half of it by sales of securities, so that $100,000 net income is left, pays $86,536 tax out of this $100,000. Even if his loss on sales of securities held over two years, which loss is allowable, he could benefit by a reduction of only 12½ per cent of this loss and he would still have to pay $74,036."

LA SALLE-MONROE BUILDING CORP. IN RECEIVERSHIP

Porter Fox, active in the work of the George M. Forman Realty Trust and former owner of the investment house bearing his name, yesterday was appointed by Judge Wilkerson in the United States District court the receiver for the La Salle-Monroe Building corporation. The corporation operates the building at the northeast corner of La Salle and Monroe streets which is called the New York Life building. The insurance company is in no way connected with the ownership of the building, being merely the lessee of a large amount of space in the structure.

Receivership action was instituted yesterday by the law firm of Tenney, Harding, Sherman & Rogers on behalf of C. Welch Greenwell, a Missouri creditor. According to the petition the company's assets are $3,650,000, which is in excess of liabilities. It is stated the liabilities consist mainly of $1,805,000 in 6¼ per cent first mortgage bonds and $1,500,000 in common stock. Income from rentals had dropped to such an extent it has been impossible to meet all obligations.

It was stated that the receivership action was instituted to conserve the property and that efforts will be made to reorganize it. Mr. Fox's bond was set by Judge Wilkerson at $25,000.

RUSH OF BUYING BOOSTS STOCKS IN WALL STREET

Best Gain of Day Reaches 9¾ Points.

International Business Machine 3¼, Peoples Gas 2¾, Standard Oil of N. J. 1½, and so on down the line.

Best Levels of the Year.

The series of buying demonstrations established stock prices at the highest level of the year. In stocks the advance was the widest in nearly three weeks. There were indications, brokers said, of active short covering, as there has been for some time. Some increase in demand on the part of the so-called public was reported. Pools continued to accumulate stocks and there was, no doubt, some pool distribution, although it had no visible effect on the market. The average for fifty stocks was up $4.11.

Steel shares were in good speculative demand, with such issues as Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Republic Steel rising to the best prices recorded this year. News from the steel industry was that operations had risen about 1 point in the last week to between 15 and 16 per cent of capacity. Further indications of improvement have been noted, such as demand for scrap, expectations of a better trend in automotive circles, and recent activity in pig iron.

Inasmuch as July and August hardly are months when the steel industry expects any marked change, such betterment as is coming to the surface now is accepted as that much more encouraging. Real improvement is not expected until fall.

Treasury Notes Again Largely Oversubscribed

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—Acting Secretary Ballantine of the treasury announced today the 91 day treasury bills, dated Aug. 24, 1932, and maturing Nov. 23, 1932, offered on Aug. 18, were oversubscribed, $347,818,000 being offered. The highest bid was 99.897, equal to about 0.41 per cent on an annual basis; the lowest bid accepted was 99.894, about 0.42 per cent. The total amount of bids accepted was $62,350,000. The average price of treasury bills to be issued is 99.894. The average rate on a bank discount basis is about 0.42 per cent.

WHEAT RALLIES AFTER BREAK; CLOSES HIGHER

British Tariff Stories Cause Early Drop.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Uneasiness over the duty which Great Britain will impose on imported wheat exclusive of that from the empire tended to restrict operations in the futures markets.

Speculative trading was limited a good part of the day, with prices holding within a range of 1c. There was moderate early strength, due largely to sympathy with Winnipeg. Later prices dropped rather sharply. They came within a fraction of the inside figure of Saturday. Toward the last buying credited to houses with eastern connections absorbed the surplus in the pit and caused a strong rally with the close about the best figures of the day.

Speculative operations rather than the news was the dominating influence throughout the day. The strength in stocks had some effect on sentiment toward the last. Closing trades were at net gains of ⅝@1⅛c with September, 50⅝@50½c; December, 54@54⅛c, and May 58⅝@58⅜c.

Winnipeg Wheat Firm.

There was considerable pressure on the Winnipeg wheat market at times, but it failed to get below the finish of Saturday, due in part to the removal of hedges against export sales estimated as high as 1,000,000 bu. The Canadian market closed ⅛@⅜c higher with December at 56⅝c with the exchange rate quoted around 12⅝ per cent discount. Weather conditions remain favorable for the movement in the prairie provinces, and the new grain is being delivered at interior points in volume.

Liverpool was influenced to a considerable extent by abnormally small world's shipments for this season of the year, and by light local stocks and closed ⅛c lower to ¼c per bu higher with December at 56⅛c.

The trade generally placed a bearish construction on the signing of the imperial conference report, although data was lacking as to when the import duty of 6c per bu will be imposed on wheat into Great Britain. Average exports from the United States in the last six years have been 154,000,000 bu, and during that period, according to a government estimate, about 54,000,000 bu annually have been exported to Great Britain.

Little interest is being taken by foreigners in domestic hard winter although stocks abroad are unusually small, and there was practically no carryover from the old crop. New grain, however, has started to move and buyers abroad continue to operate on a most conservative basis. There is now only 23,552,000 bu wheat afloat on ocean passage or less than two weeks' theoretical requirements of importing countries. Black rust is reported to have caused heavy damage in Poland and the crop estimates may be reduced one-third, according to reports. An increase of 10 to 12 per cent in the Argentine acreage for the crop that will be harvested in November and December is indicated.

Corn Near Season's Low.

September corn sold at 30¼c yesterday, or within ⅛c of the inside figure of the season, but all deliveries rallied later with wheat and on short covering. Closing trades were ⅛c lower to ¼c higher with September, 30⅜@30½c; December, 32¼c, and May, 36⅜c. Country offerings to arrive were not large and shipping demand slow. H. C. Donovan, the Logan & Bryan crop observer reported corn firing in northern Illinois as the result of continued dry weather.

Oats showed resistance to pressure and prices averaged higher, with the finish at net gains of ⅛@¼c. September was 15⅜c; December, 17⅞c, and May, 20⅝c at the last. Hedging sales were less in evidence while commission houses bought on resting orders. Rye was unchanged to ⅛c higher in sympathy with wheat. September closed at 30⅝c; December, 33⅜c, and May, 37⅝c.

LARD SLIGHTLY LOWER

Spreading operations between lard and cotton seed oil was said to be the leading feature of the provisions trade. Lard was bought and cotton seed oil sold, the latter at a premium around 6c against 10c a few days ago. An easy tone was on in lard with prices Sept. 2½c lower, and deferred futures 2½ to 5c higher. September bellies were off 5c with a light business. Regular cash lard was 5.10c, loose, 4.82½c, and leaf, 5c. Short ribs and dry salted clear bellies were unchanged at 6.75c. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 6c higher. Export clearances of lard from New York on Saturday were 614,735 lbs. Hog prices were lower with receipts less than a week and a year ago at western packing points. Prices follow:

One month ago	7.00@9.40
One year ago	7.75@9.85
Top yesterday, $9.90; average, $7.75.
SHEEP—Western range lambs	$4.50@5.75
One month ago	5.00@6.35
One year ago	4.75@7.75
Top yesterday, $6.65; average, $5.25.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 7,000; hogs, 20,000; sheep, 10,000.

Hogs pulled through another dreary session yesterday. Prices ebbed slowly to a 5@15c lower position, with neither side of the trade putting on much pressure.

The extreme top for hogs yesterday at $4.85 compared with $4.90 last Friday, while the general average price at $4.10 compared with $4.30 Friday. The unrest in the "strike" area of Iowa continues to send more hogs into Chicago. The movement into points farther west has dropped off. Sioux City is effected most.

Top Steers Do Better.

Top steers forged ahead to a new high mark of $9.90 in face of the largest receipts in five weeks. The range of prices spread out further, common to medium grades which made up most of the increase in receipts dropping 25@50c in value, while top grades were actually scarce and in demand at strong prices. The bulk of cattle coming on the market are the class that sells at $8.75 and below. A big share of the thin grass steers yesterday cashed at $5.00@6.00. A scattering ranged downwards to $4.00 and less. The scant showing of highly finished weighty beeves available yesterday stood out in a class by themselves. Eastern order buyers paid $9.90 for a shipment of 1,254 lb. averages. Butcher stock slumped 15@25c, with the exception of a few choice heifers that sold steady. Calves ruled weak to 25c lower.

Sheep Receipts Increase.

Sheep receipts yesterday were largest since Feb. 8 and 80 per cent above the average of the last five Mondays. Approximately 25,000 arrived here, with 18,000 of them from range territory. Sellers endeavored to block a decline, resulting in a slow movement during the first part of the day on a weak to 25c lower basis. Fifty carloads of range lambs were carried through forenoon and sold on afternoon rounds on a mostly steady basis. The latter sold largely at $5.75. Natives were sorted to packers at $5.25 @5.50, although occasional lots to packers reached $6.50@6.65. The latter were in a class by themselves in point of quality. City butchers hand picked a few up to $6.35.

FEWER CATTLE IN CORN BELT; SLAUGHTER LESS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—(AP)—A decrease of 5 per cent in the number of cattle being fed for market in the corn belt on Aug. 1, compared with the same date of last year, and a 14 per cent increase east of the Mississippi river were estimated today by the department of agriculture.

Inspected slaughter of cattle during the first seven months of the present year amounted to 4,386,000 head, a decrease of 4.9 per cent as compared with last year and the smallest for the period since 1921.

The number of cattle on farms has been increasing since 1928, the department said, while the number slaughtered annually has decreased steadily since 1926.

Commonwealth Customers—PAY LESS—for LOANS

COMMONWEALTH'S rate on amounts above $100 is substantially lower than the lawful rate usually charged.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

You get the full amount of the loan, and up to 25 months to repay. Interest at the reduced rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Also Salary and Auto Loans.

A WORLD'S FAIR OPPORTUNITY! FOR A MAN WITH $5,000.

An old established travel bureau is developing a plan of selling tours to the Century of Progress from all over the United States on the installment basis.

We want to meet a man who can quickly build a sales organization—can inspire and enthuse them—and who believes in himself and the future.

If you have $5,000 cash—the right background and willingness to work—here is an opportunity to make real money.

Give us the story, all cards on the table—you'll like us and this is a real opportunity. Address M A 212, Tribune.

A SUBSTANTIAL BUSINESS MAN WITH $15,000 to $20,000 in immediately available cash can secure the position of treasurer and director in a successful Indiana mfg. concern that is preparing to accept orders running into millions of dollars offered by several highly rated distributing corporations in the U. S.; only principals with cash and references considered. Address M A 205, Tribune.
